The Street Not So Happy
The President-Engineer
Another Arab War
The Cool Pacific

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1929, King Features Synd., Inc.

Then Mr. Babson, supposed to know about stocks, said they are going down. If you say that often enough, you will be right some day.

There were cheerful spots. The Chatham-Phoenix Bank added $4 to its dividend, $20 a share now. Not bad for a conservative bank.

The Seaboard National Bank gives stockholders $5 extra. Banking is a nice clean business, with call money worth 9 to 20 per cent.

Mr. Babson says the stock market will collapse like the Florida land boom. He was in that boom, and, in fact, is still in it. Perhaps that makes him nervous.

Meanwhile, figures show that 100 representative common stocks in August increased in value three thousand eight hundred and six million dollars.

No lack of nickels and dimes in America, anyhow. Woolworth sales went up 12 per cent in August.

And there has been a great demand for copper. Sales, in the week ending last Wednesday, totalled 102,000 tons, almost twice the previous high record for a week. That means industrial prosperity.

Also, the number of freight cars loaded in the last fully recorded week was 1,129,533, beating all railroad records.

If they do as well as the army engineers did in Panama, Uncle Sam will have another big feather in his cap.

It will take 10 years and cost a billion to build a canal through 183 miles of tropical, mountainous forests, from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

The canal will pay for itself and give to Uncle Sam, with his Panama canal, two of the most important waterways on the earth. That's engineering worth while.

Another war has broken. Following wholesale murders in Palestine Jews and Arabs are boycotting each other in business. The Anglo-Palestine Bank refuses bills of credit to Arabs. The latter boycott the Rutenberg electricity company and the Jewish Bank.

British airplanes start real work, with Arabs killed and wounded and their friends convinced that Mohammed is not as powerful as was supposed.

Here, you have been advised to visit Seattle, and without fail to stop in Denver, going or coming, to see Pike's Peak, F. G. Bonfils and other wonders.

New York City temperature on Wednesday was 94 degrees. Boston's was 87. The three coolest spots in the United States on that day were Seattle, Denver and San Diego.

Seattle was coolest of all with 76 degrees. Denver and San Diego 72.

This reminds you that California is a summer resort as well as a winter resort. Temperature at San Diego, southern end of California, only 72 degrees. That's what the big Pacific ocean does, absorbs summer's heat, gives it back in winter.

Johnny Goodman, 20-year-old golfer from Omaha, Nebraska, put Bobby Jones, king of golf, out of the Delmonte championship. Verily, "He hath put down the mighty."

Young Mr. Goodman of Omaha represents a part of the country that has staying power and you will hear more of him.

Mussolini is delighted with his new baby, Anna Maria. Well he may be, if he wants his power handed on to future generations.

What an interesting life that little baby will have, and what a tragic life she may have.

British and Arabs Clash in Fierce Battle

70 AIRPLANES HUNT LIVERMORE

New World Court Fight Looms

SENATE DUE TO COMBAT ROOT PLAN

Washington Leaders Say Stimson's Optimism Over Tribunal Is Not Justified

Washington, Sept. 6—Revival of the spectacular battle to keep the United States out of the World Court of the League of Nations looms with the approval by Secretary of State Stimson of the Root protocol for American admission.

While Secretary Stimson expressed optimism that the Senate would ratify the new protocol, this was not shared in Senatorial circles which have so far prevented American participation except on terms laid down by that body.

This is the famous fifth reservation, which was enacted after a bitter fight and in the nature of a compromise.

It provides that should the United States become a member of the court, that body could not have jurisdiction in matters in which the United States has, or claims to have, an interest.

ROOT'S RESERVATION

Some 50 member nations of the World Court rejected the American reservations. A committee of jurists, of which Elihu Root was a member, then met and adopted a protocol which they stated would adequately protect American interests and at the same time meet the objections of the United States Senate.

This protocol provides that the World Court of the league may pass upon matters in which the United States has or claims a special interest, but that if such a decision is not acceptable to the United States, the matter is then to be submitted to negotiation, or arbitration of the court members.

Then, if the United States feels that its interests have not been safeguarded, this country may withdraw.

This reservation has been approved by all the court members meeting at Geneva. It amounts in effect to approval of their governments.

This approval will next be submitted to the League Assembly for formal approval and then go to the respective parliament for ratification.

50 NATIONS TO ACT.

Secretary Stimson was confident the approximately 50 nations interested would ratify the Root protocol, but said that it would probably require a year for complete ratification.

He explained in his note of transmission that when all of the interested powers had ratified he would make a recommendation to the President that the project again be submitted to the Senate.

The decision of Secretary Stimson was conveyed to Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general of the League, through Hugh R. Wilson, American Minister at Berne.

FOLLIES GIRL WEDS ARTIST

New York, Sept. 6—Gilbert Tom Webster, sports cartoonist for the London Daily Mail, and Miss Mae Flynn, former Follies girl, were married at City Hall by Mayor Walker.

Sir Thomas Lipton, well-known British sportsman; John F. Fitzgerald, former mayor of Boston, and Jimmie Johnston and Dan McKetrick, fight promoters, were among the 75 persons present.

After the ceremony Webster showed some hesitation about kissing his bride and the mayor ordered: "Kiss your bride. It's part of the contract."

MANY DEAD AS ARABS BATTLE WITH BRITISH

Heavy Fighting Rages at Gaza, Palestine; Situation in Holy Land Grave

Jerusalem, Sept. 6—The situation throughout Palestine remained grave in the extreme today, with bloody clashes being reported between British troops and Arabs in various localities.

Heavy losses have been sustained by both sides in a battle between British forces and a large band of Bedouins at Gaza, sixty miles southwest of Jerusalem, near the Mediterranean coast.

No specific account of the losses has yet been given, but the advance apparently has not yet been checked as severe fighting is continuing.

Additional British troops have been rushed to the spot to stem the advancing hordes, which are being reinforced by tribesmen from the Sinai Peninsula. British losses in the battle are said to have been the heaviest in the revolt.

The Gaza engagement has proved the worst battle in the racial conflict to date. The fighting there has assumed a genuine warlike stage, with airplanes and armored cars aiding the British forces in quelling the insurrection.

Outbreaks were also reported today in the vicinity of Beersheba, where British detachments are engaged with mounted tribesmen.

MANY MORE KILLED

Fourteen Arabs were reported killed when the British forces repulsed a Moslem attack at Yesud-Hamaalah, 40 Nablus, the Arabs were killed and twenty wounded by British airmen.

Airplane quadrons are active over the plains between Nablus and Tiberias, 90 miles north of here. The casualties are probably much heavier than the official reports indicate. A check-up of the dead Arabs is impossible, owing to the Moslem custom of removing bodies of the dead immediately.

With the recurrence of active fighting, towns and villages throughout the Holy Land have been reduced again to a state of panic. Shops are closed and Jewish buyers are boycotting Arab tradesmen.

QUIET IN JERUSALEM.

Jerusalem today was orderly. There was considerable interest in two proclamations, stating the different sides of the disorders.

The first of these statements was from the Arab executive which met yesterday with all but six of its 48 members present. The six absent notified the others they were prevented from coming to Jerusalem by local authorities.

The Moslem leaders announced they had decided to appeal to the

ECKENER 'LOST' IN CIRCLE OVER OKLAHOMA

Graf Commander Writes Trade Official Accident Disarranged His Plans

Oklahoma City, Sept. 6 (AP)—Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin on its history-making round-the-world flight, was "lost" when he described a huge circle over northern Oklahoma on the way to Lakehurst from Los Angeles.

He revealed this to W. B. Estes, general manager of the State Chamber of Commerce in a letter Estes has just made public.

Estes had sent an invitation in German, asking Dr. Eckener to pilot the Graf Zeppelin over Oklahoma City if possible, and Dr. Eckener's letter told why he had not passed here.

"I was lost," Estes quoted his letter. "But, then, I had been lost since we left Los Angeles two hours behind. That encounter with the electric wires there damaged the rudder, and while we managed to keep in a more or less direct course to the northeast, I still tried to circle far enough about El Reno so as to see your city."

The Graf was over Perry, Okla., 70 miles north, when it described the vast circles instead of at El Reno, 30 miles west of Oklahoma City.

Edison Allowed to Leave His Sick Bed

West Orange, N. J., Sept. 6 (AP)—For the first time since he was stricken with pneumonia, Thomas A. Edison, was to be permitted to leave his bed today.

The announcement was made in a statement by Mr. Edison's son, Charles Edison, which read:

"Mr. Edison had a good night. His pulse is normal and he is making gains steadily. He will be allowed by his physician to sit up for a half hour today."

Plans are going ahead for a celebration in his home town of West Orange, to celebrate the golden anniversary of the invention of the incandescent light.

Film Actor Fined for Equity Attack

Los Angeles, Sept. 6 (AP)—Edward Welch, film actor, convicted of battery in municipal court, will be sentenced September 10, Harvey O. Perry, George E. Wilson and Sam Cummings, actors and co-defendants with Welch, were acquitted.

The quartet was accused of beating Harry Deek and Frank Goddard, film players, during an argument over the recent attempt of the Actors' Equity Association to gain recognition in motion pictures.

Hunt Firebug After Brookline Blaze

A firebug was hunted in Brookline today following a blaze of alleged incendiary origin which swept through two unoccupied apartments in a building on Euston st., menaced many homes in the district and gave firemen an hour's battle before it was quenched.

The blaze which Chief Seiden Allen of the Brookline fire department believes started in a small clothes closet on the second floor caused a loss estimated at more than $10,000.

But one of the three eight-room apartments in the building was occupied, the tenant, Saul Hofmann, Cambridge shoe manufacturer, and his wife being at present at Atlantic City.

Hofmann's elderly mother-in-law Mrs. Rosa Dreyfuss and his brother Moe, who lives with him, were in the Hofmann apartment at the time. The only other occupants in the building were Harry Plummer, the janitor, and his wife.

Hofmann and Mrs. Dreyfuss were listening to the radio when 11-year-old Doris Cherry, daughter of Israel Cherry, of St. Mary's st., burst in to warn them that the building was afire. Doris had been sent to the store to buy groceries and said that she had been approached on the street by an excited man who asked her where the janitor lived.

Janitor Plummer and the stranger dashed up the stairs of the apartment house with pails of water. Finding the apartments on the second and third floors blazing furnaces, they retreated. Meanwhile the fire department had been notified by several telephone calls and a box alarm from St. Mary's.

Considerable damage was done to the second floor apartment, which was vacated a few days ago by Louis Rosenberg and family, while the third floor suite, recently vacated by Dick Sears, Boston motion picture cameraman, was gutted.

Stocks Swing Upward in Big Buying Wave

New York, Sept. 6—The stock market price pendulum, which dipped so sharply late yesterday, swung upward with almost equal vigor at the opening of Wall Street activities today.

Thousands of traders, both large and small, are both men and women, who had been on nettles overnight regarding a possible continuation of the price decline, breathed a sigh of relief when the stock quotation ticker began to tap out its song of higher prices at the opening of the market.

Investment trusts, powerful interests and millionaire "bargain hunters" took advantage of the break in prices to buy vigorously at the opening of the market. The result was that prices bounced upward from three to eight points and the sunshine of bullish enthusiasm once again drove the bears to cover.

Anaconda Copper, American Can, Radio, Loose Wiles Biscuit, General Electric, International Tel. and Tel. and Industrial Alcohol were among the stocks that rose upon opening transactions.

INDIANS AND COWBOYS JOIN IN SEARCH

Vast Territory From New Mexico to California Is Combed for Missing Plane

By the Associated Press

Search for the air liner City of San Francisco today embraced the stretch of territory from Albuquerque, N. M., to the Imperial Valley of California.

At least 70 airplanes are actively engaged or under orders to proceed.

An area of about 500 miles in diameter, centering at Gallup, N. M., was concentrated upon, although much of this section previously had been covered. Additional areas combed the depths of Bryce Zion canyons in southern Utah the Grand Canon of the Colorado river in Arizona.

All the army planes in the Southwest were placed at the disposal of the searchers by orders from the department. Two navy planes and 15 army planes at San Diego likewise were ready for the hunt. T. A. T. officials announced that 25 private and commercial planes would take off at Los Angeles to join the 17 planes now in the vicinity of Gallup.

T. A. T. has offered $5000 reward for the person who finds the plane which carried a crew of three and five passengers, including Harris Livermore of Boston.

Several hundred Zuni Indians around Gallup and Zuni lent their keen eyes and desert training to the hunt.

An order from T. A. T. headquarters in St. Louis suspended eastward service on the line, but announced that a west-bound plane would proceed as far as Winslow today to join two T. A. T. airliners there.

A band of 20 cowboys added their efforts to those of the Zuni Indians. Searchers on foot and on horseback were made up from the small communities along the Arizona-New Mexico border.

Livermore's Brother Off to Join Search

Robert Livermore, wealthy Boston engineer and brother of Harris Livermore of Boston, missing since Tuesday with the T. A. T. transcontinental airplane City of San Francisco, has left Boston for Arizona to aid in the search for his missing brother. He expects to arrive in the vicinity of Granite, N. M., near where the plane was last seen, some time tomorrow.

The engineer carried a message to the searchers from Mrs. Harris Livermore, his brother's wife, to the effect that they would be well rewarded for their efforts.

Livermore's departure followed a long conference with the missing man's wife and daughter at their summer home in Manchester.

Livermore plans first to join the ground searchers. No expense is to be spared and under no circumstances will the search for Harris Livermore be given up, it was stated.

Flier's Wife Confident Party Is Safe

Gallup, N. M., Sept. 6 (AP)—The greatest aerial hunt in the history of American aviation was being organized today to seek the lost airliner City of San Francisco, which was swallowed up somewhere in the great southwest as it flew through stormy weather from Albuquerque toward Winslow, Ariz., last Tuesday with eight persons aboard.

Among the eight persons was Harris Livermore, Boston ship director and banker.

The aerial armada, marshalled from several states for the search,

FEDERAL EDUCATION DEPARTMENT IS GREAT NEED, CAPPER SAYS

WOULD BENEFIT ALL CHILDREN IN NATION

Senator Hopes to Get His Bill Through at Next Regular Session of Congress

By SENATOR ARTHUR CAPPER, of Kansas, co-author of Capper-Robinson bill in Congress, to create a Federal Department of Education.

Written expressly for Universal Service

Washington, Sept. 6—Establishment of a Federal Department of Education, with its head in the President's cabinet, is proposed in the national interest and in the interest of the children of America.

This separate department should have been established years ago. I am hopeful that we will get affirmative action in the coming regular session of Congress.

The measure I have introduced, the same as that sponsored by Vice President Charles Curtis while he was in the Senate from Kansas, does not propose in any way to curtail or limit the activities of the several states and territories, without regard to race, creed or color, and will thereby work toward the abolishment of illiteracy.

The measure expressly provides that the creation and operation of the separate department neither impair nor infringe upon the laws, rights, duties, authority or responsibilities of the several states, territories and the citizens thereof, "with respect not only to public educational agencies and institutions, but likewise as to the private educational institutions and agencies in the several states and territories."

WOULD COLLECT FACTS

The department would collect facts and statistics showing the progress of education in the several states and territories. It will be invaluable to the states and territories and local school subdivisions through furnishing reliable and accurate information as to educational program and advanced methods of educational instructions.

As a separate government department its opportunities for real service to the country, and particularly to the children of the country, will be enhanced many fold.

Accurate and up-to-date information is necessary for the successful functioning of any enterprise. There is no enterprise in America today in which the country is more vitally interested than in the proper education of its youth. Equal opportunity for all is dependent upon equal educational facilities for all.

Creation and operation of a separate department will make available to every school district in the country the information and plans and accomplishments of the best equipped and managed education systems of the world. It will be even more than a clearing house; it will be a guide and an inspiration in education.

The children of America certainly are entitled to this much attention and guidance from the federal government. It will be especially valuable to the children in rural districts. it will stimulate educational progress in the urban district as well.

FOR MORE EFFICIENCY

I am satisfied that every thinking parent feels, as I do, that education should continue to go forward, and should be recognized and made more effective as a teaching by a place at the council table of the nation.

Such recognition should no longer be withheld. The present bureau of education, while functioning to the limit of its responsibilities, is a step in the right direction, but only a skeleton of what the department of public education should be.

The question involved in this proposition is not whether the federal government shall have a part in education. That policy already is established.

This bill merely provides that the part the government takes shall be more efficient. It will give a better basis of co-operation and guidance—not control, which, in my judgment, would be desirable—on the part of the federal agencies dealing with education.

FOG HALTS SEA AND AIR CRAFT

Fog continued to hamper shipping along the New England coast today. Vessels lay to or proceeded very slowly to avoid collision.

It was still "as thick as mud" off Highland light early today. The same condition was reported at Deer Island light at 8 a. m., but two hours later the keeper said the blanket had lifted so that observation at half a mile could be made.

Steamships delayed in reaching Boston included the Eastern Steamship Co. liner Boston, three hours late from New York, the Wilton of the same line, from Portland, two hours late, and the Belfast, also of the same line, one hour late from Bangor.

No planes moved in or out of Boston airport up to 10 a. m. today. The airmail from New York was more than five hours late. The plane which usually leaves New York for Boston at 5 a. m. had not taken off at 10 a. m.

Even after the fog thinned slightly near the airport pilots fared not so aloft because of the low ceiling.

The government weather forecaster predicted a continuance of fog throughout the day. He also predicted showers for Boston and vicinity today and tomorrow with cooler temperatures tomorrow.

Ex-Police Sergeant to Oppose Quigley

He is seeking vindication and will oppose Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley, one of the several indicted with Isbister in the Chelsea rum cases who was not convicted, and who was re-elected mayor of Chelsea three years ago in a vindication campaign.

SEES CHANCE

"I was improperly convicted," said Isbister. "Because I would not tell what they wanted me to, I was indicted. I went through with it, and Mayor Quigley has not kept his promises. He ignored us when we were at Atlanta. He did come down to see us once, but his brother, Thomas, was there with us. He has ignored us since we have come back.

"He sought vindication three years ago. I am going to seek vindication this fall. The way sentiment seems in Chelsea I think I have a chance. The election will tell.

"It is not my intention to start any mud slinging, but if the mayor starts any, and I know him well enough to believe that he will, I will give him plenty.

"If elected mayor I will make drastic changes in the police department. First of all I will abolish the liquor squad. Every member of the department will be his own 'liquor squad.' Each patrolman will be ordered to clean up his own beat and will be held responsible for conditions there.

PLANS CLEANUP

"In the city at present are several houses of shady repute. The police seem to pay no attention to them. It is my intention to clean them up.

"I am opposed to the city selling the Highland playground which the mayor favors. If is true nothing has been done to make it a proper place for children to play. I propose fixing it up and putting in a municipal bathhouse, drawing salt water from the river for bathing.

"Today the citizens have no place to bathe unless they go to Revere Beach. There is no reason why they should not have a place within the city limits.

It was claimed the British mandate administration had created the present situation by its pro-Jewish policies. The league was asked to see that a parliamentary government representative of the Arab majority, is installed in the Holy Land.

BLAME GREAT BRITIAN

The United Jewish organizations in the country, the Jewish Telegraph Agency said, submitted a memorandum to Sir John Chancellor, high commissioner, in which responsibility for the bloodshed was placed upon agitation fostered by Amin El Hussini, grand mufti of Jerusalem and president of the Moslem council, and on certain members of the Palestine Government.

The memorandum accuad the Government of inefficiency in handling the riots when they first started and of having "harrassed and pursued those Jews who were defending themselves, taking from them their arms, arresting them and handing them over to courts as if they were criminals."

LAY DEATH TO TORCH FIEND

Stockton, Sept. 6—William S. Wood, 56, mysteriously turned to death in an open field off Plymouth st., Holbrook, may have been the victim of a "torch" murder, county and city authorities now believe.

A thorough probe of the fatality was ordered by Dist. Atty. Winfield M. Wilbar after he had learned that Wood did not smoke and would have been unlikely, therefore, to have set himself accidentally afire as police at first supposed. The district attorney also learned today that automobile tracks were seen leading into the meadow where the fire victim's scorched body was found.

Newton Woman Is Injured by Train

Confused by an onrushing train, whose engineer whistled a warning, Mrs. Jennie Russe, 57, of Cook st., Newton, hesitated while making a short cut across the Boston & Maine railroad tracks in Watertown today and was knocked down and seriously injured. Her name was placed on the danger list at Waltham hospital.

Hoover Favors Using Educational Films

By KENNETH CLARK
Universal Service

Washington, Sept. 6—The Hoover administration strongly favors augmenting the country's educational facilities through the use of motion pictures in the schools and colleges.

President Hoover is known to feel that the question of enlarging the educational opportunities of all children is one of the fundamental problems confronting both the federal and state governments. He is of the opinion that educational films can be utilized advantageously in this work.

Louis B. Mayer, vice-president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, who will be a week-end guest at the White House, is one of the leaders of the motion picture educational movement. He has acquainted Hoover with various phases of the subject.

In honor of a distinguished company, Mayer gave a dinner at the Willard Hotel. The guests were:

Dr. Hubert Work, chairman of the Republican national committee; Secretary of Labor Davis and Mrs. Davis; Senor Don Carlos G. Davila, ambassador of Chile; Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas, Senator Samuel W. Shortridge of California, Senator Robert M. Lafollette of Wisconsin, Senator Daniel D. Hasting of Delaware.

Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, ex-assistant attorney-general; C. C. Teague of the federal farm board, and Mrs. Teague, Senor Don Blanco Viel of the Chilean embassy, Raymond S. Benjamin of California, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick William Wile, Mr. and Mrs. William Hard, Judge Marion DeVries of Washington.

Miss Louise Menafee and Miss Nan Howard of Warrenton, Va., Miss Annabelle Matthews of the Treasury Department; Dr. Loise Stanley, director of the bureau of agricultural economics of the Agriculture Department; Miss Louise Chatfield of Washington, Mrs. Ruby Howard of Washington; Mrs. Ida R. Koverman of California, and Judge Mary O'Toole of Washington.

Forest Fires Spread in New York State

Albany, N. Y., Sept. 6 (AP)—A spotty and comparatively light rainfall in New York state today had failed to bring about any marked change in the forest fire situation. The conservation commission reported the presence of 33 fires, 10 of them new in the last 24 hours. All, however, were under control.

The commission had received no reports of new fires in the Adirondack or Catskill areas.

LEAGUE TO WAR ON AGGRESSOR IN NEXT WAR

Six Powers Propose Financing "the Victim Nation" as Means to Prevent Conflict

Geneva, Sept. 6 (AP)—The covenant of the League of Nations, inspired by Woodrow Wilson, has been found lacking in effective means to prevent war by the statesmen taking part in the league's tenth assembly session.

Taking a bold and progressive step to make the covenant at least as strong as the Kellogg renunciation of war pact, the British Labor government today introduced a resolution calling for revision of the covenant so that henceforth war may be really banished, as under the Kellogg pact.

The resolution was introduced by Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson of Great Britain, and was made in behalf also of France, Italy, Belgium, Chile and Denmark.

Britain regards adoption of the principle of obligatory arbitration as of supreme importance in the movement to obtain real international security, Henderson declared.

WOULD BACK VICTIM

Because of the probably great destructive effect of another war, England is determined to press forward the work of disarmament on land and sea and in the air, he declared.

He proposed that financial assistance be given to any nation which may be the victim of an aggressor nation in war, and hoped a convention to this effect might be drawn up during the present assembly session.

If this were done, Mr. Henderson pledged Great Britain to "sign this treaty on the spot."

He urged also that the machinery for preventing the outbreak of war and for stopping a war which had begun, be strengthened.

TIMES HAVE CHANGED

Great applause broke forth when Mr. Henderson, in resonant tones, announced that the British resolution also had the support of the Canadian delegation.

He emphasized the fact that the league covenant was drawn on the morrow of the great war and that its authors had been bound by the will of the governments of that day, but that now the Kellogg pact, which recognizes all war; had changed everything.

Gaps existed in the covenant which make possible recourse to war when there is no unanimity among members of the council as to which offending nation is the aggressor, and when the nations themselves refuse to abide by the decision of the council.

"Therefore under the covenant, the right of conduct private war remains legitimate, but under the Kellogg pact, this right has been abolished. The pact has gone beyond the covenant and it is our duty to render the covenant as strong as the pact," he declared.

LETS U. S. IN.

He wanted this treaty to be open to all countries, whether or not they were members of the League, thus including such nations as the United States and Soviet Russia.

Mr. Henderson made only brief allusion to the Anglo-American naval conversations conducted by Premier MacDonald and Ambassador Dawes.

He said it was useless for the League preparatory disarmament commission to go on meeting until some assurance of practical results had been given, and urged all nations concerned to contribute further to a general disarmament agreement.

"We must limit warships, armies, tanks, guns, aircraft and poison gas which will menace our children and our children's children if we allow another war to break out," he concluded.

500 Girls Strike in Dressmaking Shops

New York, Sept. 6 (INS)—In protest against low wages and sweatshop conditions, five hundred girls employed in the children's dressmaking branch of the Needle Industries walked out on strike today. Harry Greenberg, president of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union declared that ultimately the strike will affect 45,000 workers, in their fight against the "individual" non-union shop.

2 'Lone Mariners' Still Held in Death

Cadiz, Spain, Sept. 6 (AP)—Dr. Francisco Caballero Franceschi, Porto Rican yachtsman, and his wealthy stowaway, Robert Lopez of New York, who crossed the Atlantic in a 36-fot sloop, The Mary, remain imprisoned incommunicado here while the death of The Mary's crew of one, Angel Carbo, remains a mystery.

Franceschi said he killed Carbo in self defense, but no bullet wounds were found. Preparations have been made to determine whether Carbo was poisoned.

New York Bank Nine Will Play in Boston

New York, Sept. 6.—The baseball nine representing the National City Bank of New York will play a game at Braves Field with the Atlantic National Bank of Boston tomorrow. The game is scheduled to start at 3:15 p. m. and there will be no charge for admission.

Lynn Woman Killed

Caught by her hair in a revolving shaft at the Mascot Shoe plant in Lynn, Mrs. Leah Rosnie, 50, of Bellfinch st., Lynn, was fatally injured today before fellow-workers could shut off the power. The woman was opening a window when she fell against the shaft. She was a former resident of Manchester, N. H.

was virtually without a clue where to look for the lost ship, one by one the reports of its wreckage having been sighted were run down yesterday, and each time the searchers returned and reported they had seen nothing but frowning desert and extinct forbidding volcano peaks.

Tearless and confident despite the widespread belief that the City of San Francisco had met with disaster, Mrs. J. R. Stowe, wife of the pilot, said at her home in Clovis, N. M.:

$500,000 FRAUD BANKER IS MISSING

Colorado President Is Sought for an Explanation of Fake Code Orders

Denver, Col., Sept. 6 (AP)—In an effort to solve a financial puzzle involving the attempt of a man representing himself as C. D. Waggoner, president of the Bank of Telluride, Col., to obtain by telegraphic orders a half million dollars from six large banks of New York, police and private detectives today began extensive search for Waggoner, who has been missing for 10 days.

The mystery surrounding the transaction was heightened by the publication here of a statement that a Denver banker, who refused to allow his name to be used, had received a letter from Waggoner Monday, saying:

"I have just received a $500,000 gift from the Denver Clearing House Association, at least I assume it is a gift, for there are no strings attached to it."

CASHIER WROTE DRAFTS.

Partly substantiating information from New York that code orders had been received ordering them to place in the Wall Street branch of the Chase National Bank amounts ranging from $76,000 to $100,000 each at the disposal of Waggoner, C. W. Downtain, cashier of the Telluride Bank, declared that before taking a vacation in Denver from August 26 to August 30, he had signed a number of drafts for the bank president.

It was known here that Waggoner left his home in Telluride, August 25 and was in Denver August 28. Delos Waggoner, the banker's son, said he did not know his father's whereabouts.

BANK IS SOLVENT

Turning their investigation to Telluride for clues as to the motive behind the transaction, state banking officials found the bank of Telluride solvent, Although its business had depreciated greatly during the last few years because of the decline of the mining industry in that section.

Downtain, the cashier, in explaining his signing of the bank drafts, declared he did not know what had become of them after they had been placed at the disposal of Waggoner. Downtain said he had received a letter from Waggoner at New York on Monday saying he would be home this week end.

Carries Out Boast and Loses His Life

Richmond, Va., Sept. 6 (INF)—The first time Sat Haskins was in a state prison it was for a small sized crime, and he remarked that the next time there it would be for a "big sized job."

Haskins murdered and robbed Z. M. Gordon, a junk dealer, last March, and he died in the chair today.

Find Cannon Ball of 1775 in Somerville

A cannon ball, relic of the American Revolution, was unearthed by workers in levelling the old McLean asylum hill, Somerville. The hill was known as Cobble hill and Miller's hill during the Revolution.

The cannon ball, evidently made for use in the siege of Boston by Gen. George Washington's army, was found by a yard brakeman, Charles B. Jolley, near North Station, where earth from the hill is being dumped. The ball is solid, three inches in diameter and weighs 3¼ pounds.

Army officers who examined the ball say it is without question a revolutionary relic.

During the revolution a fort was located on the hill but as there are no records of it it has been excavated by the British it is presumed the ball was part of the Continental Army's munitions.

To Every Humanitarian In New England:

We are certain that the British Government is doing everything in its power to bring back law and order in Palestine, and the question of rights of all interested parties will receive most careful consideration in due time.

At the moment, however, a great calamity has befallen the Jews in Palestine; hundreds have been killed and wounded; homes, institutions and crops destroyed, creating a condition where, according to newspaper reports, millions of dollars worth of financial assistance is absolutely necessary to provide food, clothing and shelter to those who suffer.

In order that the greatest good can be accomplished by centralizing all contributions for relief, I have accepted the Chairmanship of the Palestine Emergency Relief Fund and call upon all the people of New England to assist this most worthy cause by contributing liberally and promptly.

Contributions will be acknowledged through the kindness of the press.

BRIDE TO WEAR IVORY SATIN PATOU MODEL

Ceremony in Church Will Be Witnessed by Relatives and a Few Friends

Plainville, Ct., Sept. 6 (AP)—Fewer than 100 persons will attend the wedding of Miss Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor John H. Trumbull of Connecticut, and Maj. John Coolidge, son of former President Calvin Coolidge, in Plainville Congregational Church the afternoon of Sept. 23. And only about 400 will attend the reception at the Trumbull home here following the ceremony.

With the return of the Trumbulls from Rangeley Lake, Me., it has become known that invitations sent out Tuesday, coincident with announcement of the wedding date, asked a limited number of guests to the church and about four hundred to the reception.

AT CHURCH CEREMONY

Miss Trumbull said today that it was planned to have only members of both the Trumbull and Coolidge families and a small number of friends at the church ceremony. As this limited group gathers at the church, Prof. William C. Hammond of Mount Holyoke College, which the bride-to-be attended, will give an organ recital and later he will play the wedding march.

The reception guests will be members and relatives of the two families and prominent persons of Connecticut, including political leaders of the state. This reception will be held in the Trumbull gardens.

GOWN OF IVORY SATIN

Miss Trumbull will wear a gown of ivory satin in princess style, a Patou model with a plain bodice having boat neck. Her skirt will be in four panels with two long panels in back forming the train. She will wear a tulle veil falling from a cap of duchess lace with a lace panel extending to the end of the train.

Her sister Jean, who will be maid of honor, will wear a peach chiffon gown with straight bodice and a skirt of four panels, the two in back being long. The gown will have a large Bertha collar of ivory lace, embroidered with gold thread. She will wear gold kid shoes and a horsehair hat, matching her gown.

FOUR BRIDESMAIDS.

The four bridesmaids, Miss Esther Trumbull and Miss Dorothy Clark, cousins of the bride, and Miss Virginia Rogers and Mrs. Philip Morehouse, classmates of Miss Trumbull at Mt. Holyoke, will wear Patou models in two shades of yellow and horshair hats to match. The maid of honor and the bridesmaids will carry bouquets of mixed garden flowers.

Mrs. Trumbull will be gowned in beige chiffon trimmed with lace and will wear a horsehair hat to match.

Miss Trumbull has chosen for her traveling ensemble pan velvet of hunters green. It will have a circular skirt longer in back and the blouse will be a Patou model eggshell glow satin. Her short velvet coat will have a circular cape collar. A hat of green velvet will compete the costume.

Miss Trumbull said the trousseau was completed before she went to Maine.

FOUGHT SALE OF FAKE STOCK

In a report made public by the Boston Better Business Bureau covering that organization's activities over the past four months, it is stated that their outstanding problem has been to curb the promotion of fake stock sales, particularly aviation production and to disseminate propaganda against the operations of tipster sheet promotors.

During that period 2763 reports were issued, on request, to inquirers, and hundreds of queries answered for those personally calling at the office. Questions asked were mainly concerned with tipster sheets and stock manipulators. The general public was the principal source of the queries, with banks and brokers following and the districts covered were chiefly Metropolitan Boston and Massachusetts.

Through the efforts of the bureau certain organizations doing a financial business were forced to refund monies; in other cases satisfactory adjustments or explanations were brought about.

Old Buddy Puts One Over on Policeman

Springfield, Sept. 6—Sergt. James Todd of the Aliquippa, Pa., police department has reported how Jeremiah Griffin, 58, escaped from his custody Tuesday night.

The sergeant conferred with Detective Daniel F. McCarthy relative to the recapture of Griffin, who was being taken from Springfield to Aliquippa to face charges of non-support and the larceny of $1500 worth of bonds belonging to his wife.

Todd said that he and Griffin had patrolled together as policemen in Aliquippa for seven years. According to Todd, Griffin implored him not to take him to the Albany, N. Y., police station Monday night, requesting that he be allowed to sleep in a hotel with the sergeant. Griffin promised that he would not attempt to break away.

Therefore, Todd finally consented. Griffin kept his promise that night, but Tuesday night, when they registered at a hotel in Buffalo, Griffin left the hotel while the sergeant was [illegible]

PARENTS MAY HIRE TEACHER

North Smithfield, R. I., Sept. 6—If the local school committee persists in its refusal to allow Mrs. Martha Harris to teach their children in the new Primrose village school, the parents of the two dozen pupils now on "strike" may hire the deposed teacher and hold school in the various homes.

Meanwhile, Miss Margaret L. Ewen of Union village, the new teacher, unruffled by the boycott on her services, continued to open school for 6-year-old Barbara Fort, as the clock entered the fourth day.

A special town meeting, as a means for ironing out the difficulty, also appears likely.

While the school committee remained firm in its stand the equally obdurate parents threatened also to send their children to Catholic parochial schools, should the state ordinance requiring them to send their children to school somewhere be employed as a threat.

The school committee, consisting, of Mrs. F. L. Pitts, chairman, Leroy B. Smith and Samuel Farron, continued also to refuse an explanation of their action in ousting Mrs. Harris.

Emerson L. Adams of Cranston, assistant state commissioner of education, said the old teacher's pupils had not as high scholastic averages as students in other schools, and Mrs. Harris was often tardy in arriving at school.

John Harris, husband of the former teacher expressed the belief that the committee wanted to discontinue the Primrose school and have the children transported to Union village.

One of the Primrose village citizens, Moses Strikland, who has two boys in the school, asserted he would return to Providence and get a job there before he would send his children to the school with any other teacher than Mrs. Harris.

Chicago Slayings Decrease by 82

Chicago, Sept. 6 (INS)—Police Commissioner William Russell announced today homicides in Chicago decreased 24 per cent in the first eight months of 1929 compared with 1928.

There were 343 persons killed in that period last year compared with 281 this year.

SPURNS EDISON AWARD

West Redding, Conn., Sept. 6 (AP)—Charles H. Brunissen winner of second place in the Thomas A. Edison scholarship contest, has decided not to avail himself of the electrical wizard's offer of a four year scholarship at Yale University.

Instead, Brunissen said today, he will go to the school of his first choice, the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, for Mrs. R. B. Stevens of El Paso, Texas, will pay all his expenses, including tuition. The Edison plan would have made necessary young Brunissen working his way through school, as only the tuition would have been paid.

"It would be foolish of me to refuse such a generous offer of Mrs. Stevens," he said. "I have already decided to accept it and I shall notify the Edison company to that effect."

Brunissen, who competed with 48 other "bright boys," each representing a state, at the West Orange N. J., laboratories of the inventor, characterized many of the Edison questions as "senseless and idiotic."

ALL SCHNEIDER FLIERS QUALIFY

Calshot, Eng., Sept. 6 (AP)—All the entries for the blue ribbon Schneider Cup air race successfully passed their navigability trials in the Solent today. The British and the Italian pilots thereupon moored their machines for a six-hour seaworthiness test.

Three British and three Italian pilots qualified in the first part of the "seaworthiness and watertightness" tests which precede the actual races tomorrow.

The Italians were Warrant Officer Tomaso Dal Molin, Lieut. Giorani Monti and Lieut. Cadrugligher.

Thousands of visitors watched the tests from points along the triangular course, Gilkicker Point, South Sea Castle and on the Isle of Wight, at Ryde. The tests were delayed two hours by a heavy fog.

The Prince of Wales was among the spectators. He came in a tiny both airplane piloted by Squadron Leader Don.

Complain of Noisy Boats at Beverly

Scores of wealthy residents in that section have registered complaints with Chief of Police John S. Welch regarding scores of fishermen's motorboats cruising out of Hospital Point at 5 o'clock every morning with the mufflers wide open.

The summer residents say that the fishermen are very loud talkers and they cannot sleep when the boats pass Hospital Point.

Five-Sixths Toil, One-Sixth Loafs in Russia

Moscow, Sept. 6 (AP)—The Soviet Union Government has abolished Sunday as a day of rest and has established the "continuous production week" by which there always will be a fraction of the nation's workmen taking a week-end holiday, while others work.

Each employe under the new arrangement, which has just been announced, will be required to work the usual number of hours, which now range from 39 to 46 a week, although however taking a day of rest after every five or six days of labor.

Thus while one sixth rests five sixths, or thereabouts, will be working, carrying on the full activities of the factory or institution, a years ago, move calculated to quicken industrial pace, increase labor productivity and relieve unemployment.

Charity to Receive Japan Income Fund

Concord, N. H., Sept. 6—Five charitable organizations in New Hampshire will each receive $95 from a fund provided by the Japanese government at conclusion of peace negotiations at Portsmouth, which ended the Russo-Japanese war.

Both Japan and Russia, in appreciation of New Hampshire hospitality, agreed to establish a fund of $10,000, apiece, the income to be divided annually among five local societies. Russia defaulted a few

Attacks Woman With Axe

Mrs. Ida Peterson of Barrett ave., Worcester, who called the police when Doris Gamlin, 11-year-old State ward, attacked Mrs. Sophie Oberg, 65, living at the same address, with an axe, inflicting severe lacerations. The woman is expected to recover at Worcester City Hospital. Above, at left, Sophie Oberg.

ASKS N. E. CLUB WOMEN'S AID FOR EUROPE

Mrs. Grace M. Poole of Brockton Is Speaker at Watch Hill Conference

By NANCY BREWSTER

Watch Hill, R. I., Sept. 6—European women are looking forward to America and American women for sympathy and understanding, Mrs. Grace Morrison Poole of Brockton, first vice-president of the General Federation told delegates to the New England conference at a banquet at the Ocean House.

Returning from a summer of foreign travel and study where she surveyed women's conditions, Mrs. Poole said that never before had she realized that so much was being expected of America by European countries.

"The women of Europe look to the women of America for help," she said. "Let us take that torch of sympathy and understanding and carry it into those countries who want to join forces with us in making this world a better place in which to live."

Since the biennial convention at Swampscott last June, General Federation's executives have stressed the need of carrying the General Federation influence into foreign countries.

Mrs. Poole left for Washington early this morning to attend an executive council meeting of the General Federation.

The women of Athens, Mrs. Poole said, are trying to keep the light of sane living and normal home conditions aflame.

"The Woman's Club in Athens, of 600 members, gave me a tea and a reception and told me that once a month it stages a pageant, written by club members, in the Olympic Stadium, of an event in Greek history," Mrs. Poole continued.

"At Sofia, Bulgaria, I found patterned after our State agricultural colleges an institution similar in principle and outline.

SEEK U. S. IDEAS

"The head of the college said he wanted the Bulgarian farmers to follow U. S. agricultural ideas.

"Throughout my travels I learned that our friends across the water contend that what America does is all right. It means we must keep our lamp brightly polished and trim if we are to set the example for the rest of the world to follow. And so throughout the foreign continent I found women trying to do as we women in America do."

An Utopian club in which officers would be selected alphabetically was described by Mrs. Caesar Misch of Providence, vice chairman of the conference.

"Our elections are becoming more sophisticated," she said. They attend meetings and defy lecturers and program arrangers to interest them. They have the idea they know all there is to be known.

"Instead of elections, nominees, voting, tellers and what not, I would have a club of two classes of membership, active and associate, the latter with the opportunity of graduation into the former class."

TERM LIMIT ONE YEAR

"I would limit the term of office for one year only, thus giving every member a chance. Just think of how must latent club talent might be uncovered."

Mrs Guy E. Speare, retiring New England conference chairman, urged the women to think of the future of New England and not talk too strongly of the Pilgrim Fathers.

Short addresses were made by the six state presidents at the dinner on the topic "The Development of Methods of Illumination in New England." Mrs. Henry I. Cushman of Providence, New England conference chairman, was toastmaster. The speakers all agreed that women had much to do with the illumination of the six states and their scope of vision and independence of thought.

BELIEVE GIRL'S MIND UPSET

Worcester, Sept. 6—Doris Gamlin, 11, a city ward, who lives with Mrs. Sophie Oberg at Barrett ave, rose from bed, went to the kitchen, where she took a hatchet, then went to Mrs. Oberg's room and it is alleged, attacked the woman.

Awakened by cries of Mrs. Oberg, Mrs. Ida Peterson, who lives at the same address, ran to the street and called the police. Patrolmen responded in time to save the life of Mrs. Oberg, who was running through the house. The woman, 65-years-old, was taken to the City hospital, where it is believed she will recover from severe lacerations.

The girl was captured in her room in which she locked herself. She will be arraigned in the Juvenile Court tomorrow morning, on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Police say they were told by the girl that Mrs. Oberg did not treat her well, and Wednesday night sent her to bed without supper, besides taking away her doll carriage.

Mrs. Oberg declared that the girl was slightly troubled mentally, and that she had taken her into her home after the death of the girl's mother and the disappearance of her father.

To Wed Asther

Vivian Duncan, one of famous sisters, announces she is engaged again to wed Nils Asther, screen actor. They broke off a former engagement two years ago.

VIVIAN DUNCAN RENEWS TROTH

Hollywood, Cal., Sept. 6 (INS)—Almost three years ago Vivian Duncan, one of the famous Duncan sisters, and Nils Asther, screen actor, announced their engagement. A year later it was broken by mutual consent.

Today, however, the engagement was announced again and they will be married, it was said, as soon as their work permits.

Postal Receipts Jump in August

Washington, Sept. 6 (INS)—Reflecting business conditions of the country, postal receipts at 50 selected cities in August showed an increase of 4.65 per cent over those for the same month last year, the postoffice department announced today. Total receipts were $29,251,268.77 and $27,951,460.20, respectively.

The four leading cities in percentage of increase were: Denver, 22.05 per cent; Jersey City, 20.30 per cent; New Haven, Ct., 10.89 per cent; Dayton, O., 10.23 per cent.

FARMERS FACED BY A CRISIS IN NEW ENGLAND

Council Is Told More Intense Competition by West Is Under Way

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 6 (AP)—New England farmers will face a period of intense competition in their home market if the Federal Farm Board's program of aiding western producers accomplishes its aim, Harry R. Lewis, state commissioner of agriculture for Rhode Island, today told the New England Council.

"Agriculturally, New England is facing the second great crisis in her existence," Lewis asserted. "The first was the opening up of free lands in the west. This was not felt seriously, however, until the development of co-operative marketing among distant producers made it possible for them to reach our attractive consumer market here with a high quality product in a short time.

"My contention is that still further strengthening of the agricultural co-operative movement will make this competition still more severe. This immediate adverse action will probably in the end work out favorably, because it will more quickly compel New England agriculture to organize itself through a peculiar and distinct type of co-operative effort, especially adapted to our peculiar market conditions, to effectively meet this distant organized competition.

"A second very favorable effect of the present policy of the federal farm board, if consistently carried out, will be that any successful effort in reducing the great surpluses of major agricultural commodities of the Middle West through more orderly marketing will help the New England farmer very materially because it will avoid the dumping of these surpluses in our intensive consumer territory at prices far below the cost of production."

At the same session J. J. Lamere, vice-president of the Bay State Fishing Company of Boston, described the part cold storage merchandising methods had played in the transition of the fishing business into a modern industry within the past ten years.

Research has increased the saleability of the product to such an extent that fish from the Atlantic were now being sold on the Pacific coast, he said.

Lamere said the business was taking increased interest in advertising.

CHECK AUTOS IN CHELSEA

Patrolmen were stationed at all highway entrances to Chelsea today, stopping every motorist that passed through.

The object was to determine how many of the operators' cars are registered in cities outside of Chelsea. This brief hold-up was in effect from 6 a. m. to 6 p. m.

The figures will be turned over to Mayor Quigley that he may use them in his fight at the insurance rate hearing at the State House later in the month.

Red Savage's Wife Free for Being Good

Providence, Sept. 6—Because she is "going straight" on a new job in New York, Mrs. Loretta Savage, wife of "Red" Savage, Pawtucket postoffice robber, was given a deferred sentence on liquor charges today.

The case had been continued from May when Judge Walsh told her to "turn over a new leaf and the book would be closed."

Find Orthodox Church Folk Less Efficient

New Haven, Conn., Sept. 6 (INS)—Persons orthodox in religious views "are less capable in solving intellectual problems, more suggestible in different situations, less willing to endure distress in a competitive situation, less able to coordinate muscular activity, and more able to increase efficiency in order to defend self in a dangerous situation."

So Thomas H. Howells of the University of Colorado declared today during a symposium on religious psychology at the ninth international congress of psychology.

Prof. Howells told of reaching the conclusion after a reaction-test given 800 students, the results of which were then applied to 50 extreme conservatives in religion and an equal number of radicals.

Prof. Pleasant R. Hightower of Butler University told the symposium that "there is no relationship of any consequence between Biblical information and the different phases of conduct." His conclusion was that "mere Bible knowledge of itself is not sufficient to insure proper character attitudes."

BATTLE LINES ON TARIFF ARE DRAWN

Washington, Sept. 6 (INS)—The opposing lines for a "billion-dollar" battle over the tariff were drawn in the Senate today with a Democratic-Insurgent coalition definitely lined up in opposition to the administration's new bill.

The Democrats and Insurgents reached an agreement on a program of assault. The high point of this program is a decision to assail the administrative provisions first, leaving the battle over rates for the grand climax.

The method of procedure was entirely acceptable to administration leaders.

"We have no objection whatever to debating administrative provisions prior to action on the rates," said Senator Smoot (R.) of Utah, Senatorial parent of the bill. "When the Senate does reach the rates, we have no doubt of the outcome. The bill, as reported, will be accepted generally and I hope it will become a law at the special session."

Temporary abandonment of the Thomas proposal for an immediate fight to eliminate all industrial increases from the bill.

Launching of fight against administrative features.

United opposition to the flexible tariff provision, under which the President can raise or lower rates on recommendations from the tariff commission.

Certain attacks on a dozen of more important industrial rates, which were increased by Senate committee.

BAY STATE IS IN N. Y. AUTO PACT

Massachusetts and New York motor vehicle operator's licenses will be reciprocally recognized as result of an arrangement between the two states, Charles A. Harnett, commissioner of motors in New York, has announced.

This action is the result of a proposal made by Capt. George A. Parker's office in July, whereby the motor vehicle operators of any state requiring a road test in the license examination may drive any car they so desire in Massachusetts, provided the operators of this state be allowed the same privilege in the other state.

Entire Family Hit by Prohibition Law

Las Cruces, N. M., Sept. 6—Prohibition officers are keeping an eye on the Baldanado family.

Antonio Baldanado was arrested and charged with possession and sale of intoxicants. His stepfather was in custody at the time charged with violating the customs laws by smuggling liquor across the border. His mother was out on bond awaiting action of the September term of federal court on a bootlegging charge. Tony, a brother, was arrested and charged with possessing 40 gallons of alcohol, 135 pints of whisky, 24 quarts of rye, and a quantity of wine.

Worcester Plant Fire Loss $5000

Worcester, Sept. 6—Fire, believed caused by spontaneous combustion in a pile of supplies, resulted in damage of $5000 to the factory of R. B. Field & Co., manufacturers of leather washers.

The fire gained considerable headway before it was discovered. Thirty employes will be out of work until repairs are made.

Havana Drug Drive

Havana, Sept. 6—Squads of sanitary officers, armed with search warrants and orders from the interior department, started Cuba's first concerted drive against drugs. The drive is particularly aimed at cabarets, numerous dance halls and Chinatown, where, police believe, exists the source of Havana's reported increasing drug supply.

Indian Girl Finds New York Thicker Than Woodlands

New York, Sept. 6—The lure of New York's fabled Arabian-night splendors sent four 17-year-old Indian girls hitch-hiking from the Onondaga reservation at Syracuse Monday and led one of them into the Florence Crittenton home with her only view of Bagdad-on-the-subway glimpsed on her way from a police station to the home.

The girl, Precilla Thompson, wandered into the Morrisania police station alone this morning and told the lieutenant on desk duty that she was lost. She had started with $1.50 in her pocket and three companions by her side to hitch-hike to New York. Yesterday at Rhinebeck, N. Y., a roadster picked up three of the girls and Precilla hiked on alone until some one gave her a lift to the Bronx.

She will remain at the home until an aunt on the reservation sends funds for her return or the missing companions come back.

3 Miles of Bas Relief on Buried Temple

Los Angeles, Sept. 6 (AP)—Dr. John C. Hill, director of the department of religion, archaeology and anthropology at the University of Southern California, upon his return here from a summer's study in the South Seas announced today that he had discovered on the island of Bali, near Java, "the temple of Boro Boedoer, on which there is three miles of life-sized bas relief as interesting as any book ever written."

The temple, Dr. Hill said, was buried 1200 years ago. It covers nine acres of ground, has five levels, or stories, so far discovered, and was the seat of an ancient native religion.

"The bas relief on the lowest level," said Dr. Hill, "depicts the sins of the world and the temptations of man. Those above show methods of overcoming evil through the trials of spiritual reincarnation until the prince and finally the God is created in man."

Dr. Hill described the island as 100 miles long and having population of about 1,000,000. He said the island was a virtual utopia where the natives lived with little effort. The natives verged on physical perfection, and lived highly moral lives, he declared.

Mohammadana, said Dr. Hill, had invaded the island many years ago and forced their religion upon the natives.

Worcester Man Is Killed by Gas Fumes

Worcester, Sept. 6—Oswald Adam, 47, of Litchfield st., an employe of the Reed-Prince Company, was found dead from gas asphyxiation in his home by his brother-in-law, Edward Klunk, and Augustine Rebillard of Southgate st. Adam had been dead several days.

Klunk, who occupies an adjoining cottage, detected an odor of gas outside Adam's cottage and, calling Rebillard, they forced an entrance and found Adam dead on a couch in a room off the kitchen.

CREW ESCAPES AS SCHOONER FOUNDERS

Truro, N. S. Sept. 6—Forced to take to the dories when their schooner, the Edith H. Cooney, out of Gloucester, Mass., started to sink under them at about 18 miles off Sambro, six Gloucester fishermen rowed the 18 miles to safety.

They arrived in Halifax Harbor tired out but otherwise none the worse for their experience.

Capt. Waldo Carrigan said, "The bottom must have dropped out of her."

The Cooney had been swordfishing off the banks and was en route home to Gloucester. She was owned by the Maritime Fisheries, Gloucester. The crew consisted of Capt. Carrigan, Ernest Diggins, Gus Terrio, Joseph Cusick, James Cavanaugh and Hector McDougall.

DECISION SOON ON SCENE OF BARR TRIAL

A decision is expected soon from Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente of New York on the petition of James C. Barr, millionaire steel man of Boston and New York, to have the divorce suit of his wife, Mrs. Lolia Fairfield Barr, transferred to New Hampshire.

Mrs. Barr, whose separation suits have been accompanied by charges that a Broadway gang broke up her home, defended her selection of the New York courts as the battleground of her marital disputes.

Mrs. Barr, who invoked injunction process to restrain her husband from "showering his affections" on Margaret C. Dana, actress, had produced evidence to show she had been a resident of New York State 14 years. Her husband contended she was a resident of New Hampshire.

Mrs. Barr said she had lived at the Ritz Carlton and the Ritz Towers in New York for years, as well as maintaining one of her summer homes at Sands Point, L. I. The other summer home is at New Ipswich, N. H., in which State she filed her first separation suit in 1923, and $100 a week temporary alimony.

Then she filed her New York suit a year later, Mrs. Barr told of her nerves and trust in her husband were shattered by constant telephone demands for money from a "Mrs. Lewis" and other Broadway characters.

She also told how her husband had been forgiven when he promised to quit night life companions who told her he had paid to keep things quiet, and how he finally had broken with the gang, members of which had led her to follow him to Chicago. She said she found Miss Dana registered in a hotel there, but that she and Barr promptly fled.

Mrs. Barr also asked the New York courts to restrain the actress, then living at the New Weston Hotel, from receiving the manufacturer's affections. But process servers could not find Miss Dana and the motion was never argued.

Would-Be Suicide Better

AIMEE AIDE IN DRIVE AGAINST VOLIVA

Chicago, Sept. 6—Aimee Semple McPherson's trumpeting evangelist, "Sister Lucy," has invaded the realm of Wilbur Glenn Voliva, the "Pontiff of Zion, Ill.," and "saved" four of his faithful.

But, Voliva, old-hand at putting down ecclesiastical insurrections, is not a bit worried.

There have been few years in the 23 Voliva has directed the destiny of Zion that some group has not attempted to depose him by announcing a brand new schedule of salvation.

Meanwhile, Voliva not only keeps the contribution plates tinkling every Sunday, but he also directs a candy factory and several other prosperous church industries and keeps enough franchised voters in the fold to elect or name his own mayor, city judge and speed cops.

"Sister Lucy" has announced herself a "missionary direct from Sister Aimee's Angelus temple, Los Angeles." She styles herself the trumpeting evangelist and renders gospel hymns on the cornet.

"Sister Lucy" has defied Voliva openly and has even challenged him to a debate on his proposition that the earth is flat.

Voliva has ignored "Sister Lucy." Nevertheless he isn't the man to stand by quietly and allow henchmen of other faiths to raid the ranks of his faithful. Just where and when Voliva will strike is the question now worrying Zion.

"Torch" Victim Was Wanted as Slayer

Lancaster, Pa., Sept. 6 (AP)—The body of a man slain and burned near Newark N. J., last Aug. 9, has been identified as that of Joe Deano, wanted for the murder of Lieut. Gaynor of Lancaster police, March 20, 1927.

Identification was announced after a Cleveland dentist picked Deano's picture from a group of six as that of a man on whom he had done work, July 18 last.

Coal Deposits Are Found in Ontario

Toronto, Sept. 6 (AP)—Discovery of extensive coal deposits, one of the few minerals hitherto unfound in Ontario has been announced by Premier Ferguson.

He said a bed one mile long and a half-mile wide, estimated to contain from 7,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons of lignite, a low-grade fuel, has been found along the Abitibi river at Blacksmith Rapids, near Cochrane.

The Curious Quizzer

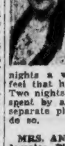
Strollers on Common Answer His Question and Pose for Pictures

THE QUESTION

Should a married man accompany his wife three times a week to the movies?

ALBERT A. GODFREY, Clarkson st., Dorchester—I am unmarried now, but when I get a wife I will see to it that we enjoy moving pictures at least once a week. Of course, if the girl I marry is anxious to go oftener I suppose she would not have to coax me a great deal to tag along with her. A sensible woman would not insist on going three nights to movie shows unless her husband could afford it. Too many married women spend money on movies which could be used with more benefit in the home.

WALTER F. ROBIN, Edison Green, Dorchester—In warm weather one movie a week is enough. When the weather is cold a man should take his wife twice a week if educational productions by recognized playwriters are shown on the screen. A man should not be expected to take his wife to the movies three times a week. She should be willing to go but once in a while. . . husband ought to be able to call on some of his men friends once in a while.



MISS ETHEL TALBERTH, Mora st., Dorchester—A husband should try to please his wife in everything. I know I would expect my husband, if I were married, to take me to the movies at least twice a week. If he enjoyed the movies he would be glad to attend. If he cared nothing for picture shows he should go just the same on two nights a week, because I would feel that he owed me that much. Two nights of the week should be spent by a man and his wife at separate places if they desired to do so.

MRS. ANNA SMITH, School st., Jamaica Plain—When the family purse can stand the cost it is only right for a husband to take his wife three times a week to the movies. Many husbands find more enjoyment seeing pictures with their wives beside them. Naturally if there are small children it could not be expected that a man and his wife could leave them behind three nights a week. The average man is handicapped where there are children to consider. He sometimes has to stay home to look after the children while his wife goes out. Willingness on a husband's part to go out with his wife three nights a week proves his affection for her.

MARION DAVIES CHARMS BRILLIANT AUDIENCE IN "MARIANNE"

LOS ANGELES PREMIERE A GLORIOUS FULFILLMENT

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Los Angeles, Sept. 6—The piquant charm of "Marianne" lingered in the heart of that large and brilliant audience at the Mayan Theater last night long after the last reel faded from the screen.

Marion Davies' lovable personality so indelibly associated with the little French "Marianne" is not easily forgotten. Her remarkable accent, her songs and her comedy as well as her pathos proved a glorious fulfillment of what her admirers had hoped for her.

It did not seem possible that any american girl could speak with an accent through eleven reels and never once forget herself. Yet so perfectly did she speak her lines that one never for a moment felt she was forcing herself to talk a new and strange language.

There is everything to commend in this film, the first talkie of its kind to come to Los Angeles.

The really beautiful love story, the subtleties of comedy, the dramatic moments, are all impressive, but greatest of all is the consistent performance of Marion Davies. Only an artist sure of herself and with that knowledge deep within her soul would have dared to undertake such a difficult role.

OUTDOES HERSELF

Many of those in that audience were people who love Marion Davies, but even those who were sure she would surpass herself were totally unprepared for her characterization of the little French peasant girl.

The story of "Marianne" is laid in France at the end of the war, so we are mercifully spared a riot of shot and shell. Only a brief scene with booming cannons and noisy explosives indicates the horrors of battle. The war is over almost at the beginning of the story.

The American boys are billeted at Marianne's little home. Her adventures at times are comical to the point of being ridicuous, and at other times as beautifully serious as the most dramatic love story ever unfolded.

The slang of the American lads, their good humor and their rollicking songs, lifts "Marianne" into a place of entertainment heretofore conceded only to "Broadway Melody." "Marianne" has all of the musical qualities of "Broadway Melody" combined with an excellent story which had its origin with Dale Van Every. It has also been given excellent dialogue by Laurence Stallings and Gladys Unger.

BIG SONG HIT

One of the surprise performances of "Marianne" is that given by Lawrence Gray. Mr. Gray has a charming singing voice. His singing of "Marianne" is sure to make it one of the song hits of the year. As the wise-cracking, Smart-Alec American who first teases and then falls in love with Marianne, he is truly delightful.

His two buddies are played by Cliff Edwards and Benny Rubin. Benny is surely a screen comedy find. He reminds one of Eddie Cantor with his broad Jewish dialect and his humorous cracks at his own race. In my most pessimistic moments I'll have to admit Benny can dance.

Mr. Edwards and his ukulele called for more. His special number "When I See My Sugar" had everyone humming. The interpolation of his songs and his famous uke is so natural that we never feel the musical numbers are planned for effect. Let's have more of "Ukulele Ike." We like his restraint in acting as well as his music.

The songs in "Marianne" afford one of its greatest charms. To hear Marion sing "Just You," just gave the audience a thrill. She has the stage presence and the voice of a seasoned trouper.

CHARMING SONGS

It's difficult to say which one of the songs composed by Fred E. Ahlert and Roy Turk is the most catchy. "Blondy" is tuneful and it has the elements that make for popularity. Mr. Ahlert and Mr. Turk were aided in their composing activities by Nacio Herb Brown, Arthur Freed, Jean Greer and Raymond Klargis.

I don't know which wrote which, but the success of each individual song is after all a matter of opinion. "Blondy" has a charm all its own, so has "Oo-La-La-La-La," "The Girl from Noochatasu" and "Hang on to Me." Few talkies have so many song hits and not one of the previous sound pictures has had its song numbers so spontaneously injected.

We have been so engrossed with the musical and that we have failed to mention the performance of George Baxter as "Marianne's" French sweetheart. He speaks French like a native, and perhaps he is French.

Scott Kolk, the lieutnant, Robert Edeson, the general, Oscar Apfel, the side, and Emile Chautaro each gives a meritorious piece of individual acting.

CONQUERS ACCENT

"Marianne" establishes a new record for Marion Davies. It demonstrates her ability as a musical comedy favorite for future talkies.

It is her first talkie and I can think of no other star who would have had the courage to attempt an accent in her first adventure with the microphone. Marion should be credited doubly, not only for being able to sing, but for being able to manage the difficult, throaty tones so characteristic of the French race.

One to whom much of the credit for "Marianne" goes is Robert Z. Leonard, the director. Mr. Leonard has been particularly successful with Miss Davies' pictures. He understands so well her ability to play comedy and at the same time her dramatic sense. His handling of "Marianne" is a piece of deep and thoughtful direction.

A scene that is particularly to his credit and that of Miss Davies is where she says good-by to the American doughboy. We get so used to associating Marion Davies with comedy we forget what a fine dramatic actress she is. That scene is one of the best in the entire picture.

Seldom has any premiere brought out so many distinguished guests. Long before "Marianne" unreeled the Mayan theater was filled. The Fox movitone newsreel, a very amusing comedy called "A Perfect Day," with Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy and a colortone Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer number preceded "Marianne." Hardy and Laurel are always funny. I have yet to see them make a dull comedy.

Xavier Cugat furnished the music for the evening which, needless to say, will go down in history as one of the most brilliant premieres in Los Angeles.

Hoboken Segregates Boy and Girl Pupils

Hoboken, N. J., Sept. 6 (INS)—Boys and girls of junior high school age here will no longer be taught in mixed classes, Dr. Daniel S. Kealey, superintendent of schools, announced today.

'Tiger' Calls Doctor to Aid Peasant Girl

St. Vincent-Sur-Jard, France, Sept. 6 (INS)—Former Premier Georges Clemenceau, so ruthless in politics that they called him "The Tiger," defied critics with gentleness today when he gave the services of his personal physician to a poor, sick peasant girl.

Clemenceau himself is in poor health, but has been taking a paternal interest in the girl—18-year-old Marthe Kenault—ever since he learned of her illness and inability of her family to give her proper medical care. Every day he has sent his servant nine miles to the village of Brandais to inquire after her condition.

Finally he called from Paris his own physician, Dr. Degennes, who treated Marshal Foch and told him to see that the girl be given every aid.

WIFE SPURNS ALIMONY!

Chicago, Sept. 6 (INS)—The romantic dreams Katherine Wagd, 19, once held of married life today are shattered. A year of marriage has embittered her so she even refused a substantial alimony offered when a divorce was granted.

She unfolded her story before Judge David in asking for a divorce. She told of her experiences as the wife of Walter Ward, 21.

"He was cruel," she said, "but the crowning horror came when I discovered he was one of a gang of men who preyed upon young girls.

"I don't want any alimony," she said, her face hardening.

"I suppose you are going to remarry?" queried the judge.

"Not I, judge," she answered. "I shall never marry again."

POLICE SELL FINGERPRINTS

Los Angeles, Cal., Sept. 6 (AP)—The district attorney's office announces it has received information indicating police have sold to criminals for $1000 to $3000 official finger-print and photograph records taken from department files.

The information, it was stated, was uncovered during the investigation of J. B. Westman's story of police bribery which, he charged, afforded him protection for five years for operation of a bootlegging establishment.

Helen Wills Sick With Tonsilitis

Oakland, Cal., Sept. 6 (AP)—Helen Wills, international tennis champion, who is suffering from acute tonsilitis, was to undergo a minor throat operation today. Miss Wills' indisposition has caused the cancellation of her match with Miss Betty Nuthall, 18-year-old British girl, in Berkeley on September 15, her father, Dr. C. A. Wills, said.

Two Killed as Auto Strikes Live Wire

Jacksonville, Fla., Sept. 6 (AP)—Two men were killed and three women burned and injured today when their automobile ran off the Jacksonville Beach road and collided with an electric light pole. Electric transmission wires, falling from the pole, struck the passengers.

Judge Rules Hubby Can Smoke in Bed

Union City, N. J., Sept. 6 (INS)—It is a man's sacred right to smoke a pipe while lying in bed, according to Police Judge Alfred Modarelli. He issued a ruling to this effect today when Mrs. Congetta Rizzo had her husband, John, bailed before him on a charge of nocturnal bedroom puffing.

895 Auto Licenses Recalled in Vermont

Montpelier, Vt., Sept. 6—There were 895 licenses suspended or revoked by the motor vehicle department during the eight months' period ending Aug. 31, during which time 1113 convictions were reported, according to the records of the department. This compares with 638 suspensions and 772 convictions during the corresponding period in 1928.

UNSCRAMBLE THESE ANAGRAMBLES

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

THE game sensation that has swept America. The rules are simple. You are given, for instance, the word "tear" to unscramble with the letter "h." The Anagramble is "heart." Similarly, to unscramble the word "link" with "s" the Anagramble is "slink."

Remember, you cannot make an Anagramble with a plural—"links" would be wrong. You have to change the complete meaning of the word—"slink" is therefore correct. Nor can you make a different tense of word. For instance, to unscramble "read" with "s" you cannot make it "reads."

You must change the complete meaning. The Anagramble, therefore, is "dears." Now try your hand at these Anagrambles

(2) TEACH—Unscramble it with a D.
(3) TILES—Unscramble it with an N.
(4) REMAIN—Unscramble it with a T.
(5) LIVING—Unscramble it with an E.

INTUITION—IT'S THE SECRET OF SUCCESS

New Haven, Ct., Sept. 6 (AP)—Intuition, once considered a feminine prerogative is listed by Henry Binns, psychologist, of Bradford, England, as part of the success of big business executives.

He has been studying the psychology of industry in the British textile business for several years and reported his conclusions to the Ninth International Congress of Psychology at Yale today.

There is no deep mystery about intuition, he finds. His definition is that it arises "out of subconscious memory in which is stored a much wider experience than that covered by the actual facts under review."

HOW TO SUCCEED

Other qualities considered by Mr. Binns as essential for industrial leadership are: Capacity, natural and acquired, for dealing with a new situation, specific ability to concentrate upon and coordinate numerous complex factors quickly in one decision, knowledge, confidence, impartiality and stability. The latter is good health combined with freedom from anxiety and from depressing emotions.

Methods whereby the psychologist is promoting safety first were described by W. V. Bingham, the personnel research federation, New York.

In a city, which he did not name, street car motormen were studied from an unusual angle, "proneness to accidents." The psychologists sought the different ways in which the men were prone to accident.

WHY WE BLUSH.

"This led to improvements in operation," said Bingham, "by means of which a notable reduction in collisions and other accidents has been brought about. This approach is spreading to other street railways and to machine industries, supplementing the more familiar types of safety effort."

The origins of blushing were traced to fear in primitive men by Dr. J. T. MacCurdy of Cambridge, England. The early ancestors of the human race probably blushed when eating, because they were in some degree more exposed to danger of attack while occupied in a meal.

Dr. MacCurdy said that perhaps primitive man blushed whenever he was doing anything which put him temporarily in a defenseless position. Love-making was probably a great distraction of attention from the business of self-defense, rooting the blushing habit deeply in courtship relations.

Joe Rines Fined on Charge of Speeding

Joe Rines of Commonwealth ave., Brighton, orchestra leader, was fined $10 on a charge of speeding. He appeared in Waltham court.

Patrolman Joseph P. Shea of the Watertown police accused Rines of driving along North Beacon st. at the rate of 45 miles an hour. Judge Michael Connolly proved to be in perfect harmony with the officer, but they both sounded somewhat flat to Joe.

Waltham Legion Election Sept. 18

Fred Neal and Harold Manning have been nominated for commander and John Walsh and Lawrence Lawless for vice-commander. Miss E. R. Lolly, who was a yeoman (F.) during the World War, is unopposed for adjutant.

Woman Democrats Plan Garden Party

The Women's Democratic Club of Massachusetts will hold its annual garden fete Saturday, on the grounds of the Kelley estate at 11 Morse st., Watertown.

Leading Democrats of state and nation have been invited. Mrs. Mabelle A. Kelley of Watertown, president of the club, heads the reception committee.

Appointed Head of Lincoln Schools

Carl F. Holloran has been appointed superintendent and principal of schools in Lincoln to succeed Harold O. French. For five years, Mr. Holloran, who was graduated from Fitchburg normal school and Boston University School of Education, has been teaching in the Frank A. Day Junior High School, Newtonville.

FOUR ADRIFT IN BOAT SAVED

Clive and his son, with E. E. Underhill, business manager, and Thomas O'Brien of the theater staff had gone down the harbor fishing in Capt. Sidney Patten's 40-foot launch, Jennie S.

The engine broke down and for hours the Jennie S. drifted helplessly in the fog. Capt. Patten ran up the ensign upside down as a signal of distress.

The party had resigned themselves to a night at sea when a sailor on the Coast Guard cutter C-159, bound for Boston, saw the distress signal just as Mr. Clive sighted the cutter and shouted for help.

$3500 OF BANK FUNDS GONE

Pittsfield, Sept. 6—Currency, said to be in excess of $3500, is reported missing from the Pittsfield National Bank. Charles W. Power, the president, admitted that money is missing, but declined to state the exact amount.

The money, at first reported to have been $35,000, has been replaced by an insurance company.

Pittsfield police received a report that the funds were missing Monday. The money was first missed Saturday when arrangements were completed for the merger with the Third National Bank. Several persons have been questioned, but no clews of importance have been uncovered.

Newton Girl Beaten, Robbed on Street

An extensive search was under way today for a youthful thug who, daring capture by the scores of motorists passing at the time, beat and robbed a 22-year-old girl on Boylston st., Newton Center.

The thief made his getaway with $62 in cash and bills, a check for $65 on the Newton Trust Co., and a book on the Brookline Savings Bank with deposits of $451. Payment on the latter two was stopped as soon as police received word of the hold-up.

A description of the thief as broadcast by police is as follows: About 21 years old, wearing a blue shirt, khaki trousers, a gray cap, and canvas gloves, gauntlet style.

Miss Fahey received a shaking-up when knocked to the ground, and her glasses were broken in the scuffle.

Dorchester Man Dies in His Cell

Thomas H. King, 62, of Geneva st., Dorchester, was found dead in his cell at the Braille square police station, Cambridge, today. Medical Examiner Dow viewed the body but did not specify the cause of death. King was arrested by an Elevated employe yesterday for drunkenness.

His Farewell Sermon

Rev. Frank M. Swaffield, pastor of West Somerville Baptist Church, will preach his farewell sermon Sunday night. He becomes pastor of First Baptist Church, Brockton, Sept. 15.

M. A. C. STAFF CHANGED

Amherst, Sept. 6—Additions and changes in the faculty of Massachusetts Agricultral College were announced by Secretary Robert D. Hawley.

In the agricultural economics department there are two new appointments. Adrian H. Lindsey comes from Iowa State College as professor of agricultural economics. Ellsworth W. Bell, formerly assistant in agricultural economics at the University of Vermont, will be an infructor in this department.

Martin E. Cupery, former graduate assistant at M. A. C., returns as instructor in chemistry. Ernest M. Parrott, formerly of the University of Florida, takes the place of Miss Mabel MacMasters as laboratory assistant in chemistry.

"OUR HOUSE HEATS ITSELF.."
said Priscilla—

"We light the new Gas Heater in the Fall, when cold weather threatens, and forget it until Spring. Except for setting the indicator upstairs, to change the temperature from time to time, that's the whole story. John thinks it's marvelous — no more dirty furnace tending for him."

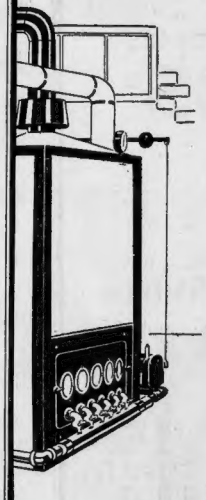
GAS house heating seems like magic to folks who all their lives have struggled with old-fashioned systems.

Now they enjoy even, healthful heat and clean cellars, with no more unsightly bins, or ashes floating in the air to contaminate things all through the house. "Our newly-found freedom"—said Priscilla and John.

Investigate this new-day method of house heating—now—before winter comes. Visit your gas company for a practical demonstration of gas house heaters.

And while there, ask to see other interesting appliances that the gas industry has contributed to easier, better, happier living—ranges, water heaters, refrigerators, incinerators, laundry dryers, fireplaces, radiators, garage heaters, et cetera.

A small amount down brings you any of them. And you pay the balance on convenient terms.



Heat Your Home With

Ask your gas company for free booklet, "Gas — The Servant of Mankind." It tells the romantic story of gas — how to select and care for gas appliances — and contains new ideas for housekeeping. Write, phone or call for your copy.

FOX PURCHASE OF LOEW STOCK BRINGS SUIT

Universal Service.

New York, Sept. 6—The interest purchased by William Fox, theatrical magnate, in Loew's, Inc., has been made the basis of a suit in the New York County Supreme Court.

A summons in a stockholders' suit was served on Nicholas M. Schenk, David Bernstein and Arthur M. Loew.

Papers containing a motion for the examination of 18 persons prominent in the motion picture and theatrical world also have been served.

The plaintiff is Edwin M. Stanton, of Plandome, L. I., an executive of an automobile company, owns 300 shares of Loew's inc., and is acting as a minority stockholder, representing other Loew shareholders of the same class.

Stanton, in his affidavit, declares the three defendants made a large profit through the sale of majority holdings in the Loew organization.

At a time when the market price was $84, he asserts, the three sold a block of stock to Fox for $125 a share. Some stock sold for $126 was obtained for $102.50, according to Stanton.

All this time, the affidavit asserts, negotiations were being carried on in secret and none of the other stockholders were aware of what was going on or were given an opportunity to share in the profit.

The papers, which were drawn and served by House, Holthusen & McCloskey, report 1,334,453 shares of Loew common in the hands of stockholders. Large Wall Street houses are heavy holders and, as the result of sale to Loew Theater patrons, the stock is widely held by the public. At the time Fox entered the Loew pictures it was reported that he had acquired control of a block of 450,000 shares.

1 DEAD, 2 HURT IN AUTO CRASH

One man is dying at the City Hospital with a fracture of the hip, while another was seriously injured as a result of an automobile crash at Exeter st. and Huntington ave., early today.

Those injured are: A. Gallinetti, 34 and single, of Falmouth st., Back Bay; Joseph Gangarossa, 20 and single, of Decatur st., Roxbury.

Gallinetti has a fractured hip and internal injuries. His name is on the danger list. Gangarossa has contusions and abrasions of both legs and the right elbow.

According to the police of the Back Bay station, the accident happened when a sedan crashed into a taxi.

Both machines were badly damaged and the two men in the sedan were rushed in the City Hospital in the ambulance of the Back Bay police station. No arrests were made.

Tech Man Wins $3000 Paris Prize

Adjudged winner of the national competition in architecture conducted by the Society of Beaux Arts in Paris, Joseph D. Murphy, student of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, was awarded the 22d prize, $3000, and privilege of studying in Paris for two and one-half years.

Murphy, whose home is in Kansas City, won the Fontainbleau scholarship at Technology last year and was studying at the French Academy when he entered the national competition. He completed a special course at Tech Architectural School last June.

Salient Points of Bidding

Auction: South, with high-card values distributed in three suits and a six-card secondary suit, has a choice between a No Trump and a suit bid. The fact that his six-card suit is a Major, together with the fact that the distribution favors a suit rather than a No Trump bid, dictates the choice made. South's rebid of Spades following East's two Diamond bid was fully justified by the values held.

Contract: The salient points of difference between the Auction and Contract bidding are, first, the fact that North, following West's pass, assists instead of passing his partner's Spade bid; and, second, that South, while holding but one rebid if unassisted by partner, holds two rebids after such assist, and these he makes following East's three Diamond overcall.

The Play

The play of this hand is not difficult. West opens with the 4 of Diamonds. East winning with the 10. East, knowing that West can hold but one more Diamond, if that, plays his Ace, followed by a small Diamond, to give West, if possible, a ruff in the suit. South must, of course, trump with the 10, as the only Spade by which he could be over-ruffed would be the Ace. The 10 holding the trick, South must now lead a trump. East, winning with the Ace, has no return except a Heart, which South wins. South then exhausts trumps and successfully finesses Clubs, making four odd on the hand.

Florence Intends to Cook John's Meals

Plainville, Conn., Sept. 6—Being a housewife will be no more difficult and certainly more thrilling than being a social debutante, according to Florence Trumbull, daughter of Governor John H. Trumbull, who will become Mrs. John Coolidge, Sept. 23.

"There is no reason why I can't be as good a housewife as any other girl," she said. "I'm quite able to cook—not everything, of course—and I intend to do it all myself."

She was mildly offended when it was suggested that perhaps 7 a. m. would be too early an hour for her to awaken to make John's breakfast before he left their Westville apartment for the New Haven Railroad offices at New Haven, where he is employed as clerk.

"Of course, I intend to make his breakfast," she said vehemently. "Other wives do. Why shouldn't I?"

The Coolidge household, like the administration of Calvin Coolidge when he was President, will be regulated by a strict budget. What it will be she doesn't quite know yet, she said, "because it will require a little experimenting."

"We'll have no maids or servants of any kind. For that matter," she said, "it would be an extravagance—an unnecessary luxury."

The kitchen is the type that the average woman would call "just too sweet." It is entirely white, from the walls to the combination porcelain sink and tub.

The dining room and living room are as comfortably large as apartment rooms can be. The latter fronts on the court next to the "half-room." The dining room faces the next-door yard, in which there is a large, friendly-looking old apple tree, whose branches spread just over the apartment windows.

The living room will be a snug spot for young Coolidge when he returns from his clerical duties in the New Haven railroad offices in the Yellow building in New Haven. Its walls are white and softened and the walnut doors and silver-gray painted woodwork lend it an air of cheerfulness. There are numerous side light sconces which glow softly.

The bedroom windows look out over the court yard, with its evergreen shrubbery and hydrangea bushes, now in bloom.

At the present time, the apartment is still occupied, but by mid-September it will be empty and after a few minor alterations will be ready for occupancy by the Coolidges.

Appeals for Return of Missing Wife

Mrs. J. A. Hodgman, 45, formerly of St. Botolph st., Back Bay, who has been absent from home since last Sunday, is being sought by her husband, who is about to undergo a serious operation, and needs his wife's aid in arranging his affairs.

An appeal has been made for assistance in locating her. Mrs. Hodgman is asked to communicate with her husband's physician, Dr. William F. Boos of 196 Beacon st.

Quadruplets at School

St. John, N. B., Sept. 6—Christmas quadruplets have begun to go to school. They are three girls and a boy, children of Mr. and Mrs. William Mahaney, born December 25, 1923. The boy has to be in a different classroom than his sisters.

Plane, Forced Down, Just Misses Chimney

Dublin, N. H., Sept. 6—Lieut. James N. Lanert, pilot of the Granite State Flying School in Keene, encountering a fog bank over Dublin, was forced to make an emergency landing on a field at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Trudell, near the Charcoal road.

He barely missed Trudell's chimney and trees, and landed on a "hog back" field. It will be necessary to dismantle the wings of the plane in order to get it out onto the highway.

City Employe to Wed; Given Purse

Miss C. Lorraine Walsh of Ashford st., Allston, clerk in charge of complaints in the central office of the Public Works Department at City Hall Annex, was the recipient of a purse of money, presented in honor of her coming marriage. The presentation was made on behalf of the office force.

Miss Walsh is to be married to James E. Tobin, Boston College, 1925, and a professor of English at Fordham University, New York.

$10,000 Bail Asked in Kidnaping Case

George T. Sexton of Clarence st., Roxbury, who gave himself up at the Dudley st. station upon learning that the police wanted him in connection with the alleged kidnaping of Joseph Sherman, was arraigned before Chief Justic Hall in the Superior Court on that charge. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $10,000 pending trial.

George Gilbert and John J. Roach are also held in the same case.

Priest Reports Rectory Robbery

West Springfield, Sept. 6—Rev. John A. O'Connell, pastor of the Immaculate Conception Church, reported to the police that burglars entered the rectory and after ransacking desks and clothing escaped with $33 and a solid gold watch valued at $500. The watch was presented to Fr. O'Connell by his parents, in recognition of the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood.

The burglars also went through the clothing of Rev. William A. O'Toole, the curate, whose room is opposite that of the pastor, but nothing of value was taken from him.

TARIFF DEBATE EXPECTED ON MONDAY

Washington, Sept. 6—The combination of Democrats and Republican independents in the Senate, which for weeks held to the export debenture plan in the Farm Relief bill against the wishes of President Hoover, was renewed to oppose the Administration group in the pending tariff bill contest.

As a result of an agreement as to procedure reached between Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, and Senator Borah of Idaho, spokesman for the Western Farm State group, the effort to limit the tariff revision to agriculture will be deferred. After the Senate reconvenes Monday, a motion will be made to start debate on the administration provisions of the Republican measure.

Robinson contended the merits of the bill should be debated first and said that after the country was adequately acquainted with the changes proposed by the finance committee majority in the House measure, many Democrats would favor a motion to recommit, similar to the Borah resolution which lost by one vote last June.

SEEK TAX INFORMATION

In announcing the "understanding" between the two groups, Borah would not go into details, but he said the independents would have no objection to deferring a recommittal motion, if it was decided to make one, until after the debate had proceeded a while.

Senator Smoot of Utah, in charge of the bill for the Finance Committee majority, said he would not object to consideration of the administrative provisions first, so the first clash on the tariff itself seems destined to revolve around these sections in the final part of the bill.

Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, will move that the administrative sections be dealt with at the opening of debate, but before doing so he will seek a vote on his proposal to obtain from the Treasury for the information of the Senate membership, a record of such profits and losses of tax payers as may be disclosed in income tax returns.

SCORES HOOVER STAND

Existing law provides that such information may be furnished only to two or three congressional committees in executive session, but Sen. Simmons believes it is discretionary with these committees to turn over this data to members of Congress. Under the resolution, the taxpayers whose financial status would be brought to the light would be those who, in the opinion of the full committee, or Republican or Democratic groups thereon, would be affected by the tariff bill.

Sen. Robinson dictated a long statement to newspapermen, in which he outlined the Democratic program and charged President Hoover with an unwillingness to "exercise his leadership for the purpose of causing the enactment of a just measure—that is a measure which will distribute as nearly equally as possible the effect of the tariff on prices."

He predicted a vigorous stand would be taken by the Democrats against the flexible provisions of the present law, as amended by the House and finance committee Republicans, which gives the President power to readjust rates up or down as much as 50 per cent. and against the proposed transfer to domestic instead of foreign valuation as the basis for assessing ad valorem duties.

CANOE UPSETS, YOUTH SAVED

Arthur H. Rourke, 20, a Harvard student, was rescued by two other youths when his canoe capsized 200 yards off the Bayside shore, Hull, in overturning the canoe hit Rourke's head and stunned him, but he managed to keep afloat until his rescuers, Thomas Hayden, 18, and John Finnerty, 20, both of P st., Allerton, arrived.

They were working on a motor boat beached on the shore when they saw the canoe tip over. They immediately put out to aid and reached Rourke just as he started to sink. They pulled him into their boat and took him ashore, where he was revived and treated at a neighboring cottage.

Ukulele Mileage No Good

Joan McSheehy Albina Osipowich

Champion swimmers were on their way to their homes in Massachusetts from Hawaii when they discovered after boarding a train in Chicago that they had lost their railroad tickets. The conductor said their ukes were no good for railroad fare. Miss McSheehy lives in Whitinsville and Miss Osipowich in Worcester. (International Newsreel photo.)

SEEK TO CHECK IMMIGRATION

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP)—More than two weeks before the gavel calls the House back into session, there has arisen a demand for the organization of the House immigration committee, so that it may be ready to tackle the Mexican immigration problem in the early days of the regular session.

While it is asserted that certain defects in several of the immigration bills passed in the closing weeks of the 70th Congress exist and should be corrected, labor has grown among some of the committee members that it should be organized early to renew its work on a western hemisphere restriction measure.

The old box bill on which extended hearings were held in the last Congress must be revised, he pointed out, if it is to be reintroduced, since, as the measure stood, it would have applied the old quota regulations to Western Hemisphere nations. Since the hearings on that measure, the national origins provisions have gone into effect, and some changes would be necessary if the bill is to be made to fit the existing quota laws.

However, some members of the committee have come to believe that other means than quota limitations might be worked out for dealing with Mexican immigration. They pointed out that special methods were worked out for handling the Japanese and Chinese problems, and suggested that special legislation might be written to halt the procession of Mexicans they say are coming into competition with American laborers.

Appeals to Save Nine From Potter's Field

Two women and [illegible]en men, unfortunates who were caught in the cruel drift of life and died friendless and penniless face burial in Potter's Field unless someone soon claims the bodies.

Medical Examiner Leary feels sure that somewhere there is someone who cared [illegible] several of the [illegible] he has had the police for months searching for relatives. All their efforts have failed.

The police had few clues on which to work. All nine of the men and women came from tenements in the South End. Their only homes before their death were cheap little rooms in the lodging house district.

The history of the nine cases are, briefly, as follows.

John F. Palmer, 75 years old. He had a room on Sharon st. His landlady knew nothing about him, except that he went to work every day and paid his room rent regularly. One night he went out for a walk. An automobile struck him and his battered body was brought to City Hospital, where he died.

Carl Petersen, 62, lived on West Springfield st. He died at the City Hospital July 21. The police believe he has relatives in Stockholm, Sweden, and possibly some around Boston.

Hannah Quinn, 38, had a room on Bradford st. She died at the City Hospital June 8. That is all the authorities know about her. Grace Rock, between 40 and 45 years old, lived on Tremont st., before they took her to the hospital. She never recovered.

Among her meagre possessions were a pathetic little bunch of letters written in French and postmarked "Fall River." But they proved worthless as clues for the police. They feel her name might have one time been LaRocque.

John McKenzie, 40, worked as an ice man in the South End and lived in a room on Village st. But nobody knows any more about him than that.

The other four men did not even have a name as far as the police could learn. They range in years from 35 to 60. Two of them were found in doorways by police making their rounds at night. Their hearts had given out.

WOMEN VOTERS PLAN FALL PROGRAM

The first fall meeting of the board of directors of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters was held at the League headquarters at which important appointments were made, gifts received and plans for future work decided.

Details of the fall business meeting, which is to be held at the Copley-Plaza on October 30, were discussed, as well as arrangements for a League exhibit under the direction of Mrs. Robert E. Stebbins at the Eastern States Exposition, in Springfield during the week of September 15.

Miss Marie Wise of Boston, who has been associated with the Federal National Bank for the last six years, was appointed as office manager of the State League, and Mrs. Louis C. Hunter of Cambridge was appointed as chairman of the standing committee on living costs, following her resignation as field secretary which was occasioned by Dr. Hunter's appointment to the faculty of Smith College and the consequent move of Dr. and Mrs. Hunter to Northampton.

Mrs. Roland M. Baker presented the proceeds of a fair held at her farm in North Hampton, N. H., under the joint auspices of the Massachusetts and New Hampshire Leagues of Women Voters, for the purpose of furthering Child Welfare activities within the Leagues of both states. More than $500 was raised, half of which Mrs. Baker assigned to the Child Welfare Department of the Massachusetts League of Women Voters.

New York 'Policy King' Arrested

New York, Sept. 6—The game of "numbers," in which bets are laid on a combination of daily clearing house figures, led Fred Buchanan, Harlem's so-called "Policy King," into the toils of the law.

Two detectives charged him with misdemeanor gambling, after allegedly confiscating $30,000 and some "policy slips" in his home here. Buchanan was held in $5000 bail for further examination.

New Bomb Scare Is Revealed in Berlin

Berlin, Sept. 6 (AP)—Another scare was listed in Germany's series of bomb outrages today when an unexploded bomb concealed in a paper-wrapped conserve jar was found in a corridor of a branch postoffice near the Alexander Platz police headquarters station.

It is supposed the attackers were frightened before they could finish their preparations.

Nicaragua Consul Seized in Theft

Los Angeles, Sept. 6—The arrest of William Elizondo, consul of Nicaragua at San Diego, Calif., for his alleged embezzlement of funds from a bank there became known with his arraignment before the United States commissioner.

The nature of the alleged embezzlement was not announced pending check by bank examiners of the records. Elizondo was said to have been employed at the institution.

CANNON'S SON IN U. S. JOB PROTESTED

Washington, Sept. 6—Senator Tydings of Maryland made public a letter he sent to the civil service commission asking why Edward Lee Cannon, son of Bishop Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist-Episcopal Church, South, holds a clerical position in the census bureau here when he does not possess required civil service status.

Tydings pointed out that Cannon was reported to be receiving $2400 salary in a temporary place to which he was appointed without examinations under civil service regulations.

"During several months," Tydings wrote, "I have recommended for temporary appointment in the census bureau a number of persons not on the civil service register, but the invariable reply of W. M. Steuart, director of the census bureau, has been that no person would be appointed except from the certified lists."

Tydings asked whether the rule requiring examinations had been abrogated.

Entertainment at Dummer Academy

Newburyport, Sept. 6—Lang gym, Dummer Academy, was well filled when an entertainment was given for the benefit of the fund being raised by the Dummer Allies to provide scholarships. The program included a play, "The Bishop's Candlesticks," and those participating were Rev. Glenn Tilley Morse, Francis J. Reagan, Miss Gertrude Duffy, Miss Harriet Mannix, Chester F. Pierce, John M. Capron, Frederick W. Parsons. There were baritone solos by John Pierce and piano solos by J. Angus Winter.

THREE OFFICERS GO ON TRIAL IN SEA TRAGEDY

San Francisco, Sept. 6—Three deck officers of the passenger liner San Juan and the oil tanker S. C. T. Dodd, which collided near here a week ago with the loss of 71 or more lives, are held for trial Wednesday before the U. S. Board of Steamboat Inspectors.

Those ordered held are: Capt. H. O. Bleumchen, master of the Dodd Ott V. Saunders, third officer of the Dodd, and Robert Pappenfuss, third officer of the San Juan.

The three were formally charged with "inattention to duty and unskilfulness in the navigation of their respective ships."

Capt. Adolph Asplund of the San Juan went down with his ship, which was rammed by the Dodd in a fog.

The two third officers were on duty just before the crash.

Placing of the charges followed a two-day hearing, at which crewmen of the two ships and rescued passengers of the San Juan testified.

Pappenfuss testified that he first sighted the port light of the Dodd about two miles away through the gathering fog. He told of the lookout on the San Juan suddenly reporting the starboard light of the Dodd only 400 feet distant. It was then both ships reversed their engines. A few moments later the Dodd crashed into the passenger liner amidships.

The San Juan officer declared it would have required 10 minutes to have stopped the forward movement of his ship, even with the engines driving full speed astern.

Pupils Hired for Work Back in School

Bristol, R. I., Sept. 6—Forty-three of the 96 children of this town recently discharged by officials of two manufacturing plans because they were not of legal working age are back at school, according to a statement by Supt. William J. Harper.

The children had obtained employment certificates through false [illegible] work attests by former Secretary of Schools Bertram W. Wall, according to Supt. Harper.

Robbers Hit Victim Who Had Only 25c.

Twenty-five cents, all he had in his pockets, today netted Stephen Dlusnak, 38, of Lynnfield st. Peabody, two punches in the jaw by three men who stopped him on the corner of Medford st. and broadway, Chelsea, as he was driving his team of vegetables to Boston markets.

After asking Dlusnak where he was going, and asking for a cigarette, the three men, one a negro, attacked him, and searched him for money. After finding only twenty-five cents, they punched him, and fled.

A passing automobile was stopped by Dlusnak, and chase was started. One man was caught and taken to Chelsea police station, where he gave his name as Patrick Ridge, 40, of Brooks st., East Boston.

HAUL MAN OUT OF CHANNEL

An unidentified man, about 45 years of age was rescued from drowning in Fort Point channel near the Dorchester st. bridge, by William Kelley of Union Park st., South End. The rescued man is lying at the City Hospital from immersion.

Kelley saw the man struggling in the water and dived in and rescued the man was close to [illegible] Albany st. side and an ambulance was [illegible] the scene almost immediately.

The man is described as being five feet six inches in height, dark complexion, black hair, blue eyes. He was wearing a blue coat, brown trousers, brown shoes, brown cap and blue shirt.

HELP SPEED UP "LUCKY BUCK" PRIZES

By WON LUCKY BILL

Those lucky bucks are arriving back home—but their pace is slow. Help speed them up. Make some easy money.

The old $1 bills are the lucky bucks which I've put into circulation for you to find. And if you find one of them I'll pay you a big dividend. My dividends range from 3 to 1 to 20 to 1, and occasionally I offer 50, and even 100 to 1. So watch my column daily and be ready to collect when I fire the gun.

Three more lucky holders of three mysterious old $1 bills cashed in yesterday. One was for $20. One was for $10 and one was for $5. That's how the e-z money game of mine goes. You are invited to get in. Compare your old $1 bills with the serial numbers in the Boston American every day. If one of your bills has a serial number corresponding to the number in the Boston, American, then hurry in and see me. Bring along the bill and I'll pay you off quickly.

Dennis Maguire, 125 Branch st., Lowell, brought in lucky buck A37614258E. It was a winner for $20.

James J. Bellew, 190 Eustis st., Roxbury, cashed in A35962971D for $10.

Sixteen more winners will be added to the list in Saturday's Evening American. Watch for them. The list now totals $170 worth of lucky dollar bills in circulation.

CLARKE'S, INC., OPENS TODAY

Clarke's, Inc., New England's latest entrant to the retail radio industry, through their association with one of New England's largest buying syndicates, will assume at once the role of one of the largest radio retailing firms in this territory by virtue of the many outstanding nationally advertised radio receiving lines on display when this concern with beautifully appointed display and salesrooms at 10 Boylston street, Boston, just around the corner from Washington street, in the Continental building, opens its doors today for public inspection and demonstration of 1930 model creations of practically every popular nationally known radio manufacturer.

On the merit of the undertaking and influenced by the backing of powerful financial resources, Clarke's, Inc., have received franchises of authorised dealers such as Atwater Kent, Radiola, Victor, Colin B. Kennedy, Amrad, Majestic, Brandes, Kolster, Crosley, Colonial, Steinite, Zenith and Stromberg-Carlson radio receivers in all models. The policy of the establishment from the outset will be to promote and sell only those radios that, through consistent national advertising and proven merit, have gained the confidence of the radio public from coast to coast.

CLARKE'S, INC., BOSTON'S LATEST RADIO STORE AT 10 BOYLSTON STREET
Located just around the corner from Washington st., on Boylston st., this new concern will retail at accepted prices the foremost nationally advertised radio lines.

For weeks Clarke's executives have worked night and day linking every branch of activity together, in order that the organization might function promptly, efficiently and permanently, once the doors are officially opened. Working on the theory that a sale does not and never should terminate with the purchase, Clarke's have devised a thorough method to promote absolute satisfaction with every sale.

SERVICING KEYNOTE

"Under ideal conditions to be found in most radio display rooms of retail stores," Mr. Clarke remarked upon outlining the policies of the concern, "radio receivers acquit themselves nobly in reproducing the programs of radio stations with startling fidelity of volume and quality.

"Upon proper installation of a radio receiver in the home everything depends. This angle will be the prime requisite of our servicing department.

FREE INSPECTION

"Within a week or 10 days following the installation of a radio in homes in and around Boston purchased from our showrooms, a Clarke's inspector or so-called field man will conduct a tour of the different localities calling on our clients to ascertain just how the set is functioning. It will be his duty to thoroughly check each department of the receiver to determine whether every working part is performing its duty. He will act as sort of an advisor, suggesting methods of avoiding electrical interference and in general giving hints on how to improve reception and obtain the maximum efficiency from his receiver."

The servicing and installation department of Clarke's will be aided by a fleet of fast delivery trucks that will insure delivery and installation of radios with minimum delay. Every part of the city will be in the scope of this speedy delivery service.

ADDITIONAL SERVICES

"Every radio set on exhibition at Clarke's, Inc.," according to Mr. Clarke, "will be sold at nationally advertised prices and a free inspection will be made of each set after the delivery.

"These services we feel duty bound to perform; to us they are part of a contract we make when a sale is made and must be fulfilled before the bargain terminates."

ATTRACTIVE INTERIOR

Two large show windows, one on each side of the store's entrance at 10 Boylston st., give prominent display to the lines carried. The entrance leads into a wide corridor, which is flanked on each side by a row of booths, given over to the demonstration of each individual set. These booths are divided from one another by thick velvet curtains of a striking red hue, suspended from brass rods. The front of each booth is hung with smaller pieces of red velvet, on which the trade name of the set exhibited and demonstrated there is neatly embroidered in gold letters. Ample space has been reserved in each of the booths to accommodate two or three models of the same make radio, so that a customer may hear the various priced sets without moving from the enclosure.

POWER SUPPLY PLUGS

Two cables totally shielded with copper tubing extend all around the walls in the rear of the booths. One of the cables is utilized for ground and antenna connections and the other for a power supply. There are three sets of antenna and ground and power supply plugs in each booth, affording a swift switch-over to one of the other model receivers. With the throw of a switch in each and every booth, members of the sales force can readily demonstrate and compare the performances of the "famous name radios," affording the buyer an instantaneous check with the set of his liking.

Sufficient space has been provided in the interior of Clarke's for future expansion. As soon as the radio market presents any new feature in radio Clarke's will present it to the public.

PRIVATE TERMS DISCUSSIONS

A convenient and lenient deferred payment plan has been arranged to lighten the burden of purchasing a modern radio set.

For the purpose of negotiating the terms of sale of a radio receiver the management has set aside an audition room. Here in a large room, enclosures have been constructed where the customers may discuss the terms of the sale in the strictest confidence with his salesman. Mr. Clarke made a point to institute this courtesy as an additional Clarke's service to the public.

The interior of the store is brilliantly illuminated by a series of powerful drop lights. On the walls above the booths personage tapestries of rich design are suspended, lending a distinctive atmosphere to the entire radio salon. The floor is covered with thick, pliable linoleum in attractive block pattern. In the center of the space separating the two rows of booths comfortable Cogswell chairs, together with descriptive material of all the radio lines handled, may be found.

EXPERIENCED STAFF

Headed by Ernest H. Clarke, this new radio store will have a staff of experienced salesmen on hand to serve their customers. Most of the staff are men who have handled all types of radio receivers and products and are familiar with the developments incorporated in the 1930 models. Mr. Clarke and his staff have been actively associated with radio for 10 years, covering practically every phase from factory to retail. For the past two and a half years he was connected with one of Boston's most prominent radio retail stores, where he acquired a large following. Since 1910 Mr. Clarke, as an experimenter, has "dickered" with radio, and kept close contact with the development of the now great industry.

This radio retailing outlet opening to the public today and tomorrow, is the first of a contemplated chain of stores to be established in New England, it is rumored.

OTHER STORE FEATURE

In the rear end of the store, just behind the rooms occupied by the executive office and that devoted to confidential conversations, a modern workshop for repairing and servicing has been set aside. Modern tube testing and other assisted equipment for checking the fidelity of tone and testing vital working parts of the sets' radio departments will be manned by men skilled in all technical aspects of radio. Not only will every set on demonstration in the store's salon be thoroughly overhauled, but each set delivered and every corresponding tube. In this manner, Mr. Clarke hopes to avoid that irksome delay customers experience when either the set, tubes or both must be returned because the apparatus was not in first class shape when delivered.

With the thought in mind of accommodating busy husbands and others unable to shop during the day, Clarke's will be open every evening until 9 p. m. for their convenience.

Clarke's, Inc., Radio Retail Store, May Broadcast Soon

Within a very short time Clarke's, Inc., the new radio retail store holding open house to the public today and tomorrow at 10 Boylston st., will be heard on the air presenting a program from one of the Boston radio stations.

The new concern tentatively plans to feature a broadcast of popular appeal unique in theme, in appreciation of the patronage of the radio public.

INTERIOR OF CLARKE'S RADIO SALON SHOWING INDIVIDUAL BOOTHS
On each side of the main entrance a row of six booths, one for each separate make of radio receiver, have been installed. In the rear executive offices and a complete radio laboratory may be found.

RADIO NOTES -:- PROGRAMS -:- PERSONALITIES ON THE AIR

LISTENING IN

THERE'S great doings in Schradertown tonight. Gus and Louie, garage partners, add the final blow to their friendship when each declares himself the candidate for fire chief. The resulting fracas will be reported between selections which the Schradertown band, under the lead ership of "Pop," will broadcast tonight through WEEI and NBC system. Life had begun to settle down to normal, with Louie again engaged to the Widow Biddie, when the townsmen decided to organize a fire department. With Gus and Louie apparently on even terms, how will the race end?

Mary and Bob, the interesting young couple of the True Story hour, will present a "stunt night" to take place aboard a steamer bound for San Francisco. The broadcast will come through WNAC at 9 o'clock with Bob acting as master of ceremonies and introducing the passengers, who will contribute songs, music and recitations. After the festivities, the two tourists will be told a story of danger and daring and perilous stunts performed by members of a flying circus. The radio audience will learn that the real danger lurked not so much in the chance mishaps in an airplane as in the jealous hearts of two men in love with the same girl.

RAYMOND KNIGHT, author of the Tradamas, heard every Friday night over Station WBZ at 8 o'clock, has chosen as the title for tonight's sketch, "The Rover Boys Become Bookmakers." Without a doubt, this hilarious moment from history will be just as entertaining as those of the past, but the plot of the story will remain a secret until the program takes the air. Cist Gabriel Brunswick artist of Worcester, will be guest soloist and Phillips Carlin will act as master of ceremonies.

BROADCAST directors and announcers of 45 of the most powerful radio stations of the country—men whose voices fill the air with smiles and music for millions of listeners—have enlisted themselves in the quest for America's best young voices. During the next two months, in assuring the 1923 National Radio Audition, they will put on the air the voices of hundreds of young singers competing in the finals for this national contest.

Following the example of Keith McLeod, famous supervisor of music of the National Broadcasting Company and composer of the "Slumber Song" heard nightly by tens of thousands, the directors of great broadcast centers throughout the continent have welcomed the audition as an opportunity to cooperate in finding new voices for their own use as well as to promote the purposes of the Atwater Kent Foundation, sponsor of the auditions. The ten best young men and woman singers as judged in this series of auditions, will share in $25,000 cash awards and ten musical scholarships.

THE EXCITEMENT and atmosphere of an old-time dime museum will furnish the setting for the program of the Dixie Circus to be broadcast through WBZ and the NBC system this evening. Bob Sherwood will give his impression of a tattooed artist haranguing the crowd. The ballyhoo and drama of the pawnshop trial and the big top will be faithfully reproduced.

The program to be broadcast at Bremer Tully time, 10 o'clock, over station WNAC and the Colonial Broadcasting System, offers for the judgment of the radio audience a variety of numbers of general vocal merit, culled from current musical comedies and from old favorites in the ballad field. Ballots from among the unseen audience are expected to show definite likes and dislikes of the listeners-in, and will form an excellent background upon which future broadcasts may be built. The complete program follows:

"This Is Heaven"
"Red Hair and Freckles" Orchestra

"Little Grey Home in the West"
Salon Orchestra
"Paean Love Song"
Quartet
"How Was It to Know"
Dance Orchestra—Vocal Chorus

RCA 333 COMES BY AIRPLANE

As an added feature of Clarke's, Inc., opening today and tomorrow, the management will display and demonstrate the RCA latest air a console model known as the "333," with its new loud speaker. In an attractive cabinet, which will retail at a very low price.

This will be the only set of its type on exhibition at this time in New England. Three and trans- of negotiations Clarke's was promised the advanced demonstration model of this new receiver. The model "333" was shipped by the Airvia route from New York; its plane landing at Fort Point Channel late yesterday afternoon was met by Bruce Stewart, manager of [illegible]

CHINESE JAIL COMMUNISTS

Mukden, Manchuria, Sept. 6—Charged with Communistic activities against the Chinese government, 1114 Russians, including 71 women, are reported held in an internment camp near the Sungari river.

Provincial authorities also arrested two Russian wire chiefs, employes of the telegraphic and telephonic service of the Chinese Eastern Railroad. Both were charged with betraying military secrets to the Soviet Republic.

The entire group of prisoners, accused Communists and accused spies alike, will be tried individually by a chief justice and eight associate justices. Chinese officials announced today. It was admitted that it will be "some time" before the arraignments can be completed.

Pending the hearings, the men and women in confinement have been cut off from all contact with the outside world. Friends and relatives will be permitted to bring food and clothing to the prison camp inmates, but all conversation and correspondence is banned.

Boy Kidnaped; $8000 Theft

New York, Sept. 6—As he waited in an auto outside his employer's home, Salvatore Piro, 28, was kidnaped by two armed men who drove the car away taking with them sample jewelry valued at $8000.

Not All Play for Wizard

END OF TROLLEY STRIKE NEAR

New York, Sept. 6—Representatives of the American Federation of Labor and the New Orleans Public Service, Inc., reached a tentative agreement here for the settlement of the two-months-old New Orleans street car strike.

A. B. Paterson, vice-president and general manager of New Orleans Public Service, Inc; William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and W. J. Mahon, president of the Amalgamated Street and Electric Railway Employes of America, carried on the negotiations.

Edwin Devroux, president of the New Orleans carmen's local, and Edward Righter, counsel for the strikers, announced they would leave for New Orleans today to submit the agreement to the vote of the carmen for their "approval or disapproval."

G. E. Soccer League

General Electric Employes A. A. has organized an eight-team soccer league, John Donnelly, who is managing the representative G. E. team up in the Bay State senior league, hopes to develop a few stars in the Interworks' League.

Traffic Is Blocked On Turnpike By Giant Turtle

Along the Newburyport Turnpike in the vicinity of the Four Corners, Saugus, hordes of motorists are seeking a view of a new visitor to the swamps which held up traffic for an hour when it leisurely crossed the Pike and soon disappeared.

This kinsman of the serpent family, as large around as the top of a sugar barrel, sauntered leisurely across the road while motorists halted.

Merger Expected in Lowell Plant

Lowell, Sept. 6—The American Hide & Leather Co., which has a plant in Perry st., may soon be involved in a merger, according to President Carl Danner. There has been some talk of consolidation he said, but what companies may be included has not been determined as yet.

At present the company is installing an addition to its refrigeration system, which will enable the local unit to store skins which can be bought more cheaply in the summer.

FETE HAMMOND, BEAUDREAU

Worcester, Sept. 6—Judge Raoul H. Beaudreau and Judge Thomas J. Hammond, recent appointees to the Massachusetts Superior Court bench, were given a complimentary dinner by the Worcester County Bar Association at the Wachusett Country Club in West Boylston.

Among the guests were Chief Justice Arthur P. Rugg of the Supreme Court and Judges Philip J. O'Connell, Winfred H. Whiting and William Burns of the Superior Court.

Attorney James C. Donnelly of this city, president of the Bar Association, presided, and after the dinner brief addresses were given by Chief Justice Rugg and Judges Beaudreau and Hammond.

Vanderbilt to Hunt

Charlottetown, P. E. I., Sept. 6 (AP)—The American yacht Ara returning from a world cruise, has arrived to port with her owner William K. Vanderbilt and a party of friends. They sail today for St. John and will go on a hunting trip through New Brunswick.

Novelty..

Novelty..Novelty..Novelty in the new Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package

When Alice Bradley unites two new flavors each week for the Fro-joy 2-flavor pint package, she sees to it that the combination is far from "just the usual thing".

The result is a perfect harmony blend . . . a fascinating, new taste-tempter . . . a lovely fusion of delicate colors . . . a dessert which you'll be proud to serve at any function.

No matter what you've discovered about ice creams before, no matter what you've paid . . . . you'll never find one more wholesomely pure and delicious than Fro-joy.

Sweet country cream, fresh fruits, mellow flavorings . . . up-to-the-moment scientific improvements for manufacturing in a spotlessly clean environment . . . are the reasons for this superlative goodness. But taste a spoonful! There's the whole delicious story!

Boy Scout Dies Saving Sister From Fire

The Boy Scout with his room blanketed with flames, rushed across the hall to his little sister and, while the fire licked at his back, lowered her to the ground with bedsheets. The girl was burned badly before her brother arrived.

James then wrapped a sheet around his head and leaped. His father, J. E. Hopper, 30, street railway conductor, and his mother, stood helplessly at the foot of crumbling stairs and watched the flames devour the only avenue to their children. Hopper was burned seriously trying to climb the stairs.

Miss Edna Hopper, 17, the oldest daughter, was burned and bruised when she leaped from a second-story window. James died at a hospital. He was conscious and talked about the fire, praying that "little sister will get well."

"Little sister" probably will not recover, doctors said.

SAYS STRIKERS CRIED 'SHOOT'

Gastonia, N. C., Sept. 6—A. J. Roach, former Gastonia police officer, testifying today in the trial of 16 mill strikers charged with murder, said that a guard had tried to stop law officers when they entered the grounds occupied by strikers; that four men inside the labor hall drew shotguns on them when they went to the door and that men, women and children had cried out, "Shoot them, shoot them," as they were walking away.

Then followed the shots from knot holes inside the building, Police Chief O. F. Aderholt being shot down by a load from a shotgun.

SPEED SQUAD GETS ANOTHER

The newly organized speedster squad, institution of Capt. William W. Livingston of station 15, Charlestown, to curb boy speedsters in that district, brought in another of the alleged offenders in the person of Paul Dowyer, 15, of High st.

On Tuesday night last, he and another took a sedan, the property of a Roxbury man, drove madly about Charlestown and collided with the fence at the base of the Bunker Hill Monument on Monument st., then abandoned the car, according to the police.

ASKS COURT TO RECOVER FORTUNE FROM WIFE

Police Accuse Doctor as Driver of Hit-and-Run Auto

By FRED TOYE

FORMER GOVERNOR FULLER'S summer home at Little Boar's Head, North Hampton, N. H., is fully as beautiful and spacious as the Fuller Beacon st. home. A new wing has just been built, housing a magnificent music room designed largely along lines suggested by Mrs. Fuller. This room contains several old masters, including the famous "Blue Boy" by Gainsborough. Directly above the music room is a tea room done in old English pine panelling.

THE FOUR FULLER children have the constant companionship of their parents. They share their mother's love for fine music, and they take a lively interest in the doings of their illustrious father, whether they concern matters of public life or the routine direction of the estate and the nearby Runnymead Farm.

INTERESTING are former Governor Fuller's views on the responsibilities of parents and his hopes for his children. It would not surprise him to see Lydia, the elder girl, take up business in a serious way, he has said to me.

"Responsibility of parents is one of the most interesting subjects in the world," he said. "Perhaps I am particularly keen on this subject, because public duties have taken me away from home so much that it has caused me no little concern as to my right to neglect my children. But I have been comforted by the thought that they were still young and that service in politics could be easily terminated without the termination being necessarily voluntary.

"SOMEONE has said that the greatest thing parents can do for their children is done for them when they are born," he continued. "I believe that is true. What the children inherit from their parents accounts for a good many of the situations they get into later in life—the handicaps or advantages under which they pursue their careers. The time will come when our school principals and teachers will aid students to choose their vocation, for too many children who plainly snow their bent.

"I DO NOT want to browbeat my children into forming opinions about anything. On the other hand, I realize not one whit that I had done my duty if I did not have a pronounced opinion on any essential matter having to do with their health, prosperity, occupation and domestic future. Surely a parent should have advice for the most precious of his possessions, his children. My advice may not be sought, but I have a notion that it will be, and I shall try to have the right answer.

"I AM GOING to leave entirely to the future the boys' possible participation in my business. In fact, of all my children, I should say that Lydia would be the one to go into business, and personally, I think it would be a good career for some women. I should like to see more women go into business, hang out shingles and match their wits with men. I have seen a number of women who have gone into one business or another, and it has been a great outlet for their ambition and ability. I think that it must give them a great feeling of security and self-confidence which they could not enjoy in any other way. I hope my children's future will lie in New England. I think that New England is the finest place in the world to be born in, and in which to work out one's destiny. I have never wanted to leave here."

LIFE'S FONDEST dream will be realized for the former governor when he sits in the Harvard Stadium and sees Alvan

Junior, or Peter make a winning touchdown against Yale. He hopes that both boys will want to go to Harvard and that they'll make the football team.

10 Teams in K. of C. Bowling League

At a meeting of the Greater Boston Knights of Columbus bowling league the following teams were selected to start the coming season: Dorchester, North Quincy, Redbernt, Mt. Pleasant, Jamaica, Shawmut, Tremont, Ansonia, Pete Marquette and San Salvador. Each team will meet the other teams three times during the season, all matches to be rolled on the Recreation alleys.

The officers elected for the coming season are Edward Pulsifer, president, and Frank McGrath, secretary-treasurer.

BRINGS ACTION TO GET $90,000 FROM WIFE

Somerville Restaurant Owner in Plea to Recover Property

Benjamin P. Meshkonis of Conwell ave., Somerville, a Cambridge restaurateur, alleges in a bill in equity in Middlesex Superior Court that his wife, Blanche, has deposited large sums of his money in various banks under aliases or fictitious names, has ejected and locked him from his home, has threatened his life and with prosecution for non-support.

Counsel for Meshkonis obtained a temporary order in the Middlesex Court restraining his wife from transferring any of the deposits in question "pending trial. Counsel stated that approximately $90,000 is involved.

In his bill, Meshkonis alleges that since 1914 he has owned and operated a restaurant on Portland st., Cambridge, and that it has been his practice to turn the proceeds of the business over to his wife to hold in trust for him, after paying business and living expenses and allowing a reasonable sum for himself.

He bought and sold real estate, on which he made a substantial profit, he further alleges, and turned the profits over to his wife, under the same conditions. On May 12, 1922, he bought the property on Conwell ave., Somerville, for a home, he sets forth, and his wife holds the title to it.

He charges that she has confiscated his property and refuses to account for it.

He alleges in his bill that Mrs. Meshkonis has repeatedly taken money from the receipts of his business without his knowledge or consent, and that he is now unable to pay creditors.

Camera Men in Three-Day Session

The 13th annual convention of the Photographers' Association of New England and the Maritime Provinces is in the second of a three-day session at the New Ocean House, Swampscott. About 400 members are in attendance.

After the opening exercises in the first day, Pres. Leon M. Rand of Brockton presided over the business session and the reading of committees and officers' reports.

Edward Gallagher of the Boston Better Business Bureau spoke on "Fraudulent Advertising"; Miss Margaret Fuller of Jordan Marsh Company, stylist, spoke on artistic effects in the studio, and L. C. Vinton, secretary of the National Photographers' Association, spoke on "National Advertising."

Fined Three Times in One Week as Auto Speeder

Speeding three times in one week and getting caught three times was the experience of Christos Kallelis of Lynn.

He was arraigned in district court on a speeding charge and fined $50. His record showed that within the past week he had paid two previous fines of $25 and $10 on similar charges.

HOTEL STATUS UNCERTAIN

Pending negotiations seeking to extend leases held on part of the Quincy House which will expire shortly, no definite announcement has been made by interested parties concerning the future of the hostelry.

Guests who are now occupying rooms in the part of the hotel under lease by the Quincy Hotel Company, of which John C. Munro is president, have been notified to turn in their keys by next Wednesday night. This company's lease expires Sept. 25.

Albert W. Mead of Brookline, trustee of the estate of J. J. Johnson, founder of the hotel and co-grantor of the lease, said that efforts are under way to bring about the continuation of the business without interruption and it is hoped to iron out the various differences that have arisen by Oct. 1. He said reports that the hotel would close were unfounded, but admitted, however, that in the event that present negotiations fail through closing might become imperative.

Irish Missionary Visiting in Boston

Rev. Patrick O'Connor, of Kilkenny, Ireland, 23-year-old priest and one of the youngest ever ordained there, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cunningham of Roslindale.

Father O'Connor was ordained last June in Thurles Cathedral, Tipperary, for service in the foreign mission field and will be stationed first in St. Louis.

Pleads Not Guilty in Tong Slayings

Lee Sing, alias Leon Sangh, arrested charged with the murder of Yee Wah, who was killed August 5, was arraigned in the superior criminal court. He pleaded not guilty through an interpreter and was held without bail.

WARNER BALKS AT FORM OF LABOR PLEA

Says Rules for Compensation Fund Are Not Met; Turns Down Petition

Atty. Gen. Joseph E. Warner has declined to certify the form of the initiative petition of the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor to provide for a state fund for the payment of workmen's compensation.

He declared that the provisions of the initiative and referendum amendment to the State Constitution have not been complied with, in that the text of the legislation which must accompany the petition, was not made a part of the document signed by the 10 petitioners who initiated the proposal.

Warner pointed out that last July when the letter containing the petition was received by him it was noted that the signatures of the sponsors were separated from the text of the legislation asked.

The Atty. Gen. said that he called the attention of the officials of the State Branch of the American Federation of Labor to the matter but that nothing was done by them other than informing him that a copy of the legislative bill for a state fund, which they had enclosed in the envelope, was to be considered as the text.

OPPOSES CLAUSES

The attorney general said that when he read the bill through he noted that one of the paragraphs would require an injured employe to accept medical treatment whether he desired to do this or not. That provision, in itself, he felt, would prevent him from approving the petition, even if the other matter were not considered.

He intimated that if the petition is revised and his objections met he will give it consideration in its new form.

His statement follows in part:

"Article XLVIII, Part II, Section 1, prescribes that the contents of an initiative petition shall set forth the full text of the constitutional measure which is proposed by the petition.

"There was presented to me the petition of 10 qualified voters for an act to establish an exclusive State fund for the protection of those engaged in industrial pursuits and to allow employers to insure their own risks under conditions, directions and control of a State industrial commission." No 'text' of the proposed measure is 'set forth' in the petition. By mandate of the Constitution the full text of a proposed measure must be incorporated into the petition itself.

Flirt With Death in Rail Crash

Ibor Bryn, 13, of Winter st., North Woburn, who received cuts on the head when an auto and trolley collided on Main st., near Mishawum st., Charlestown. Harry Gowlon, Dexter ave., North Woburn, alleged driver of the car, escaped unhurt. Passengers on the trolley were shaken up.

HINGHAM MAN IN CRITICAL CONDITION

Arrest of Dr. Michael Dunn of Rockland Follows Crash Into R. R. Gates

Dr. Michael Dunn of Rockland will face the Hingham court today as the alleged "hit-and-run" driver who seriously injured Gannett M. Allen, 55, of Canterbury st., Hingham, in that town Thursday. The arrest was made after several hours of investigation by patrolmen William Lortie and William Arkell.

The charges against Dr. Dunn are: operating an automobile so as to endanger the lives and safety of the public and going away after an accident without making himself known.

Allen was in a serious condition at the Cohasset hospital this morning, with little hope for his recovery. He was found lying on Hull st., Hingham, after the accident.

Dr. Edward Schott, who examined him at the hospital, said he suffered concussion of the brain and lacerations of the right shoulder and leg.

Broker's Case Filed After Restitution

George Perkins, former Boston broker, who was found guilty several months ago of larceny of about $9000 from Miss Eleanor Ucelli of Newton, and was given time by Judge Fosdick to make restitution, had his case placed on file by Chief Justice Hall after Miss Ucelli told the court that Perkins had made full restitution of the amount she had given him to buy stocks for her.

Dorchester Knights Hold Outing Sunday

Chelsea to Sell Part of Playground

On request of the Chelsea Chamber of Commerce, the aldermen of that city have voted to a 11 at public auction part of Highland park, a children's playground on the east side. This action is taken because a steel structural company plans to acquire the site, located between Congress ave. extension and Marginal and Suffolk sts., and erect a huge plant. City officials propose to retain a three-acre tract in order to save the baseball field.

Woman Gets $500 Fine as Shoplifter

Mary O'Brien of Dorchester was fined $500 by Judge John J. Winn in the District Court on a charge of shoplifting.

Mrs. O'Brien was one of a quintet of three women and two men arrested here, June 14, for larceny of dresses from two stores. She was found guilty but defaulted when she failed to appear after her case had been continued for disposition.

Bill Asks Public Fishing Reserves

A bill has been filed with the clerk of the Massachusetts House of Representatives by Representative Ralph E. Otis, of Pittsfield, providing for the establishment of public fishing grounds by the State Department of Conservation.

The proposed measure gives the department authority to purchase or acquire by gift land and water to carry out the purposes of the act.

CHARGE BROOKS ALSO TRIED TO SLAY COP

Pair Nabbed in Auto After Looting of Home in Winchester

George L. Brooks and his alleged confederate, Miss Blanche A Cote, were indicted by the Middlesex County grand jury in connection with the breaks in five Greater Boston homes. Brooks also was indicted for armed assault with intent to murder Patrolman Archibald T. O'Connell of the Winchester police, who arrested them.

Miss Cote, 27-year-old brunette, whose home is on Ocean ave., Revere, awaits trial in the East Cambridge jail in bond of $13,000, while Brooks, 26, is held in bonds of $48,000.

During the early morning hours of July 17, according to the authorities, O'Connell observed Miss Cote sitting in an automobile near the home of John L. Cayting in Winchester. The officer saw Brooks come from between two houses and get into the car, the police say.

Not satisfied with response to questions which he put to the couple, Officer O'Connell got into the automobile and started for the police station, sitting on the front seat, while Brooks sat on the rear seat.

During the drive he heard a click and looked around into the muzzle of a pistol which Brooks was pointing at him, the police say. The officer grappled with Brooks and obtained possession of the pistol, which was loaded and had misfired.

It is further alleged that a fur coat taken from the Cayting home was found in the automobile and that a subsequent search of a room in Somerville, occupied by the couple, revealed a number of articles stolen from other homes.

The indictments charge Brooks and Miss Cote with breaking and entering the home of Lafayette R. Chamberlin in Winchester on July 5, and larceny from there of more than $100 worth of clothing and liquor; with breaking an entering the home of Miriam Newton in Somerville on July 11, and larceny of a watch and radio set; with breaking and entering the homes of Charles S. Teel in Medford on July 1, and larceny of jewelry and clothing; and with breaking and entering the home of Arthur L. Bacon in Arlington on July 13, and larceny of clothing.

Brooks is charged with having burglar tools in his possession and with breaking and entering the Winchester home of John L. Cayting and larceny from theft of a fur coat and $217.

Brooks is known to the authorities under the alias of Leroy Cook while Miss Cote is also known as Alma A. Cartier.

BOY SAYS MAN SHOT EYE OUT

A 13-year-old boy with one eye shot out took the stand in East Cambridge court and testified against the man charged with having committed the assault.

The boy was Paul Beaudreau of Foch st., Cambridge. The man he accused of having shot him was James Carter, 23, of 9 Pine st., Arlington.

The lad testified that he and some of his playmates were playing in the rear of a gasoline station operated by Carter.

"I saw Carter with the gun in his hand," the boy said. "I saw him shoot at us. I heard a bullet go by me before the one came which hit me."

Defense counsel tried to show that Carter was shooting at a target, but the lad testified that he saw the man aim at the group of boys. Judge Counihan found probable cause and ordered Carter held on a charge of assault and battery with a dangerous weapon.

Garrett Defies His Superiors in Row

Oliver B. Garrett, deposed leader of the liquor squad, was today defying his superiors to ask for his resignation and they in turn were daring him to resign.

"If they want me to resign, let them send me a blank," said Garrett.

"If he wants to resign he knows where the blanks are," retorted Supt. of Police Crowley.

At his Allston home, Garrett said further:

"The next move as far as I am concerned must come from some one else. That is the only information I have for the press at this time."

Clad in a dressing gown Garrett reclined on a lounge in the living room, under the care of his wife and Miss Eleanor Woodside, nurse. He was visited twice during the day by his physician, Dr. John McCormick, who said his patient was doing as well as could be expected.

Supt. Crowley took the responsibility for the attempted investigation made by McDevitt. The superintendent said that he read of the serious accident to Garrett at the Marshfield fair during the last week of August and later saw a news item to the effect that Garrett would drive at the Weymouth fair on Labor Day. "I felt that I would be remiss in my duties if I did not seek to learn whether Garrett appeared there, as printed, said the executive.

Supt. Crowley said that Garrett had not resigned and that no one in the department was seeking his resignation. As far as the intimation that Garrett has been hounded by the police and his family molested, the superintendent said that the inference is rather far fetched.

It is the rule in the department that a man who is unable to work on account of illness must make a report of the case within a period of 48 hours if he wishes to receive any compensation from the department. To this explanation, made by Capt. McDevitt, Garrett said that he did not want any compensation or other gratuity from the police department.

The filing of an order by State Sen. Joseph J. Mellvern calling for a sweeping legislative investigation of the entire Boston police department caused some commotion at police headquarters, but Commissioner Wilson, as well as Supt. Crowley, would make no comment on the proposed investigation.

N. Y. Truck Drivers Won't Go on Strike

Two of the largest and most of the smaller trucking firms in the city have signed a temporary agreement with the International Brotherhood of Teamsters and Chauffeurs to prevent a walkout of 7500 drivers. The pact was signed just before the men were scheduled to strike. Later a new agreement for the ensuing year was reached. Demands for an eight-hour day and time and a half for overtime were granted.

The Garage Washers and Polishers' Union local of the Bronx and Manhattan will walk out September 15 unless demands are met for a nine-hour day. The strike is directed at garages employing nonunion help.

PHILA.-CAPE LINE POPULAR ROUTE

By GEORGE W. HAMBLIN

The airline from Philadelphia to Cape Cod, with stops at Valley Stream, N. Y., Fishers Island, Charleston, R. I., and Newport, and terminating at Falmouth Airport, will continue operation during the month of September, according to an announcement of Willard "Bill" Denny, manager of the Falmouth Airport.

Continuous week-end service, scheduled to leave Philly every Friday at 3 p. m. and arrive at Falmouth at 6:45, has been maintained all summer. The line has made some spectacular runs, and it is the proud boast of the Ludington-Philadelphia Flying Service, Inc., that no scheduled trip has been cancelled during the past four months.

Denny says that the demand is so great for the service that a double-header was necessary Tuesday morning of this week. The Ludington gang, unable to send another Travel Air monoplane, called on Charlie Arnold, who with Norman White, pilot of the Travel Air, hopped down to the Quaker City right on schedule.

Bob Gray and Flying Joe Roberts of Needham staged a thrilling flight from North Conway, N. H., recently.

In the face of terrible weather conditions, Bob shoved off, with a prayer that the fog would lift before he got very far along his route. Instead of lifting, he had to imitate Lowell White, dodging mountain peaks, trees and all the other things the mountains throw at you when it gets foggy. An hour after he started, he managed to find Plymouth, N. H. With that landmark a hundred feet under him, he pointed the long snout of the Eagle down the valley, and headed for Concord. Several minutes later, all seemed a lifetime to Grey—he arrived over Concord Airport, and then shoved off for Manchester. He next came hedgehopping out of the soup over the Narrow Gauge Railroad in back of Wood Island, at 50 feet altitude. When he saw the wind-sock, and found the direction of the wind, he pulled up to a hundred feet over East Boston and promptly became lost in the thick pea soup. Then the airport came into view again, and he landed, quite glad to get terra firma again.

This fog flying impediment is a daily experience of air mail and passenger service pilots out of Boston. The test comes when a pilot starts out over unfamiliar ground, and by dint of expert piloting, skillful navigating, and a lead pipe cinch, arrives at his destination.

Fred Pereira, manager of Ray Brats Flying Service, will leave these diggings for Fortress Munroe, Va., for three months active duty with the regular army coast artillery. Fred is a first lieutenant. In his absence, Al Jones, chief mechanic, will be in charge.

The five masts being erected at the southwest end of the field are for a radio beacon. It will be municipally owned, although this has not been substantially confirmed.

COURT TO RULE ON STATUS OF EXTRACTS

Police Charge Dealer With Liquor Sale Following Broadway Raid

A decision will be made by Judge Michael J. Murray of the municipal court before next Thursday as to whether the sale of extracts from which purchasers may make liquor constitutes a sale of liquor and renders the salesman liable to prosecution for keeping and exposing liquor.

This issue was raised by Atty. Harry J. Goldberg at the trial of Hyman Shugerman, proprietor of a malt and extract store on Broadway.

These extracts, Judge Murray remarked, were apparently being sold generally, adding that he intended to consider the matter carefully before deciding the issue. It was claimed by defense counsel that if his client was guilty, then all the stores in Boston which sell extracts are liable.

BOUGHT GIN EXTRACT

Shugerman was arrested by Sergt. McTiernan of the Lagrange st. police station following a visit by Patrolman Daniel Duggan, who was in plain clothes, to Shugerman's shop. The officer said that he told Shugerman that he wished to purchase extract to make gin.

Shugerman, he said, promptly gave him a quantity which would cost him $4. Duggan finally bought $1 worth. When the extract was analyzed it is said to have contained 49 per cent alcohol. In his raid on the shop the sergeant discovered other extracts allegedly containing a high percentage of alcohol.

CHARGED WITH SALE

Shugerman was charged with keeping and exposing liquor, a sale of liquor an illegal sale of denatured alcohol, and an illegal sale of alcohol.

The contention was made by Atty Goldberg that the extract was not a beverage in itself and that if purchasers made illegal use of it there was nothing in the prohibitory liquor statutes which made his client responsible.

He said that leading grocery stores and stores all over Boston were selling the extracts, and he said that if the police were going to arrest the proprietors of these stores they would, in all fairness, have to arrest the proprietors of stores selling bay rum and cologne which had reasonably high percentages of alcohol.

MAYOR NICHOLS GETS PROTEST ON 'TANK FARM'

East Boston Residents Organize to Protect Property Values

Resolutions to be presented to Mayor Nichols this morning were adopted by a capacity crowd which met in the John Cheverus school, East Boston, to voice protest against the application of the Shell gasoline interests and the Boston Port Developing Company for permission to erect tanks, capable of storing 90,460,000 gallons of petrol on a plot of land bounded by Addison, Saratoga and Boardman sts., East Boston.

The meeting, called by Alexander Sullivan, president of the East Boston Betterment Association, was addressed by prominent politicians who enlisted their aid in the prospect. Congressman John J. Douglas offered his services as attorney for the association. Assist. Dist. Atty. William J. Sullivan, Councilman Timothy Donovan, former Representative Robert Dinsmore, former Representative Thomas O. Nyland and several others volunteered and addressed the gathering.

A similar meeting will be held in two weeks, prior to the hearing at City Hall, September 18, at which time further resolutions will be drawn up for presentation to the city authorities. Most of the 350 families living in the vicinity have either voiced their objections or signed one of the several petitions.

BABY VOLSTEAD REPEAL FIGHT MAY DECIDE PROHIBITION'S FATE

LIBERALS OUT TO GET 20,000 SIGNATURES

Atty.-Gen. Warner's Approval of Petition Opens Battle; National Leaders Coming

The coming Bay State battle for repeal of the Baby Volstead act may decide the future fate of prohibition in the United States.

In approving the legality and form of the initiative petition of the Constitutional Liberty League, Atty.-Gen. Warren's act opened the greatest prohibition battle ever waged in Massachusetts. Both sides are already preparing for the battle.

The Constitutional Liberty League will be opposed by the Massachusetts Anti-Saloon League as the directing forces. Speakers of national prominence are to be brought into play on both sides. Propaganda on a large scale will be freely made use of by both sides.

NEED 20,000 SIGNATURES

Just as soon as the office of the Secretary of State can prepare the necessary blanks, the petitioners will begin their first drive, for they must obtain 20,000 signatures of qualified voters prior to the first Wednesday in December, before the petition can be referred to the General Court.

A strong battle will then take place among the legislators, for with prohibition the one clear issue the future political life of many members may be determined by their vote on the repeal measure.

It is expected organized delegations will represent every part of the State at these hearings. Workingmen's clubs and temperance societies will alike be active participants.

If the General Court rejects the repeal measure, the question will then be carried to the voters by the filing of 5000 additional signatures by the petitioners.

WARNER'S RULING

In certifying the petition Warner ruled that the repeal of the State prohibition enforcement law is a proper subject for initiative consideration. He said the argument had been raised that the repeal might work harm, but that this consideration was not within his province, but was for the General Court or the voters to decide.

Objection had been made to the formal wording of the petition, he said, but he found the phraseology to be correct. He explained, however, that the constitution provides that a measure being submitted to the voters shall be described on the ballot in addition to the title, and that he will see to it that the description will be in such form that no voter will be ignorant of the subject matter.

Immediately after Mr. Warner had rendered his decision, Mrs. White, as one of the original signers, filed the papers in the office of Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook, and at the same time issued the following brief statement:

"There are thousands of women in this Commonwealth, ardent friends of temperance, who like myself believe that prohibition has utterly failed to promote that virtue. I am convinced by experience that the 18th amendment was a mistake and should be repealed.

"I am equally convinced that repeal can and will come when the people of the states make it plain that they will no longer assist in its enforcement. I am glad of the opportunity, therefore, to file this initiative petition for the repeal of theh so-called Baby Volstead law."

Mrs. Henry W. Peabody of Beverly, chairman of the woman's committee for law enforcement, fired a broadside at Joseph Walker, former speaker of the House and former temperance advocate, for his public letter urging not only repeal of the "Baby Volstead" act but of the 18th amendment to the Federal Constitution.

JEWS SPEED UP DRIVE FOR FUNDS

Rallies and Benefit Shows Throughout New England Planned

New England Jews in every walk of life are rallying to the appeal made by A. C. Ratshesky, chairman of the Palestine emergency relief fund.

Every Jewish club is organizing benefits for the fund and Jewish women, boys and girls are preparing for a tag day next Tuesday.

Hundreds of dollars were raised for the fund at a benefit performance in Keith's Memorial Theater. A vaudeville program was presented and the main picture was "Street Girl," starring Betty Compson. Motion pictures of scenes in Palestine were also shown.

Protest meetings were held in Roxbury, Cambridge, Waltham, Fall River, Haverhill and many other New England towns. Collections were taken to help the fund.

"We must rouse public opinion and beset England to a fuller realization of its duties as mandatory power to maintain peace and order in the Holy Land and to facilitate the establishment of a Jewish national homeland in Palestine as promised and endorsed by the nations of the world," said Judge David A. Louria of the superior court, speaking as honorary president of the New England Zionist region.

It says, in part: "A great calamity has befallen the Jews in Palestine; hundreds have been killed and wounded; homes, institutions and crops destroyed, creating a condition where, according to newspaper reports, millions of dollars of outside financial assistance is absolutely necessary to provide food, clothing and shelter to those who suffer."

"In order that the greatest good can be accomplished by centralizing all contributions for relief, I have accepted the chairmanship of the Palestine emergency relief fund and call upon all the people of New England to assist this most worthy cause by contributing liberally and promptly."

Contributions should be sent to A. C. Ratshesky, chairman, Palestine emergency relief fund, care of United States Trust Co., 30 Court st., Boston.

Next Monday evening in the Roxbury Y. M. H. A. there will be a mass meeting of all workers who are going to sell flowers on the streets of Boston Tuesday for the benefit of the fund.

There will also be a meeting next Monday evening of the Boston chapter of Hadassah and Junior Hadassahs in the Copley-Plaza Hotel. Mrs. Jennie Dollman Barron of the Boston school committee will be the principal speaker.

JUDGE URGES JURY WAIVED SESSION

Would Be Great Saving to State and Citizen, Chief Justice Hall Points Out

A far-reaching change in the method of handling criminal court cases is announced by Chief Justice Hall, of the superior court, who indicates that a special session of the court is contemplated in which the services of juries will be dispensed with in criminal cases.

This jury-waived session, in criminal cases authorized by the 1928 Legislature, will see a defendant go to trial as heretofore. But instead of having a jury pass on the evidence, the presiding justice will take upon himself the two-fold duties of Judge and jury, providing the defendant waives his constitutional right to be heard by a jury of his peers.

A great saving in time and costs are expected as a result of jury-waived sessions, not only for the defendants, but for the counties of the State.

Jury-waived trials in superior criminal court were successfully held here for the first time two years ago, but the idea of a session devoted solely to this type of procedure is entirely new.

Chief Justice Hall, while favoring the plan, makes it plain that details have not yet been worked out and that considerable cooperation is essential to assure fullest success.

He also intimated that civil court cases could be more efficiently disposed of by jury-waived sessions and pointed out that in other states such a system has proved a success.

It is planned to give defendants, who elect to waive trial before a jury, an opportunity to know with some degree of accuracy the judge before whom the cases are to be heard.

$300,000 Yacht Being Built Here for Ford

A yacht, reputed to cost $300,000, is under construction now for Edsel Ford at the Lawley shipyards, Neponset.

The yacht will be powered by two huge Bessemer-Diesel engines, equipped with twin screw propellers, capable of developing 300 horsepower each and 400 revolutions per minute. This power will drive the craft through the water at a speed in excess of 16 knots an hour.

No expense is to be spared in making the yacht the last word in fast cruiser construction. The cabins, staterooms and salon are to be luxuriously appointed, and the boat is to be finished in the finest teak wood, French cedar and butternut wood.

There will be ample accommodations for 28 people. On the superstructure and on deck there will be a dining room, a living room, the captain's stateroom and the pilot house.

BUILDING TRADE WORK BOOMS

Returns from 319 building trades unions in Massachusetts, with a total membership of nearly 50,000, show that 6125 tradesmen were unemployed in August, as compared with 6866 for the same period a year ago. The unemployment percentage dropped from 12.9 in July to 12.4 in August, of which 2.3 was because of sickness, accident or old age, and 10.1 because of lack of work or materials.

The city of Lawrence showed the lowest percentage of unemployment among building tradesmen in the State—the figure being 3 per cent. Other comparatively low figures were Newton, 5.1; Lowell, 7.9; Springfield, 9.5; Worcester, 10; Brockton, 10.5; Boston, 13; Lynn, 13.1, and Quincy, 14.3. The worst conditions were in Salem, with 18.3; New Bedford, 21.9; Holyoke, 23.8; and Fall River, 24.5.

AMERICAN WOOL WINS POINT

Judge Lummus of superior court allowed a motion by Lothrop Withington, attorney for the American Woolen Co., that the attachment for $5,000,000 on the property of the company be limited to four mills in Lawrence.

The suit on which the attachment was made was brought by the executors of the estate of the late William M. Wood, to compel the American Woolen Co. to pay additional income taxes on the salary of Wood.

Counsel for the plaintiffs opposed Withington's motion on the ground that if the American Woolen Co. should fail to prosper the properties might be greatly reduced in value.

To show that the plaintiffs were amply protected, Withington stated that the four mills mentioned had a book value of $9,000,000 and an assessed value of $8,500,000; that the Wood Worsted mill alone as a going concern was worth $25,000; that the American Woolen Co. had $7,000,000 in cash in its treasury; owes between $2,000,000 and $3,000,000; has inventories of $42,000,000 and accounts receivable of between $27,000,000 and $28,000,000.

CAN'T IDENTIFY GEM THIEF

Mrs. Sidney E. Hutchinson of Beverly Farms, was unable to identify Byron Beaucaire, Boston negro, in New York, as the man who robbed her home of jewels worth $114,000 August 10, but Beaucaire and James Salley, negro barber, were held without bail in police court here.

Mrs. Hutchinson identified as her property several pieces of jewelry recovered when Beaucaire was arrested August 26. Beaucaire was charged with felonious assault, bringing stolen jewels into the State and violation of the Sullivan Law. Salley was charged with receiving stolen property.

Seven policemen who participated in the arrests divided a $10,000 reward offered by Mr. and Mrs. Hutchinson for recovery of the jewels. It later was announced that Beaucaire had confessed.

Nahant Tax Rate Increased to $34

The tax rate for Nahant was announced as $34, or an increase of $3.50 over the rate in 1928, making the rate the highest in the history of the town.

The increase is due largely to increased appropriations at the March town meeting, when additional items were approved on the town warrant.

Dry Dock Worker Dies in Ship Fall

Robert Terson, 40, of Clarendon ave., Somerville, died of injuries received when he fell 40 feet from a wharf to a ...ow at pier 4 at the foot of Water st., Charlestown.

Terson, employed by the Simpson Dry Dock Corporation, was working on the steamship City of Savannah. He died at the Haymarket Relief Station.

Taxes Cut One-Third

Westfield, Sept. 6—A reduction of 33 1-3 per cent in the tax rate was announced by the assessors of Chesterfield, the rate this year being $22, as compared with the $33 rate last year.

Old Boston in Pictures—No. 49

HERE we have the Ancient and Honorable Artillery of another day. It was a brilliant occasion on the Boston Common in 1851 when the soldiers, garbed in their brilliant uniforms, were reviewed by Maj.-Gen. Wool and Staff Col. Isaac H. Wright. This picture was loaned to the Boston Evening American by the Boston Athanaeum. Another picture of Old Boston will appear in the American tomorrow.

English ovens and ENGLISH traditions create, in America, the dainty "BISCUIT"

A DAINTY confection, pure and tasty: such is the English "biscuit." It is a small, crisp cake, made of milk, honey, blended flours, eggs and a special pastry butter. Flavors like chocolate, cocoanut, maple or nectars from the choicest fruits enrich it. Often it is filled with a delicate custard or cream that melts in the mouth. It is a civilized delight that only generations of pastry-baking traditions could evolve.

Americans visiting England found the "biscuit" wherever a cup of tea was in order, or a cooling drink at the heat of the day, or a glass of milk between meals. In the inns, the fashionable drawing-rooms, on terraces and lawns by the Thames, at smart children's parties, the delicious "biscuit" never fails to appear. It is the national sweet of old England.

Now the expensive importation of this "biscuit" to America no longer is necessary. The ovens, methods, father-to-son secrets, all that insures the perfect baking of English Quality Biscuits, have been brought over and established in the U. S. A. You may buy them oven-fresh at your store in attractive pound packages or in bulk. And they cost no more than you have been paying for the ordinary little cakes and cookies. The Weston Biscuit Corporation, New York, N. Y.—Toronto, Canada—Watertown, Mass. Telephone Middlesex 7400.

'ARGYLE CASE' FEATURE AT THE MET

Photoplay .."The Argyle Case"
Type ... . Mystery Drama
Star .....Thomas Meighan
Theater .....Metropolitan

By LEIGH HARBRIDGE

IT is not easy to determine what would become of the stage and the screen if some hidden agent should deprive either of its mysterious murder. In "The Argyle Case" at the Metropolitan you find crime and scientific investigation rolling along at top speed, with every incident in the hands of an expert.

Thomas Meighan

Incidentally, Thomas Meighan returns to his admiring fans after a nice vacation, and regales them with a new kind of a role—for him. The character he portrays is not new to the loyal patron of the elusive film, but Mr. Meighan takes up the subject of crime detection in his own insistent way, and makes a good deal more out of the idea than you may imagine. "The Argyle Case," starts with a mysterious murder; in that respect it follows all the best rules of mystery thrillers. The master mind is called to the assistance of the police, a harried family and all others who might have been expected to share in the millions of dollars now involved in a lively merry-go-round.

* * *

AS things so often run in well regulated drama, of crime and its consequences, the finger of guilt points squarely in the wrong direction. The foster daughter is suspected, and gosh darn it, the master criminal hunter falls in love with the girl. So, once more, Mr. Meighan is detected running at cross purposes with the beautiful Lila Lee. It was an old fashioned test for both of 'em.

However, a lot of good drama, gripping scenes and other essentials to smart entertainment are encountered and conquered before the final fade out reveals Mr. Meighan and Miss Lee in familiar juxtaposition.

A GOOD cast adds to the fans enjoyment. ZaSu Pitts, for example, contributed much more than a bit, and for celebration does not drop a single tear. As the gossipy housekeeper, she is just a lady to be laughed at—and with. H. B. Warner brings excellent talents to the picturization as a sinister counterfeiter. It may be remarked that Mr. Warner usually turns in a good job in any assignment.

On the stage and in the pit there are new boys to arrest your ear and catch the eye. Dave Rubinoff swings an impressive baton over the big orchestra. Within the space of five bars and four notes you know who's the head man. Alex Keese, the new playboy of the Met's stage shows—that is, conductor of revelry—is a large help to Joe Browning, the actual leader of the new Publix Revue.

Large Stage Staff for "Here and There"

Under the supervision of George Vivian, general stage director, an army of stage technicians and mechanics are required to handle the production for a performance of R. H. Burnside's spectacle, "Here and There," which comes to the Boston Opera House next Monday.

The backstage and offstage company, unknown to and unseen by the public, consists of a general technical director; master mechanic; two assistant stage directors; chief electrician and five assistants; head carpenter and three assistants; property boy and six assistants; wardrobe mistress and 10 assistants, and 40 clearers and grips, constituting the theater stage crew.

"Strange Interlude" Opens Here Sept. 30

"Strange Interlude," Eugene O'Neill's famous nine-act play, begins its Boston engagement on Monday evening, September 30, at the Hollis. As previously announced, because of the unusual length of the play there will be no matinees. The performances begin at 5.30 each evening, with a dinner intermission from 7:45 until 8, when the play resumes, lasting until around 11.

Judith Anderson, Tom Powers, Glenn Anders, all members of the New York cast will be in the Boston company. "Strange Interlude" is the first play in a series of five which the New York Theater Guild is offering on a subscription basis.

PATSY RUTH MILLER AND EDWARD EVERETT HORTON

PATSY IS quite a comforting soul and she is doing a good job now. It is a scene from an old favorite, "The Hottentot," to be featured at the Publix Big Five.

STAR PLAYS THE VIOLIN

BETTY COMPSON'S talent with the violin is one of the interesting features of the all-talking, all-musical Radio Picture, "Street Girl," the first of the great productions of Radio to be shown at the New B. F. Keith, which starts its new policy tomorrow.

It is worthy of note that it was her ability as a violinist which launched Miss Compson on a theatrical career when she was a school girl in Salt Lake City, Utah.

Supporting Miss Compson in "Street Girl," a tuneful romance of New York's "Little Hungary," are John Harron, Jack Oakie, Ned Sparks, Joseph Cawthorn, Ivan Lebedeff and Guy Bucosta.

"Tiger Rose"

George Fitzmaurice has completed his all-talking "Vitaphone production, "Tiger Rose," based on William Mack's play presented on the stage by David Belasco. The title role is played by Lupe Velez with Monte Blue in the male lead. Grant Withers, H. B. Warner and Rin Tin Tin figure in the cast which also includes Gaston Glass, Heinie Conklin, Bull Montana, Tully Marshall and Emil Chautard.

'QUEEN' FROM THE CHORUS

FROM kindergarten teacher to Ziegfeld chorus is a long leap but that is the road traveled to the stage by Lee Russell, who plays Alice Toren, the movie queen in "Jarnegan" at the Wilbur. Miss Russell's beauty and grace won her the position in Ziegfeld's "Follies," but it was her cultivated dramatic talent that won her place in "Jarnegan."

Born in Eau Claire, Wis., Miss Russell was sent by her parents to the Wisconsin State Teachers College and upon her graduation was assigned a kindergarten school in her home town. One night at a dance she met a Ziegfeld scout who invited her to call upon the famous American girl glorifier.

"The first time I went to the Ziegfeld office," says Miss Russell, "I was told by a very snippy girl that Mr. Ziegfeld wasn't seeing anyone that day. I went home and waited a few days. Then I borrowed some smart clothes and went again. It happened on that day that Mr. Ziegfeld was receiving girls. He saw me and put me in the chorus of the 'Follies' of 1927. I didn't dance. I was just one of the haughty show girls."

Two Stories Prepared

Universal is preparing two new starring pictures for Laura La Plante, "The Poor Sport" and "The Behavior of Mrs. Crane." Frances Agnew is handling adaptation, continuity and dialogue of "The Poor Sport," which is based on a magazine story by Rita Weiman. Clarence Thompson is preparing screen version of "The Behavior of Mrs. Crane" from the play by Percy Heigel.

"DULCY" ROLE FOR ACTOR OF NOTE

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright, 1929, by Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 6—Donald Ogden Stuart, humorist, actor and writer of innumerable books is in town. No one knew that Mr. Stuart was coming and no one knew his intentions until he appeared on Marion Davies' set. He plays one of the important roles in Marion's picture, "Dulcy," and if he is half as good as he was in "Holiday" all I can say is that it was a lucky thought that inspired M-G-M in New York to sign him for the part.

Mr. Stuart, with "The Crazy Fool," "Perfect Behavior," "Mr. and Mrs. Haddock Abroad," and dozens of best sellers to his credit, suddenly chucked them all last year and accepted a part in "Holiday." Imagine his surprise when thinking it was only to be a few weeks' engagement, it lasted all season and was one of the sensational hits of the year. I saw him in the play and feel free to say he ought to be good in the talkies.

It certainly sounds like a good cast in "Dulcy" with plenty of comedy with Marion, E. H. Nugent and Franklin Pangborn and Raymond Hackett, and they sound good—I sneaked on the set and listened.

* * *

"Tin Hats"

Jack Donahue, white Ziegfeld star, has been signed by Bobby Connolly and Arthur Swanstrom to play the leading role in the firm's impending musical comedy "Tin Hats."

The famous dancing comedian has been the subject of various reports assigning him to one production after another.

For some time negotiations have been under way between Connolly and Swanstrom and Mr. Donahue.

"Bishop Murder"

In addition to Basil Rathbone, Leila Hyams, Charles Quartermaine, Raymond Hackett and Holly Morad have been added to the cast of "The Bishop Murder Case," which Nick Grinde is directing for M-G-M.

Hardboiled

RICHARD BENNETT

SCREEN JOBS GO HUNTING MISS LOVE

THEY all love Bessie Love, who is one of the bright spots in "Hollywood Revue" at the Tremont. She's just the frail wistful type that makes the wearer of a 12½ collar feel like Jack Dempsey and Sir Galahad rolled into one heroic package. But Bessie Love doesn't need any one to fight her battles. She proved that when she lit out for herself when she tired of being the nobby little slavey of movies, and came back from stage triumphs as the jazziest bit of femininity that ever sounded off in front of a talkie microphone.

Bessie Love

Bessie doesn't look for jobs any more. They look for her. She has had two of the biggest roles yet offered a screen star, in "The Broadway Melody" and "The Hollywood Revue."

WHO WAS GREATEST FOOTBALL STAR?

SKIP WOGAN of Essex might have been a candidate for the red headed championship, but he lost it all. He still gets red headed now and again, though.

Rogers Hornsby is the most stolid of the big league ball players. With Cobb gone, the Rabbit is the most dynamic and vitriolic.

Did you know that Billy Nixon, who might have been a lightweight champ if he hadn't been rushed too fast, is now an eminent detective on the Cambridge force. The boys tried Billy out against Bat Nelson.

Jim Thorpe claims that Eddie Mahan was the greatest football player that ever lived. Eddie says the same thing about Jim. The late and great P. D. Haughton told us that the pair, and Tack Hardwick, rated about equally.

NICK FLATLEY

Ol' John Irwin, who used to make life happy at Peddock's Island, now entertains down near Pemberton. And is still a wild baseball fan.

Sammy Gets Excited

Sammy Cohen, a strong booster, got excited the other night when Bruce Flowers started to tag Jake Zeramby. "Go get him Jake," yelled Sammy, "he's an Arab."

Boston's lightning calculators hang out in the right field bleachers. Saw a bird make 47 bets at a single game the other day. He started with fifty bucks and finished twelve smackers to the good. Not bad daily interest on half a yard.

Tony Marsh, who used to be a large stockholder in the Braves when they were the Doves, hasn't missed a Boston ball game in 20 years. And he suffers intensely when the native bands bust. So he suffers.

Golfers Curve Em

Former ball player named Kennedy stepped out to play his first golf. Watched a foursome hook and slice off the tee. "Gosh," was his remark, "there's something to this game, at that. Lookit those guys curve 'em."

The greatest collector of the real lowdown in the village is Johnny Buckley, who manages J. Sharkey. John can sniff a rodent farther than the Zepp can fly in a week.

Mrs. Charles Adams, wife of the Brave vice-president, has gone in for trotting horses. She has one champion already and three or four great prospects. Quite a record in three years. Her son, has some promising runners.

Bill Knows His Concrete

Bill Bingham, Harvard sport head, has become a construction engineer looking after the new concrete stands. They will pay for themselves in a single year.

Two of the most nervous birds ever parked in one corner are Al Lacey and Tony Palazolo. Harry Kelly is the most phlegmatic.

Frank McNamara, who pros down at Cohasset, has the most comfortable of the golf jobs. Plenty of work and nothing to worry him. Joe Howe, out at Franklin Park, is attached to the direst spot.

Judge Landis has them all stopped getting publicity. When better ways are thought of, the Judge will think of them.

Dezzie Wadsworth has opened a long distance wire to get returns from Ouimet at Pebbles Beach. Dezzie fainted when Francis sank that tieing putt at the Country Club, 16 years back.

Did You Know

That Vittorio Campolo, the big Argentinian who is to fight Phil Scott, has a bum duke, and not a lame back, as per announcements.

That the applejack season is approaching. And that the real jack has it all over the "good" stuff that is peddled around nowadays.

That more fighting is packed in any one amateur show than you will see at half a dozen big shots.

That Max Schmeling got a turndown when he showed up in his native Berlin. And that he will get the same when he comes back here.

Cape's First Polo Match Tomorrow

The first polo matches ever played on Cape Cod are scheduled tomorrow and Sunday afternoons when the fours of Gay Head Farm and Norfolk ride on the new Cape Cod polo grounds at 3.30 o'clock.

The new field is situated on the site that was formerly the Arthur Lapham Farm on the West Barnstable-Osterville rd. The teams will meet for the Du Pont trophies. Frank Keens of Sandwich, crack horseman and well-known polo-ist, has arranged the first appearance of polo teams on the cape.

Medford Man to Train Aggies

Amherst, Sept. 6—The Massachusetts Aggie varsity football staff, preparing for the opening of practice next Monday, was increased with the arrival of John Sullivan of Medford, who will act as trainer of the grid squad this season.

Sullivan graduated from M. A. C. last June, played football and took the college courses in physical education for teacher-coaches.

SARAH WILL DEFEND NET CROWN

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 6—Sarah Palfrey, 16-year-old Brookline girl, will defend her title as national junior lawn tennis champion against Helen Marlowe of Hollywood, Cal., in the final round of the tournament at Philadelphia Cricket Club.

Miss Palfrey, seeded first, reached the final bracket by defeating Evelyn Parsons, Palo Alto, Cal., 6—3, 6—3, while Miss Marlowe advanced by disposing of Mianne Palfrey, sister of Sarah, 6—1, 6—4.

After watching her play, William T. Tilden, 2d, predicted that Miss Palfrey would take the place of Helen Wills as tennis queen of the United States within five years.

The sturdy Western girl holds the California State and Pacific coast titles. She has played tennis only two years and this is her first trip East.

Only twice in the last eight years has the East supplied the national girl titleholder. Helen Hoodoo, New York, won the crown in 1923, and Sarah Palfrey last year.

FINAL A. L. BALL GAME TODAY

Louisville, Ky., Sept. 6 (AP)—Two groups of boy baseball players, none over 16 years old, this afternoon battle for honors in the third and deciding game of the American Legion's junior "World Series," with Kenesaw M. Landis, National baseball commissioner, John W. Heydler, president of the National League, and other notables in the stand.

The Burke Brothers' team of Buffalo, representing the eastern section of the country, won the first game, 6 to 4, and yesterday New Orleans, western representative as the result of a long series of elimination contests, tied the count, 16 to 9.

The winner today will be guest of the Legion at all the big league World Series this fall, following the teams in a special car.

Grid Gleanings

(By International News Service)

Farmingdale, N. Y., Sept. 6 (INS)—There will be no scrimmage for New York University's football squad today, Coach Meehan preferring to spend the day drilling the boys in the fundamentals of the game.

New York, N. Y.—Columbia's first day of football practice revealed that Coach Crowley's main worry lies in developing a line, for of the some thirty men who reported at Baker Field, the majority were of the backfield variety.

Only the lightest type of drills were gone through. It will be several days before the Lions attempt any heavy work.

Cape May, N. J., Sept. 6 (INS)—With the squad divided into teams A, B and C, Lou Loung's Penn gridmen were scheduled today to spend the majority of their time in signal drills.

Annapolis, Md., Sept. 6 (INS)—Although the first official practice is not scheduled until Monday, all but a small number of the varsity squad of the Naval Academy have reported. The few absentees are expected today.

Hanover, N. H., Sept. 6 (INS)—Coach Jackson Cannell will send his '29 Dartmouth football candidates through their second double drill today.

The squad this year contains more candidates for and berths than any other position. Twenty wingmen are working out daily and their battle for the two positions promises to provide a merry fight.

The domestic help problem is solved by using a telephone, experienced and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

3 VETERANS REMAIN IN PLAY

SEMIFINAL ROUNDS

Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, Ore., vs. H. Chandler Egan, Medford, Ore.

Harrison R. Johnstone, St. Paul, vs. Francis Ouimet Woodland.

PEBBLE BEACH, Cal. Sept. 6—Two former national champions, H. Chandler Egan of Medford, Oregon, and Francis Ouimet, Boston, have survived three rounds of the United States amateur championship, and are playing Dr. O. F. Willing, Portland, Oregon, and Harrison R. "Jimmy" Johnston, St. Paul, respectively, today in the semifinals.

Although the early elimination of Bobby Jones, the defending champion, is still the main topic of conversation, Egan and Ouimet have come in for much favorable comment, due in the wonderful exhibitions they have produced since the start of the present classic. The veterans have come into their own in the championship and their play has been truly sensational.

Of the two former titleholders, Chandler Egan has had much the harder row in hoe.

Woburn High Rifle Team Seeks Foes

WOBURN high school's rifle team, generally acknowledged to be one of the best in the State, is seeking matches with other high school rifle teams this season.

Last year Woburn won each of the 12 matches on its schedule and collected seven cups, including the Walker A. Fawcett cup, for proficiency in marksmanship.

C. Alfred Quinn, Jr., is captain of the Woburn rifle team this year. Quinn has averaged 188 in practice shoots at the Massachusetts Rifle Range and holds a range record for junior sharpshooters, with a 196 out of a possible 200.

Capt. Wilfred A. Walker of the 182nd Infantry, National Guard, is coach of the team. Walker has captained the American rifle team in the Olympic games three times and much of the credit for the success of the Woburn high squad is due to his expert teaching.

Girls' Title Track Meet at Norumbega Tomorrow

MISS WILEY VACATES TITLE

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

THE committee on women's athletics of the New England division of the A. A. A. U. will show a new group of girl athletes at the championship meet which is to be held at Norumbega Park tomorrow under the auspices of the women's committee.

Two new girls will be found in the New England championship running high jump, which Mildred Wiley, the champion and Olympic star, has vacated.

The Wollaston girl, who is a member of the Boston Swimming Association, in a recent statement, said: "I believe that some of the other girls should be given a chance to show their ability. That is why I am not competing this

"I have won the New England title a few times and only figure it right to encourage some of the other girls who have plenty of class to step up and get into the real competition.

With Miss Wiley out of the meet tomorrow afternoon, Sylvia Broman of Brockton and Helen Hammersley of the Boston Swimming Association are favorites in the title quest.

It is unlikely that Katherine Mearls will defend her title in the 100 yards dash. However, with Olive Hasenfus of Needham and the Boston Swimming Association with the New England record time of 12 2-5 seconds, the rest of the starters will have to do better in order to win the title.

Opposing Miss Hasenfus will be Fanny Maderis, former Canadian champion; Mary Carew, national indoor 40-yards-dash title holder, and Dorothy Mullane of the Medford Girls' A. C., a team mate of Miss Carew.

The other three championship events carded for the girls' meet will find the national and world's record holding shot putter, Rena MacDonald, defending her discus throw title, while she also will compete in the invitation shot put.

Alice Morris, of the Boston Swimming Assn., New England champion at throwing the baseball, is ready to defend her title as well as Margret Proctor of the Lunenburg A. C., who is slated to defend her title in the javelin throw.

GIRL ATHLETES PREPARE FOR TITLE MEET

Mary Carew, national 40-yard indoor champ, who will run in the 100-yard dash in girls' track meet

Rena McDonald, member of the United States women's Olympic team in 1928, is entered in the discus and shot events.

MANCHESTER ADDS TO LEAD

By CHARLES HOFFMAN

Nothing but a miracle can stop Manchester from winning the second half in the New England League race and the right to play Lynn in the playoff.

The Blue Sox increased their lead another half a game when they defeated Portland by the score of 9 to 3, while Lynn loafed owing to rain.

Up in this game, Duke Sedgwick the Portland ace, won six straight games, but the Manchester sluggers fell on him for fourteen hits, winning easily.

It was boosters' day in the Maine city, but inclement weather kept the crowd down, although they sold many tickets which are good for the last two games, today or tomorrow.

Mishkin and Bowman were the heavy stickers of the day, getting three bingles apiece, the latter making two doubles, while the former made a triple and double.

Bob Harris, Mariners' shortstop, was the only player able to do anything with Johnnie Miller, Manchester pitcher. The former Lynn star batted out three singles.

Chilli Hardin, who went to Hartford from New Bedford last week, stepped into a new role as pinch hitter in the New Haven game and banged out a double with two on, winning the game.

While Dan Bloxsom, Lynn shortstop, was playing Wednesday, he received a telegram from his home in Houston, Texas, that he was the father of a ten-pound boy. Dannie says he will make a left-handed hitter and thrower out of the youngster.

Joe Huarte, Lynn second sacker is the leading base stealer of the league, having pilfered thirty-two bases.

B. U. Coaches Must Build New Line

The graduation of Capt. Arthur Dorfman, center; Bill French, left guard; Perry Freeman at Eddie Swenson, the two tackles; and Spitzer and Tuiton both ends is plenty of reason to cause the coaches deep concern as to how to find replacements.

In addition to these regulars of the 1928 campaign lost, Bill Jerome right end and Stan Quan, left guard have not satisfied the scholastic requirements of the college and as a result are ineligible. Although neither of these men were rated as regulars last fall, both played in enough games to win their letters and were figured on as certain first string material this season.

It became known yesterday that Herb Miller who made a letter as a tackle two years ago is eligible for football now and will report the first of next week. Miller was slated for first string left tackle last fall and started the West Point game at that position but an attack of pneumonia the next week laid him up for the remainder of the season.

The gap at center caused by the graduation of Capt. Dorfman who will probably be a member of the Buffalo professional team this season is a hard one to fill. Joe Barratt who has seen some action at that position for the past two seasons in the role of substitute is the likeliest prospect for the snapper back berth.

With Miller having better than an even chance to cop left tackle it is quite likely that George Catalado, a number of the squad for the past three years, will win the other tackle position.

Jack Carnie who is about to begin his fourth and final year on the team should experience little difficulty in holding down his old berth at left end and if his guards his wing as well as he did two years ago and at times last fall there will be little left to desire with that position.

Several likely candidates among the new men are certain to see a lot of action this fall and one or two of the line prospects will have more than an even chance of winning starting positions in the lineup.

7 STARTERS IN OVAL RACE

Tomorrow night will be the last chance bike fans will have this season to see their favorite riders in action at the Revere Cycle Track.

The race, the Harvest Cup hour event, should be a thriller, as there are seven starters, and most of them are in the fight for this year's American motor-paced title.

Al Letourneur, Frans Duelberg, George Chapman, Francesco Zucchetti, Charlie Winters, Larry Gaffney and Victor Rausch are all entered.

Other preliminary races for amateurs and pros will complete the card.

Jeanette Royal Is Victor in Maine

Presque Isle, Me., Sept. 6—In the feature race, the free-for-all, at the closing of the Northern Maine fair Jeanette Royal had the better of her opponents, although a break she made at the start in the second heat cost her the ground that was the means of her finishing fourth. Donna Volos Peter, after losing the first two heats in the 2.20 mixed, showed that she had lots of stamina and won the next three

MR. BOSTON By JACK CONWAY

JACK CONWAY

THE gang around the rubbing table was talking about the flock of heavyweight contenders who have skyrocketed to the front during the past few months.

"I got a line on Victorio Campolo when he was representing South America in the amateur tournament at the Arena," said Al Lacey. "He is a giant in size and a terrific puncher."

"The man Jack Sharkey will have to fight next year to clinch his claim to the heavyweight championship won't be Schmeling, Campolo or Scott," interrupted Johnny Buckley. "Tuffy Griffiths is the bird I'm watching. He is one of the most promising heavyweights in the world.

"Griffiths formerly campaigned as a light heavyweight, but has packed on 10 extra pounds and scales 183 pounds. He is short and squatty like Johnny Risko.

"Griffiths is a sweet puncher. I cannot understand how he was ever knocked out by Jimmy Braddock in New York. He didn't allow that setback to worry him and resumed operations in the Middle West, where he has been very successful. He's now signed to clash with Ludwig Hayman, new German heavyweight, at the New York Garden.

"Just keep your eyes on Tuffy. That's all."

DAN CARROLL stepped in and started broadcasting.

"I have a million or so offers for Jim Maloney to box," said Dan. "Tom McArdle wants Shamus to tackle George Hoffman in the semifinal on the Sharkey-Loughran card. I have also bids for him to meet Andy Mitchell and Joe Jeanette."

DAN then started to sing the praises of Hy Diamond, who defeated Frankie Moore at the Boston Garden.

"Diamond is a sweet puncher and is certain to make a name for himself in the lightweight class," chirped Dan. "I think he can pop Jake Zeramby over right now."

MR. BOSTON found Johnny McGann, Mike Green and Frank Ducey stalling around town. With no bouts carded at the Garden until Sept. 27, the Three Musketeers can now take in the latest movie thrillers.

"BOBBY JONES," said Mr. Boston, "will probably agree with our statement to the effect that the youngsters are coming in for their own in golf. Jimmy Goodman, who defeated Jones, is 20 and a former caddy. William Lawson Little, Jr., 18, then upset Goodman.

"YOUNGSTERS playing golf have ability, courage and the spirit that wins when an especially long putt is required to gain the victory on the 18th hole.

"THERE is now almost as much interest in a national amateur golf championship as there is in a World Series. I can remember when the average American didn't know the difference between a mashie niblick and a midiron. Outmet, Hagen, Kyans and Jones have been the great educators.

"HARRY GARCH tells me he has signed Bruce Flowers to clash with King Tut in a 10-round bout at Philadelphia on September 18. The New Rochelle warrior has won three sensational fights in a row in Philadelphia and is sure to draw a large gate when he tackles King Tut."

By DICK McSWEENEY

THE third game in the Twilight League championship series between Quincy and Roslindale will be played at Fallon Field, Roslindale, this evening at 5:30 p. m.

To date, Quincy and Roslindale have engaged in two contests, Quincy winning the first, 6 to 5, behind the masterful hurling of Norman Sims, while the second ended in a 2—1 tie when time was called by the umpires.

The pitching in both games of this series has been very good although neither club is hitting to any great extent.

Manager Fred Mellen plans to use John Shea on the Roslindale mound tonight for he feels that Shea will baffle the Granite City ball-hawks with his portside slants. Bill Rose, who faced Quincy in the series opener, and Fran Millikan, who lossed the second struggle for Roslindale, are right-handers.

Andrews has been pitching Twilight ball for a number of seasons and still packs enough skill and cunning in his right arm to dazzle batters in the after-supper circuit.

Tomorrow's game will be played at Fore River Field, but Sunday's contest is likely to be played at Merrimount Park, a field much nearer to the center of Quincy than Fore River's greenery.

While the selection of pitchers for tomorrow afternoon's melee depends wholly upon the outcome of tonight's tussle Frank Tansey is liable to work for Quincy, while John Dixon heaves for Roslindale.

Sox Catcher Off to Begin Coaching

The football season is encroaching on the baseball preserves. Charlie Berry, former Penn State star, and now backstop for the Boston Red Sox, was permitted by Manager Bill Carrigan to go to his home town and begin his duties as coach of the Grove City College eleven in Pennsylvania.

In the meantime, as Heving and Alex Gaston are the only two Boston baseball men remaining, the Sox on club will recall catchers Ashby and Connolly from Pittsfield at the close of the Eastern league season.

Races Today End Pleon Yacht Week

Pleon race week will be concluded today with a double-header. In the morning, with the first signal at 10 o'clock, the Pleon will sail yesterday afternoon's race, while in the afternoon the regular seventh championship race will be held at 2:30.

Pro Skippers Race

The Wharf Rat Dory Club of Nahant, professional skippers, who feature the youngsters of the Nahant Dory Club to sail the little cat yachts, will hold a "race" race today.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
"Golf's Greatest Teacher"

While there are many golfing hints that can be picked up through the factor of physical hazard within your muscles, it is as you pick up a puncture when you are in the greatest hurry, some of which will be so well hidden you will have to seek them out yourself, there are major muscle faults that creep in now and then even with the best of players. These are: Letting the shoulders drop—indicated by hitting into the ground with wood clubs and taking divots much too big with your irons; letting your right hand grip loosen—indicated by a rather soggy impact with the ball and a slicing or fading ball; spreading your right arm out from your side at the start of the back swing—indicated by poor timing and a swing from the outside in, and the commonest fault of all which results from poorly-disciplined golfing muscles—quick at the back swing. Since this is the commonest golfing fault, look to it first when your game goes bad or your swing is the point of early fadeout. That, by the way, is a golfing principle on which you can hardly subpoena your muscular growth. Let it be one of your principles to have all short, leisurely-lazy back swing.

HUB GARDEN OUT TO GET CHOCOLATE

NEGOTIATIONS were opened today to bring either Kid Chocolate, Cuban flash, or Bushy Graham, Utica knockout puncher to the Hub to meet Andy Martin of Boston, New England featherweight champion, recent conqueror of Eddie Shea of Chicago and Bud Taylor of Terre Haute.

The Boston Garden is hopeful of obtaining one of these recognized stars as the next opponent for Martin in a Hub bout and while both men demand big money to come here, it is expected that the Garden will meet their terms.

An offer of $10,000 has been made Chocolate to meet Martin at the Garden, while Graham has been offered $7500 for the same match.

Graham, recognized in most states as the bantamweight champion of the world, recently scaled another notch in the fistic game by his bouts against Eidel Labarba and Kid Chocolate in New York, yet Martin feels qualified to meet him if a match can be arranged for this city.

Hornsby Sentenced to St. Louis Jail

St. Louis, Sept. 6 (AP)—Rogers Hornsby, former Cardinal manager and star second baseman with the Chicago Cubs, was cited for contempt of court and sentenced to the city jail by Andrew H. Watson, a notary public, in papers filed in Circuit Court today.

The citation cannot be enforced, however, without an order of the Circuit Court.

Watson filed papers against Hornsby when he twice failed to appear in answer to a summons to take his deposition in the suit brought against him by Frank J. Quinn, formerly Hornsby's attorney, who charges the ball player owes him $62,000 for services.

Watson, who made no recommendation for enforcement of the sentence, said he imposed it to preserve jurisdiction in the event the court should prefer to enforce it.

Fights Last Night

By the Associated Press

Milwaukee—Louis Vine, Milwaukee, and Fred Tompkins, Milwaukee, drew (10); Paul Pantaleo, Chicago, knocked out George Nyssler, Redland, Mich. (1).

Davenport, Ia.—Jackie Ace Dale, Oklahoma City, outpointed Billie Brent, Baltimore (10).

QUIMET IN SEMIFINAL

Jess Sweetser. Until Bobby Jones fell before Johnny Goodman of Omaha, Neb., George von Elm was the only player to win a decision over the Georgian in an amateur championship since 1923, when Bobby went down before Max Marston, in the second round at Merion.

Egan bumped Von Elm off in the first round, which was the third consecutive time that the 1926 champion failed to survive the first round. In the afternoon of the first day of match play, Egan came through with a victory over Rudie Wilhelm, another Oregonian, 7 and 5, but his greatest achievement was the limination of Jess Sweetser, Siwanoy, who lead the field at Brookline in 1922 and won the British amateur title three years ago.

Dr. Willing, who is pitted against Egan today, established a wonderful record to reach the semifinals. He started with a victory over D. H. Hangster, California, and followed this feat by putting the skids under two of the three Englishmen, who made the match play grade.

FAVORITES OUT AT MET PLAY

The first day of match play of the tourney being played over the links of the Pomonok Country Club at Flushing, L. I., was featured by the elimination of several of the favorites, including Bobby Cruickshank, medalist.

Today's play brings together Gene Sarazen and Tony Manero, George Heron and Walter Kmak, Whitty Cox and Johnny Farrell and Joe Turnesa and Sal Di Duono.

Hudkins Wins Fight with Fight Board

San Francisco, Sept. 6 (INS)—Ace Hudkins, the Nebraska middleweight fighter, today was the winner of another fight. The Superior court found that the State Athletic Commission had no right to hold up his purse of $13,000 for his fight here several months ago with Charley Belanger.

The commission refused to give either Hudkins or Belanger any money after the fight, basing its refusal on the grounds that the fighters staged a "hippodrome."

The court held that the fighters fulfilled their contract by fighting ten rounds and pointed out that the referee could have stopped the bout if he had wished to do so.

Navy Wins Letter of President Hoover

The much sought trophy which goes to the winner is neither a medal nor a cup but a neatly typed letter bearing the signature of the President of the United States congratulating the winner of the match.

GOURDIN IN QUINCY MEET

The annual New England outdoor track and field championships which are to be staged at Pfaff man's Oval, Quincy, on Sunday afternoon, will be one of the greatest meets of its kind in years.

Frank Bruce, who is handling the entries for the city of Quincy, sponsors of the meet, states that all the leading track athletes in New England will be on hand for the title events.

In the 100-yard dash event all of the leading sprinters will be on hand for the starter's gun. Ned Gourdin, ex-Harvard star and former holder of the world's running broad jump mark, will be one of the starters in this race.

Pasquantons of Boston College, George Morin, B. A. A., and Myer Yavner, ex-Dorchester high star are some of the other sprinters out for championship honors. The same field will compete in the 220-yard race.

The 440 yards run should be one of the feature races of the day. Ralph Colson, former Lynn Boston High lad, will be one of the favorites in this event.

AUNT BELLA'S DAILY HOME BEAUTIFUL CHAT

I have been asked to describe the miscellaneous sleganeics or knicknacks for small apartments. I hardly know where to begin. The cradle, especially, is a great annoyance to the mother, when expecting company. For such a situation, the elegant folding cot shown here will prove a boon indeed. Made of strong cast iron pipe, it can be bent, and placed under the carpet. The only difficulty then is what to do with the baby, which Aunt Bella will discuss when she has more time. Tomorrow Aunt Bella will be on the air all day with her talk, "The Free Saw; or, Making Presentation Gifts."

BOSTON MAN IS AUTHORITY ON FILM TRADE

By FRANK H. MELOON
Financial Editor

George R. Canty, who was secretary to Andrew J. Peters when the latter was Mayor of Boston, and later to Congressman George Holden Tinkham, is today the U. S. Department of Commerce's outstanding authority on the moving picture business. Mr. Canty's studies of world trade in the "movies" are published in theatrical newspapers in all parts of the globe. Mr. Canty, now in Paris, will reach Boston Sept. 20, and will make a business trip to Hollywood while again in America.

GEORGE R. CANTY

* * *

W. Canty's thorough reports of new developments are of value not only to the film trade itself but also to the many thousands who have become more or less "silent" partners" through investment or speculation in the issues listed on the major stock exchanges.

* * *

Roger Babson was quoted as saying at Wellesley that the market crash is inevitable, which will cause a decline of 60 to 80 points in the Dow-Jones averages. That prophecy recalls his similar prophecy of Sept. 11, 1926, but at that time he said: "It may take two or three years to bring this about, or it may take place in a year."

* * *

We hold to the old belief that future prices are a mere matter of guessing on anyone's part, but it is very fine if you guess right and back the guess, short or long, with your money. And, on the other hand, it is very bad if your money is subjected to the hazards of a wrong guess. In the meantime, shrewd buyers, placing their funds for investment, continue to make money down through the years. Some of yesterday's late soaring may have been over the heads of Wellesley forecast, for Mr. Babson has a large and devoted following.

President Gage P. Wright of the Business Economic Digest declares: "There has been no fundamental change in the bullish attitude toward investments on the part of practically all authorities. The outlook for general business for the remainder of the year, at least, is distinctly bright."

Don M. Compton, vice president and general manager of U. S. Radio & Television Corporation today announced that the company through its regular channels of trade has disposed of more than 60,000 radio sets without disturbing the markets for new models.

"Instead of dumping these sets, which were the result of our last production, on the market, we have disposed of them to our regular distributors and dealers through them to make a profit," said Mr. Compton.

American radio concerns predict big sales. They might not be so large if the heavens were to darken the United States as they are in some vast areas of the world. Such a darkening would make it impossible for the Postal Department of the Australian federal government has instituted a campaign against unlicensed broadcast listeners, and up to the present has obtained 1707 convictions within the Commonwealth, according to Assistant Trade Commissioner Lewis H. STOCKS RALLY IN WALL ST. TRADING

New York, Sept. 6 (AP)—The stock market, which underwent a drastic reaction in the last hour of trading yesterday, bounded upward in impressive fashion at the opening of today's session.

Loose Wiles Biscuit opened with a block of 8000 at 81, up 3¾, and to a new high record; Radio opened with a block of 5000 shares at 106, up 3¾; and American & Foreign Power with a block of 5000 shares at 163½, up 4½. International Telephone, Johns Manville and General Electric each showed initial gains of 4 points or more.

There were a few exceptions. Union Pacific, Lackawanna and American Telephone opening point or so lower.

The opening buying demonstration apparently was the answer of Wall Street both to the prediction of a well known statistician that a break in prices rivalling the 1907 and 1920 panics would come "sooner or later," which was held responsible for yesterday's break in prices.

The mild upturn, however, led many conservative traders to take profits with the result that many of the early leaders dropped 1 to nearly 6 points below their opening quotations. On the other hand numerous others extended their early gains.

While the increase of $137,000,000 in Federal Reserve brokers' loans to another new high record, coming soon after the record-breaking monthly combination of the New York stock exchange, was a disappointment, the immediate market effect was negligible.

Loose Wiles dropped from its opening price of 84 to 78½, Allied Chemical, which broke 12 points yesterday, rallied 12 in the first half hour of trading. Simmons Co. opened with a block of 5000 shares at 155, up 6%, and a new high record.

Delaware & Hudson, Standard Gas & Electric, National Cash Register, American Water Works, New York Central and Du Pont Powder recorded early gains of 3 to nearly 5 points.

Addressograph Multigraph opened 3 points, American Bosch Magneto 2¾ and Eastman Kodak 2, with at least a dozen others, including some of the Western rails, losing a point or so.

Electric Bond Rises on the New York Curb

Electric Bond & share was a leader in New York Curb trading today, up 5 at 150. Public utility issues held the van of the advance. International Superpower was up 2 at 80. American Superpower down 1 at 61; and Central States Electric up 1 at 80. General Theater Equipment declined 1 to 20. Goldman Sachs Trading, up ¼; Elec Investors 277, off 1; Shenandoah Corp 31, up 1.

Cotton Estimate

and costs to £1321. (One pound equals $4.86.)

Temple Corporation has opened a radio service school in Chicago Clearing district, with Robert McGregor, assistant service engineer of the company, in charge. Temple dealers and service men from Illinois, Pennsylvania, Michigan, New York, Georgia and Illinois are members of the classes, which show a 50 per cent increase in attendance over previous enrollments in the Temple school, according to Fred Temple, vice-president.

New building awards in New England for the week ended September 3 show a large increase. The average of the year to date is $25,576,600. Last year awards amounted to $4,596,000 as reported by F. W. Dodge Corp. This compares with a total for the like week in 1928 of $1,472,200, and is the largest total for the week ever recorded with the exception of 1925.

* * *

George R. Kimball of the Henley-Kimball Co., Frederick A Smith of the F. S. Payne Co. and Ralph U. Sawyer of H. M. Sawyer & Sons, Inc., have been elected directors of the Central Trust Co. of Cambridge.

* * *

Matthew C. Brush, former head of the Bush Electric and Ernest J. Purdy Power Co., has been elected directors of Refinance Management Corp.

* * *

* * *

Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale, famous economist, took issue today with the prediction of Roger Babson, that the stock market is headed for a crash. Prof. Fisher does not generally too high, he believes.

* * *

Present high stock prices, Professor thinks are caused chiefly by two factors: the anticipation of rapid industrial progress in the immediate future, and reduction of risk to the investor, largely brought about through investment diversification made possible for the small investor by investment trusts. Prof. Fisher's investment index, despite rise of stock prices, has increased only from 2¼ per cent to 3 per cent.

* * *

According to Pres. H. H. Doehler of Doehler Die Casting Co. it is expected that the company will place its common stock on a dividend basis in 1930.

MANHATTAN RY. SETTLEMENT IS FORESEEN

As result of settlement between the city and Interborough Rapid Transit on disputed accounting matters in connection with subway operating agreement since 3 for the past 10 years, holders of the modified 5 per cent guaranteed stock of Manhattan Railway may expect in the near future some payment on accrued dividends on their stock.

Last payment of $1.25 was on October 1, 1927, and was out of earnings for quarter ended June 30 last year. Probable amount is the only payment that can be expected at this time is $5 for the year ended June 30, 1928, in view of the settlement just made and earnings for year ended June 30 last.

Under settlement with the city through Transit Commission there was involved payment by company to city of $6,291,118 to be applied in reduction of the city's accrued deficits as of June 30, 1929, under contract 3. In other words, there was company accrued preferential under contract 3 as previously claimed as of June 30, 1929.

These earnings for year ended June 30 last, only that portion to which the company has priority of record with contract 3 can be considered applicable to dividends on Manhattan modified stock. Preliminary report for the year just ended shows $3,007,900 net after allowing dividends on Manhattan modified stocks of $2,782,450. But this only shows total earnings of subway and elevated divisions and does not give effect to any division of earnings between city and company as provided by contract 3.

For several years the company has been entitled to all earnings on account of a large accrual of unearned preferentials under contract 3 in previous years. In year ended June 30, 1929, earnings of the subway were something like $8,300,000 more than shown by annual income statement and consequently no earnings were shown available for the modified 5 per cent guaranteed stockholders of Manhattan Railway.

For year ended June 30, 1928, however, earnings appeared to be about sufficient to pay the 5 per cent Manhattan railway dividend, and holders apparently are entitled to at least payment of about that amount. No dividend is payable unless earned. Outlook under present conditions is that the dividend will not be earned. It is doubtful if anything will be paid on the Manhattan 5 per cent stock assuming a 5-cent fare on both subway and elevated

Views of Brokers on Stock Market

Blyth & Co.—With the industrial averages up about 10 per cent in less than a month, the current reaction need hardly cause astonishment. It has certainly not yet gone beyond the normal extent of a technical reaction. With business maintained high levels, with credit situation still sound though not easy and the public in a speculative mood, we should be inclined to look for an upward turn in the near future. A decline in volume will be the normal sequel but purchases of selected stocks on a scale down might well be begun immediately.

F. B. Keech & Co.—The market will be all the better for the cleaning out it has had and we would feel inclined to buy on any further weakness in anticipation of a sharp recovery.

Eastern Utilities Earnings Increase

Eastern Utilities Associates reports for 12 months ended July 31, 1929, profit available to reserves and Eastern Utilities Associates of $2,530,390 after taxes, interest, amortization, preferred dividends of subsidiaries and amount applicable to common stock of subsidiaries not owned. This compares with $2,203,341 in preceding 12 months. Stock consists of 695,705 shares of no-par common and 787,014 convertible shares of no-par stock.

Plane Not Serious Rival of Railways, Budd Holds

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Ralph Budd, president of the Great Northern Railway, regards the airplane as no serious competitor of the railroads.

Asked for a message in this column, the executive pointed out: "I have never felt the airplane would take much business away from the railways, as air travel rather probably will be in addition to rail travel rather than taken away from it to any great extent."

This view is somewhat at variance with the policy of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, the Pennsylvania, and the New York Central, which, recognizing the new status of the airplane as an agency of transportation, have arranged to give co-ordinated rail and airplane service from coast to coast.

"Long distance passenger travel," Mr. Budd added, "is increasing slightly; but passenger travel is still declining."

In asserting the significance of the O'Fallon rate decision, which marked a turning point in investment sentiment toward railroad securities, Mr. Budd pointed out:

"The present rate structure has not been yielding a fair return, which the railways, particularly in the Northwest, can earn a fair return on the value of their property. In so far as rates can be made to yield such revenues, that should be done but the increase can be considered applicable to dividends on Manhattan modified stock. Preliminary report for the year just ended shows $3,007,900 net after allowing dividends on Manhattan modified stocks of $2,782,450. But this only shows total earnings of subway and elevated divisions and does not give effect to any division of earnings between city and company as provided by contract 3.

For several years the company has been entitled to all earnings on account of a large accrual of unearned preferentials under contract 3 in previous years. In year ended June 30, 1929, earnings of the subway were something like $8,300,000 more than shown by annual income statement and consequently no earnings were shown available for the modified 5 per cent guaranteed stockholders of Manhattan Railway.

For year ended June 30, 1928, however, earnings appeared to be about sufficient to pay the 5 per cent Manhattan railway dividend, and holders apparently are entitled to at least payment of about that amount. No dividend is payable unless earned. Outlook under present conditions is that the dividend will not be earned. It is doubtful if anything will be paid on the Manhattan 5 per cent stock assuming a 5-cent fare on both subway and elevated

Asked whether he anticipates as a result of the improved sentiment toward railroad investments any further railroad building in the United States, Mr. Budd replied

"Only a limited volume of new railway remains to be built in the United States. More tracks will be laid on existing railway systems as is found necessary to keep up with the increasing traffic and with improved facilities generally. Efficiency has been greatly increased since the World War by improvements that have been made resulting in longer trains, expedited movement, and greater safety. Locomotives have at the same time been so improved that they can be operated greater distances between terminals and effect much greater economy in the use of fuel. Through the co-operation of railway managers, railway employes, and shippers, great improvement has been made in the past few years in the utilization of the existing railway plant, by heavier loading of cars, less terminal delay, prompter releasing of equipment, etc., but much more can and no doubt will be done in that respect in the future."

In sketching the goal of his own road, Mr. Budd revealed: "The objective of the Great Northern Railway Company is, and has been in the past, to expand its lines and facilities to take care of the future growth and development of its territory, and to foster and encourage that growth and development by providing the best transportation service possible. The policy of the Great Northern has been to take advantage of the development of improvements in motive power, equipment signals, telephone and telegraph systems, and other devices which make for increased efficiency in operation and that policy will be continued."

Mr. Budd, in diagnosing the cause of declining local passenger travel, asserted:

"The trend of local travel is, and for several years has been, toward the highway, while long journeys continue to be made by rail. The private automobile, and not the highway, is the cause of this trend. Railways may use busses to advantage in combination with rail trips, and many have done some travel that otherwise would go entirely by automobile. Busses may also be used to take the place of local train service which has become unprofitable, but which, without some substitute, would have to be continued.

"The ultimate extent of highway bus development demands, first upon whether the public will remember the service important enough so that it will adopt towards the industry the attitude and show all definite and stable policies of regulation and taxation, and second, upon whether far the operators will go in providing the best equipment that can be devised, and in giving schedules and other service that meets every need of local travel, including reasonably low rates. This practice which operators have shown thus far, and the willingness of manufacturers to cooperate with them in making improvements, leaves little doubt as to the future."

BANK CLEARING GAIN GOOD OVER YEAR AGO

Although bank clearings returns for August from New York City and the cities outside New York showed the usual slight seasonal decline from July, heavy gains over a year ago were registered, says Bradstreet's.

These increases were partly accounted for by the continued heavy speculation in stocks and partly by the small gain shown in August a year ago, over the like month of 1927. It is worthy of note that every group of cities shared in the increase over last year, the gains being large, except in the southwestern group.

Bank clearings at 126 cities of the United States reporting to Bradstreet's in August amounted to $59,337,140,000, a decrease of 2.6 per cent from July but a gain of 32 per cent over August a year ago and the largest total for the month on record. The total has also been exceeded in only four previous months, these being December of last year and January, March and July of this year.

New York City's clearings totaled $30,199,225,000, a decrease of 2.5 per cent over the like month a year ago. At the 126 cities outside New York the aggregate was $20,137,915,000, a drop of 2.2 per cent from July, but a gain of 42 per cent over August of last year. The heaviest gain over a year ago was displayed by the middle-Atlantic group of cities, which showed an increase of 42.2 per cent, this reflecting the rise at New York.

For the eight months ended with August, bank clearings at 126 cities aggregated $465,629,876,000, an increase of 15.4 per cent over the like months of last year and a record for the period. New York City accounted for $307,899,373,000 of this total, and showed an increase of 22.3 per cent over last year, whereas the cities outside New York, with a total of $157,730,503,000, showed an increase of only 3.8 per cent. All groups of cities showed increases for the eight months' period, except the northwestern, which registered a slight decline.

BUILDING FOR NATION SEEN AS ACTIVE

That the nation's program of building construction has not been halted by tight money is apparent, but there is occurring a marked shifting about in the different classes of construction, says the National City Bank of New York Review.

Contracts awarded in July increased sharply above the June figures and the month's total of $652,400,000 as compiled by the F W Dodge Corp. were the highest ever recorded with the exception of May, 1928.

Preliminary figures for August indicate a total of approximately $490,000,000, which would bring the total for this year up to Sept. 1 around $4,174,000,000, compared with $4,545,000,000 in the corresponding period of 1928.

As July represents a decrease of only 8.2 per cent from the record year, the showing is regarded as favorable, and the volume of contemplated work is not yet contracted for is also holding up very well.

Public utility construction has resulted in excellent demand for electrical equipment and various copper products. Copper buying by fabricators is once more coming to the fore after the general lull in the market has followed the price flurry last spring.

Production curtailment plans of producers have had their effect in keeping stocks of the metal within reasonable bounds, world production for July and August amounting to 374,547 tons, and inventories of refined copper at the end of the month being slightly under 100,000 tons, these figures representing no consequential change from the previous month.

Price of electrolytic has held firm at 18 cents per pound and apparently the seasonal slump in sales of both domestic and foreign consumers have been reduced enough for them to make inquiry in the open market.

For the first twenty-eight days of August, forty sales of copper aggregated 49,000 tons, compared with 36,000 tons for the entire month of July and were in excess of the total sales for April, May, and June combined. At present there is no evidence of any decrease in the rate of copper consumption, which is steadily gaining a widening field of industry.

FLOOD CONTROL WORK ACTIVE

Standard Dredging Company is now actively working on eight different flood control operations for the United States Government, R A. Parry, president, announced today.

These projects are along the Mississippi river, between Baton Rouge on the south to a point 500 miles north. The contracts aggregate $21,000,000 in the words of work, and officials state they will keep the company's equipment busy, as they anticipate operating at full capacity for 12 months.

Standard Dredging Company operates barges and dredges of all types for handling excavation work of all kinds. Convertible preference stock and common stock is listed on the Chicago Stock Exchange.

Rise in Steel Buying Expected This Month

American Metal Market says: During the July-August holiday season, particularly the closing fortnight, steel consumers have been inactive in placing specifications partly from old engagements. A decided rise in buying is to be expected this month, but that would not presage any increase in rate of steel production.

An autumn rise in steel production cannot be expected when there was a complete absence of the usual midsummer drop. In May, early in steel production there has been a very slow but quite steady decrease, and various considerations suggest the decrease will continue to the end of the year, though perhaps with a temporary increase for October. If the last five months of the year should average production of July and May the yearly ingot output would be 58 500,000 tons, or 25 per cent above any year prior to 1929, and it is premature to receive of such an increase with known conditions in the various consuming lines.

Dartmouth Mfg. Is Buying Up Preferred

New Bedford, Sept. 6—Holders of the 6000 shares of 5 per cent preferred stock of Dartmouth Manufacturing Co. have received an offer from the company of $87 a share for all stock turned in by Sept. 15. Par value of the stock is $100, and it is quoted currently at $80 bid.

In June, the Dartmouth Co. bought in at $90 a share one-third of its 86,000 outstanding shares of common stock

U. S. Freight Co.

United States Freight Co. reports for six months ended June 30 net profit of $670,855 after taxes, interest, depreciation, etc., against $346,980 in the first six months of 1928.

PACIFIC GAS RIGHTS OUT

San Francisco, Sept. 6—Pacific Gas & Electric Co. is offering stockholders of record date still undetermined, but presumably about Sept. 15, three distinct classes of common stock rights.

The first, designated as par offering number five, offers stockholders right to purchase one new share for each 10 held at $25 a share. The second offering, designated as offering "A," gives stockholders right to purchase one new share for each 10 held at $55 a share. By exercising both rights the holder of 10 shares may secure two new shares at an average of $40 a share, making the rights, at current market of around 92 for the stock, worth approximately $8.86

Sale of these 625,800 extra shares will give capital fund auf more than $25,000,000, to be used in Pacific Gas & Co.'s construction program, notably the natural gas transmission and distribution system and the hydroelectric plant on Mokelumne river.

Neisner Brothers Sales Increase 10 p.c.

Neisner Brothers, Inc., operating a chain of variety stores, reports gross sales of $1,342,557 for August, against $785,166 for August 1928, an increase of $557,391, or 70.9 per cent. For the eight months ended August sales aggregated $13,337,937, against $9,267,347 for the same month last year, an increase of $2,866,033, or 54.3 per cent.

Silver & Bros. August Sales Show Increase

Isaac Silver & Bros. Co. for August report gross sales of $718,346 against $459,622 last year, an increase of $258,723 or 56.2 per cent. For the eight months ended August sales totaled $4,534,735 against $3,541,668 last year, an increase of $1,993,067 or 28 per cent.

MERGED SCREW WORKS ADDS TO LISTING

Federal Screw Works common stock to the amount of 183,000 shares has been approved for listing on the Chicago Stock Exchange by the governors of the exchange. Of this total, 143,500 shares have been admitted to immediate trading and an additional 15,500 shares will be admitted to trading upon issuance in connection with the acquisition of an additional property by the company.

Federal Screw Works manufactures a complete line of automatic screw machine products. Its plants are located at Detroit, Chicago and Lansing, Mich. The company has expanded rapidly in recent years, two important additions having been made to its organization in the last several months.

In October of last year, the company acquired the Chelsea Screw Company through an exchange of stock and in January of this year Federal acquired the Michigan Screw Company. Negotiations are now being carried on looking to the fusion of the Superior Screw and Keen Manufacturing Company, further extending the company's operations.

Simultaneously with listing of the stock on the Chicago Stock Exchange, it was announced by the Federal Screw Works that the financing of this new program has been underwritten and will be publicly offered shortly by Folds, Buck & Company, Samuel Unglieder and Co., and Bauer, Pogue, Pfeil & Wyler, Inc.

The constituent companies, including the Superior company, had consolidated sales of $3,778,976 for the six months ended June 30, 1929. Net income for the period amounted to $564,997 after all charges and taxes, equivalent to $4.18 a share on the 159,000 shares of common stock presently to be outstanding.

The business of the Federal Screw Works was established in 1917 as a copartnership, the initial capital being approximately $3,500. The company has grown phenomenally since that time, a brief sketch of its history will reveal. In 1919, the business was incorporated under the laws of Michigan with cash capital of $43,000 to which was added $40,000 in 1924 and $100,000 of stock to employees and by June, 1928, without further paid-in capital, the company had earned $450,000 in cash dividends and had established an earning power at an annual rate of over $350,000.

The company's productive capacity has been continuously increased to meet the demand of the automobile industry. At present the company serves a number of the leaders in this field, among their largest customers being Buick, Chrysler, Ford, Hudson, General Motors, Packard, Reo, Studebaker and Willys-Overland.

Well-known industrial organizations such as Detroit Edison, Shaw-leigh Hardware, Standard Oil Company of New Jersey and Youngstown Sheet and Tube, are also large customers of the Federal Screw Works and its subsidiary organization.

The stock is listed on the New York Curb Exchange and the Detroit Stock Exchange, in addition to the Chicago listing.

Nutt Is President Of Investment House

The Union Cleveland Corp., recently formed by the Union Trust Company, Cleveland, for the purpose of underwriting, wholesaling and retailing various securities, has begun operations, it is announced by J. R. Nutt, president of the bank. Mr. Nutt will also be president of the new corporation, which will conduct and develop the business formerly done by the bank's bond department.

Organization of the new unit, which was projected some months ago, was completed late last week. Its list of 15 directors contains names prominent in financial and industrial circles. The direct management of the corporation will be in the hands of A. C. Corey, vice-president and general manager, and C. B. Lincoln, vice-president. The new corporation is a subsidiary of the shareholders of the Union Trust Co., the stock interest of each shareholder being proportionate to his stock interest in the bank.

Metropolitan Chain Stores, Inc., for August, 1929 report gross surplus of $1,612,221 against $993,481 last year, an increase of $618,740 or 62.2 per cent. For the eight months ended August gross sales were $9,738,919 against $7,175,316 for the same period last year, an increase of $2,563,603 or 35.7 per cent.

As of August 31, 1929, the company had 331 stores in operation, an increase of 100 stores since January 1, 1929. Eight new stores were opened during August of which five were placed in service on the last Saturday of the month. The company, it is announced, will add 20 units to the chain before the close of the year.

Rolling Mills Under Accumulation

GREATER activity in American Rolling Mills reflects buying by most important interests. This demand is induced by appreciation of the tremendous possibilities for the company's patented process which is desired by the entire steel industry. Accumulation of the stock at present is in anticipation of substantially larger earnings for the company upon completion of its plant readjustment to the new process. The company will also begin shortly to receive royalties from United States Steel Corporation by reason of the latter's use of the process. American Rolling Mills might easily duplicate the spectacular performance of other market leaders

Standard Brands-Kraft Cheese Deal.

NEGOTIATIONS are being carried on seeking a consolidation of the Standard Brands and Kraft-Phenix Cheese enterprises. The discussions have reached the stage where terms have virtually been agreed upon, although the Kraft-Phenix interests are understood to be holding out for a price somewhat higher than the Standard Brands management is yet willing to grant. The market price of the respective issues naturally suggests a one-and one-half-for-one exchange. Consummation of this deal will probably induce Standard Brands to attempt even more ambitious expansion.

It is pointed out that, for example, 400 shares Solvay preferred bought at 110 represent 100 Allied Chemical at $325 with 5 per cent return on your investment. Allied's own $4 dividend gives it a stock actually below 2 per cent return.

Mergers with other American public utility concerns, including American Superpower, are not being considered, it is declared. Official of Electric Bond & Share denies reports of merger between Electric Bond & Share and Electric Investors, Inc.

It is more probable that consolidation of Electric Investors and American Superpower would be effected. Both of these are holding companies, while Electric Bond & Share is both a holding and management company

HUB BUSINESS MEN URGE CAPE CANAL WORK

Frank S. Davis, head of the maritime bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, and a delegation of Boston business men called upon Secretary of War Good in Washington and urged him to recommend that the Government begin the work of widening and deepening the Cape Cod Canal immediately. Secretary Good expressed a sympathetic interest in the matter and indicated he might make a visit to the canal to inspect the property, which was taken over by the Government some time ago. The Boston delegation also conferred with the army engineers about the canal.

The plea was made particularly in the interest of shipping. Davis told the officials here that he believed there exists authority for a survey to be made, without further action by Congress, to determine what improvements should be made in the canal by the Government. He promised to look into the matter.

ADDED LOANS FOR COTTON GROWERS

Washington, Sept. 6—The Federal Farm Board has arranged for additional loans to cotton co-operative marketing associations in the South, whereby the unhedged cotton can receive a supplemental loan of 10 per cent above the amount loaned by the intermediate credit banks.

Previously the board agreed to advance 25 per cent of the value of hedged cotton controlled by associations. This advance is to be supplemental to a 65 per cent loan already made by the intermediate credit banks, which gives those associations an advance equal to 90 per cent of the fixed value of the cotton.

Under the agreement the board provided for a supplemental 10 per cent advance on cotton on which prices have not been fixed.

Alexander Legge, chairman of the board, said he expected the demand as a result of the granting of the supplemental loan would [redacted] to $20,000,000 within the next 90 days.

ASK U. S. VOTE ON CALENDAR

Washington, Sept. 6—A nation-wide referendum on the subject of calendar reform has been started by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

Member organizations are asked to vote on three recommendations of a special committee of the Chamber, as follows:

That the present calendar should be so changed as to bring about a greater comparability in business records.

That the form of the new calendar should be determined through international conference.

The committee has put forward no specific plan of "reform," pointing to the difference of opinion that exists among proponents of a change.

Two members of the committe Stanley H. Ballard of Bridgeport, Conn., and Henry D. Fearpe of Providence, R. I., yesterday submitted a minority report vigorously opposing any changes in the calendar.

Auto Kills Woman Leaving Church

As she was crossing the street to her home after attending St. Mary's Church, Dedham, Mrs. Margaret Condon, 68, of High st., was struck by an auto and fatally injured.

Rev. James H. Doyle of St Mary's Church, hearing the screams of the injured woman, administered the last rites before she was hurried to the Dedham Emergency Hospital. She died on the way there. The car was driven by Carleton H. Schmalz of Bussey pl., East Dedham, according to the police.

Mrs. Condon is survived by four sons, James F., Joseph T., Charles A. and John Condon.

Bellboys to Be Priests

OCEAN AIR LINE APRIL, 1931

Friedrichshafen, Germany, Sept 6—Dr. Hugo Eckener's negotiations in the United States for establishment of a Transatlantic Zeppelin Company to maintain regular service are near success, it was learned on high authority here.

Although details are withheld regular service between the United States and Germany will start early in 1931, probably in April, according to present plans.

A delay of about one year in starting regular service will be due to the fact that it takes 14 months to build a Zeppelin suitable for transatlantic service.

"We naturally are looking into the future," said Capt. Ernst Lehmann, who commanded the Graf Zeppelin on its latest flight, "but we have no concrete plans beyond transatlantic service. A second route will be established from Europe to South America, although details are not yet developed. Later we hope to connect North and South America."

Captain Lehmann said the suggestion of a route from Berlin to Tokio will be considered only after the transatlantic route has proved efficient.

Druggist Fined on Liquor Charge

John Scannell, who runs a drug store at Beacon and Washington sts., was fined $150 in Somerville court after Judge Sturtevant had been told that raiders found several pints of non-government liquor and some alcohol in the drug store Scannell protested that the pints were for personal consumption on his vacation, but the fine was assessed on a charge of keeping and exposing Liquor for sale

China Asks U. S. to Surrender Rights

Nanking, China, Sept. 6 (AP)—C. T. Wang, Foreign Minister, told newspapers today he was mailing new notes to the United States, Great Britain, France, Norway and the Netherlands, urging them to give up their extra-territoriality rights in China without delay.

DIVORCES BRIDE WHO VANISHED AFTER WEDDING

Providence, Sept. 6—Deserted by his Virginia bride a few weeks after their wedding in 1922, Delmar S. Dover, young Providence manufacturer, has finally divorced her.

The decree was granted in June, although the record has just come to light in divorce court.

Dover informed the court that his wife, the former Kathryn Holcomb Dewell, of Richmond, never considered their marriage legal. She had informed him after the wedding that she had been married before.

Dover made a search for her in 1928 when he received a letter from her from New York, but he was unable to find her. The letter read:

"Dear Del:

"Are you married again? If so, I hope I won't be getting you in trouble by my writing. If you are, please accept my love and best regards. I wish you the best of luck and all the happiness in the world.

"Please tell me about yourself and all the news and if you ever think of me—No? If I don't hear from you soon I shall know that you have forgotten me."

The young woman gave a New York hotel as her address, but Dover failed to find her. Search of records disclosed that she had been married to one Leonard Dewell in 1916, but no record of a divorce could be found.

Witwer Wrote Much but No Will

Los Angeles, Sept. 6 (AP)—H. C. Witwer, nationally known writer who died recently, left no will, it was disclosed today after his widow, Sadie S. Witwer, filed a petition for letters of administration.

The petition stated the estate consisted of a $1,000 automobile and interest in a building valued at $16,500, miscellaneous manuscripts of no given value and a claim for infringement of copyright against Harold Lloyd, now pending in U. S. court.

American Tourists Called Tight Wads

Paris, Sept. 6 (INS)—Americans have lost their reputation as good spenders in Gay Paree.

French hotel and restaurant owners are complaining that the Yankee tourists are not so free handed as they used to be.

While the Americans are coming to Europe in greater numbers the visitors are said to be far less open handed and generous than they used to be.

Americans used to be looked upon as traveling gold mines. But now they count their francs as carefully as any Frenchman when they receive change. If there is an error, as often happens. The American is sure to put up an argument. It used to be he only grinned and forgot it.

The English tourist, also has become a bargain hunter. But the brown derby goes to the German. He is the most painstaking of all when it comes to getting most for the least expenditure.

Newton Building Operations Slump

One of the greatest slumps in building operations in years occurred in Newton in August, according to the monthly report of the public buildings department.

The number of permits issued during the month was 176 and the valuation was $320,655. The valuation this year is about $1,700,000 less than that of the corresponding period in 1928, and $400,000 less than that of the same term in 1927

Many Dances Planned for Essex Club's Junior Tennis Tournament

THE CLOSING DAYS OF the summer season on the North Shore are to be brilliant and memorable ones before society treks townward. Several dances are on the social calendar, with the Essex County Club junior tennis tournament for next week. One of the largest house dances of the season will be given by Dr. and Mrs. John C. Phillips at their beautiful Wenham estate, Windyknob, on the evening of September 9, the first day of the Essex tournament. This dance is in honor of Misses Madelyn and Eleanor Phillips and is an event to which the subdebs are looking forward with much eagerness. Dr. and Mrs. Phillips are noted for their elaborate entertaining in town also, at their winter residence on Mt. Vernon st. The sub-debs are also looking forward with interest to the novelty of a dance given on board the palatial yacht, The Astec, on the evening of September 11, when Mrs. Albert C. Burrage will compliment her granddaughter, Miss Katharine Burrage. It will be her first ball on board the yacht and an event of thrilling interest to the younger set. On the evening of the 14th, members of the Manchester Yacht Club will have a dance following the awarding of sailing and other sports prizes for the season by Commodore Gordon Abbott, Jr.

THE NOVELTY DANCE done by Miss Winifred Thorndike and the petite Miss Phyllis Ellsworth at the last Vincent Club show is among the tentative program features already outlined by the committee arranging the elaborate cabaret dinner-dance at Del Monte's on September 13. Miss Gloria Braggiotti is slated to give dance numbers, and George Vaughan of Hamilton to tango with Miss Rita Kelley. Miss Louise Fessenden is to sing in costume, and a comedy skit may be given by Joseph Beabury of Dedham. Practically the entire North Shore colony plans to attend this affair, given in aid of the Beverly Hospital and sponsored by many important matrons. Mrs. William H. Coolidge of Manchester is in charge of the tickets. The committee in charge is composed of Mrs. Coolidge, Mrs. John Clune, Miss Louise Fessenden, Mrs. Lloyd Nichols, Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald and Mrs. Lyon Weyburn.

MISS DOROTHEA DEAN IS to be welcomed home from her European tour at a large dinner-dance tomorrow evening at the White Swan, Setauket. Miss Dean is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Dean of Brookline. She has been traveling with a party of schoolmates from Miss May's, with Miss Walley of the school staff. Covers will be laid for 60 guests and the dancing afterward will compliment both Miss Dorothea and her brother, James Dean, Jr.

CAPT. JANE BANCROFT, sailing with Miss Alice Burrage and Miss Christine Bartlett, brought the girls' championship yacht race cup back to the Bancroft family in the final races off Cohasset yesterday. Her mother, Mrs. Hugh Bancroft, was the donor of the cup which was won two years ago by another daughter of that house, Mrs. William Cox, who was then Miss Jessie Bancroft. The cup offered by Mrs. Charles Francis Adams was won by Miss Frances Williams sailing in a thick fog with no gallery to witness her remarkable victory. Miss Esther Sears came in third.

MISS HALLA BROWN, WHO is to make her debut in Boston society this season, was a visitor to town from New York yesterday, stopping at the Ritz-Carlton with her sister, Miss Camilla Brown. The girls were over in connection with opening their new home on Beacon st. Mr. and Mrs. Demarest Lloyd and Mrs. John W. Dwight of Washington, D. C., were also at the Ritz. Mr. and Mrs. Robert F. Herrick, Jr., are in New York, where they are stopping at the Ambassador.

Misses Joanne and Nancy Hoyt, the small daughters of Mrs. Joseph Hoyt, took keen interest in the program showing the whippet derby entrants at Princemere. They attended with their mother.

Mary Frances Loud Is Bride in Brilliant Paris Church Wedding

A WEDDING OF INTERNATIONAL interest was solemnized in Paris on September 3 when Miss Mary Frances Loud daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elliott Loud of Boston and Philadelphia, became the bride of Edouard Le Ghait. The ceremony took place in the Church of St. Clotilde with many distinguished guests from America and Europe attending. The bride made her home, since the death of her parents, with her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lea of Boston and Philadelphia. Her husband is attached to the Belgian embassy in Paris and is the son of the Belgian minister to Vienna and Mme Le Ghait. A reception was held at the Plaza Athenee following the wedding. Among the gifts was one from the King and Queen of Belgium.

Betty Alden

VIOLINIST SUED FOR $10,000 BY NASHUA WIFE

Nashua, N. H., Sept. 6—Love letters alleged to have been written by Miss Marguerite Webster, violinist and music teacher of Concord st., to Darius Robinson, formed the basis for a $10,000 alienation suit brought by Robinson's wife, Mrs. Agnes Robinson, against Miss Webster.

The Robinsons have been married for 23 years and have two grown-up children. Robinson is separated from his wife and lives in Milford. The two children live with their mother in this city.

In her suit, filed in the Hillsboro County Court by Atty. Robert Doyle of this city, Mrs. Robinson says that six years ago Miss Webster, who is 30 years old, became acquainted with her husband and fell violently in love with him.

Miss Webster, according to the complaint, wrote passionate letters to Robinson, who soon left his home. The complaint states further that the violin teacher poisoned Robinson's mind against his wife by misrepresentations and false insinuations.

Up until the time, six years ago, when Miss Webster came into her husband's life, Mrs. Robinson charges, they had lived very happily together.

G. A. R. GATHER AT PORTLAND FOR SESSION

Portland, Me., Sept. 6—The advance guard of a once mighty army—the Grand Army of the Republic—is moving on Portland, where next Monday the veterans will open their annual national encampment to continue all the week.

Forty-four years ago the same organization met here and then the great majority of the survivors of the Civil War were in their prime. Many of their gallant leaders were here, among them Gen. John A. Logan, the "Black Eagle," who rode at the head of the long parade of thousands of boys in blue; but the coming week will find few more than 2000 of the warriors among the 10,000 visitors in the city.

Missing from the throng will be veterans in every section of the country whom failing health forbids undertaking the long journey, and those who do come will parade only a short distance down Congress st., the city's main thoroughfare.

A large number in the procession will be unable to tramp even from Longfellow sq. to the City Building where an immense reviewing stand is being erected, and automobiles will be provided for them.

John Reese of Broken Bow, Neb., commander-in-chief of the organization, reached Portland accompanied by Mrs. Reese; Judge James W. Willard of Tana, Ia., judge advocate general of the Grand Army, and a past national commander; Miss Clara E. Lohew of Mullen, Neb., a deaconess identified with the Woman's Relief Corps; Dr. Mary M. McDonald of Denver, official escort to Commander Reese, and her husband, R. J. McDonald.

Buy a
GOOD USED CAR
80% VALUE at 60% PRICE

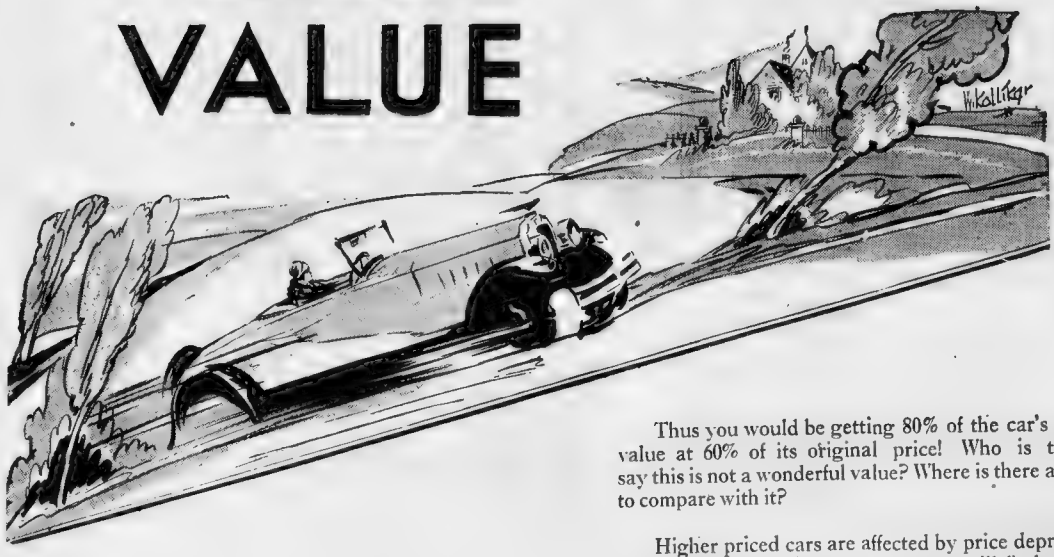
80% PRICE
60% VALUE



Good Used Cars are values extraordinary. Few other commodities can compare with them, dollar for dollar. This is because of the intense competition in the new car field, responsible for frequent price reductions and model changes

Price depreciation is rapid; in fact, all out of proportion to the actual worth of the car. But the first owner's penalty is the second owner's reward.

As an example, take a popular 1929 model in a standard make six-cylinder car in the thousand dollar class. Say it was delivered last year at $1070. Buy it today for about $600—perhaps it has run 10,000 miles and is economically good for 40,000 more miles.

Thus you would be getting 80% of the car's original value at 60% of its original price! Who is there to say this is not a wonderful value? Where is there anything to compare with it?

Higher priced cars are affected by price depreciation in a similar manner. That is why you will find so many bankers and professional men, who can well afford the best, conserving money and putting thrift ahead of vanity by purchasing GOOD USED CARS.

They convert the first owner's loss into profit for themselves. These men are smart buyers, who make their dollars work overtime. Perhaps you, too, should buy a Good Used Car.

The time for Used Car buying is here and the Automobile Merchants of Greater Boston are ready for you. What model do you seek—what price can you pay? Go to them with your problem—they can meet it.

Useful Hints on These Pages

NO woman can afford to miss these magazine pages. Here you will find household information of great value, a wonderful article by an eminent physician, important advice on matters of etiquette by a woman who knows, and fashion hints fresh from Paris, showing handsome gowns.

Dr. Block's Daily Health Hint

BEFORE going on a hike or taking an unusually long walk it is a wise precaution to bandage the heel or the joints of large toes with adhesive plaster. This prevents soreness developing from rubbing against the shoe. A blister on the heel, though apparently trivial, may be fatal to the sufferer.

A KISS FOR CORINNA -:- By May Christie

Story of a Rich Girl and Poor Girl After the Same Man

CHAPTER II

Denise felt no surprise. She was quite accustomed to that sort of thing, although tonight, queerly enough, she felt more than a little contemptuous about it.

Van Tuyl poured out two liberal portions of whiskey—for each of them—and drank his thirstily.

"Come on, Denise! Let's dance." He put his arm about her and the pair moved off together rhythmically.

Denise danced exquisitely. In her white dress, a long jade necklet dangling from her slender throat, she was as graceful as a waterlily. If it wasn't for the Broadway beauties and the chorus girls who kept getting between him and thoughts of matrimony, darned if he wouldn't have eloped with Denise long since, he told himself.

* * *

The dreamy look persisted in those amber-colored eyes of hers. She was "stand-offish" for a while, but presently her drinks began to pep her up a little . . .

Other couples kept arriving, till the place was simply packed with them. The fumes of alcohol were working on Van Tuyl. The swaying faces—Denise's lovely features—seemed a blur.

Denise danced in a careless fashion. When he suggested: "Come for a breath of air" she readily complied.

They went outside.

They walked up and down beside the line of cars, within whose dark interiors couples were giggling and drinking, or—here and there—rather eerily quiet . . .

What was the matter with the girl tonight? She was so silent. A sense of irritation came over Jack Van Tuyl, so that he muttered thickly: come into the car, Denise."

Her chin went up. "No, thanks!" "Please!"

"I'm perfectly comfortable out here——"

"Come on!" He grabbed her by the arm so tightly that he bruised her flesh.

"Oooh—Ouch! You pig! Let go, I say!"

The Scotch had gone to his head, however, and Denise's beauty. She was no longer just a fairy vision in the darkness, but a warm, desirable reality . . .

He held her tighter. "Come! I'm crazy about you!" and he started pulling her.

"I tell you I won't, you cad!" She struck at him with all her force as he dragged her into the closed auto.

* * *

In her little living room on West 110th st., Corinna Dugan was busily

It was nine o'clock. Her ears were keyed to the sound of a footstep on the stair. Would Malvey come this evening.

She wanted so to see him. . . . If only she could keep some of this extra money for her own adornment and not have to send it all home! Corinna loved her mother. Felt it was a privilege to help her.

But loving Malvey as she did—knowing that other women were attracted to him—it did seem hard that she couldn't get some new spring clothes.

The fingers of the clock moved round to half past nine, then ten. Hope died.

At half past eleven she began to feel sleepy and her back ached. She went into the kitchenette and made herself a cup of coffee. She simply must keep herself awake.

At midnight she was still sewing—circles of fatigue under her eyes. She had had a long and trying day in the shop—or perhaps it was the spring made her so tired

Or was it worry about Malvey? She was so wrapped up in him.

"I'm a fool to think so much about him," Corinna told herself.

But if you loved a man, you just couldn't help yourself. Tonight she wished she was like Marie, who saw life as a big amusing game

"Hello, honey! All on your lonesome?" At that moment it was after 1 a. m.—Marie herself, a somewhat tarnished silver evening coat about her slender body, entered the room.

Corinna looked up from her sewing. She was fond of Marie, although their ways of life were so utterly at variance.

"Had a good time. Where did you go after the show? Then, with a second glance at the other's face. "You looked fagged, dear. Would you like some coffee? The percolator's on the stove"

"Not on your life! I want to have a darn good sleep tonight, and no dreams, please."

There was something in Marie's tone that gave Corinna pause.

Marie was not one to be reticent. As she flung off her evening cloak with the sliding of invitation which was for, and then peeled off a diaphanous evening frock, revealing her slim person clad only in a wisp of silken "teddy," she announced in a hard little voice, "I went to the Blue Lagoon after the show with that Van Tuyl fellow.

Ships That Pass

DRAWN BY Nell Brinkley

SAILORS all, life for the sea-ways, and ourselves for ships. Some are trim yachts who walk their course under full snowy sail, well-kept, never neglected, sailing only at the most immaculate of ports. No cargo for them, unless it's sweet-smelling or rare, of valuable. Some are workboats, built for duty and not minding it a bit, beautiful to those of us who like our beauty-lines to serve some purpose, those of us who think that hand the most beautiful that looks clever and capable. Fighting boats, ashore for a bit of pleasure. These craft are cruising up and down our avenues right now, with an absurd little sailor-color in the back and a tea-cup of a cap cocked forward, looking mighty eager, and mighty nice-looking, and newly careened. Slow boats, and unwieldly liners barging about among the snooty little tugs that push and shove and get in and out of the traffic. Pretty little ships who support themselves and dance home from their work over the waves of the constantly choppy streets of any modern city.

Ships that pass. And wish sometimes when they MUST pass, bound by the conventions of the land-sea-way, slightly dipping the colors of their eyes to say, "I see you, I wish I could stand by, but I can't," that they could put about and go the way of the other one, make its port and sail beside it on every voyage out.

The gallant dark-blue liner passes derelict, workboat, barque, and tug, and once almost rams a dainty little sneak-box, immaculately sailed. They dress courses, dip colors and sigh. And never see one another again.

There are lots of good friends going by in the crowd and sometimes we look squarely into the eyes of one, and know it. But ships pass—lost to each other in the vast sea-ways of life.

CORRECT MANNERS

By MRS. BEECKMAN

Mrs. Beeckman will be pleased to answer questions from readers on problems of etiquette.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

Is it polite when one meets a friend to remark before everybody about any new clothes one may be wearing, such as: "Oh, see the new dress!" or "Somebody has a new coat!" I was taught it was rude, and to me it is very embarrassing. C. M.

NO! these forms of comment aren't especially pleasant, but if one knows the other person very well it is quite natural to say, "I do like your new frock so much," or "What a very beautiful new coat you have!" This friendly sort of comment from one we know very well need not be embarrassing. You are delighted that some one likes what you wear, and you quite naturally and simply say so: "Thank you. I am delighted to have you say so," or "I am so glad that you like it, dear. I have such faith in your taste that it makes me very proud that you like it."

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. Does one eat pickles with a knife and fork and olives with the fingers?

2. Is a young lady obliged to rise in the theater when any one passes in front of her to a seat beyond? My friend says this is an inconvenience to those behind.

3. Is the clause "May I present" used in introducing one woman to another?

4. Should I have used a business heading for this letter?

5. What do you think of my writing? S. E. K.

YES.

2. It is polite for her to rise, but if she moves to one side so that the entering person will find it easy to pass in front of her, this will not obstruct the view of the person behind her.

3. This term is more appropriate for the introduction of a man to a woman. However, if a very young girl is being introduced to an older woman, this term is appropriate. Usually, however, in the introduction of two women, as in the introduction of two men, only the names.

4. That would be correct.

5. Very good. But take even more care in the formation of each letter.

HONEY HELPINGS

TODAY I have what to me is a brand new idea, but perhaps you have already discovered that all fruits to which sweetening is added for serving are delightful when "honey-drizzled." Honey drizzled is better than honey poured, for a little gives just the sweetness desired and intensifies natural flavors; a lot of thick honey poured on makes any dish too sweet.

Martha Lee

Place the honey jar in WARM—not hot—water for about 10 minutes before using. When you're ready to add to food, it is just the right consistency to drizzle tiny threads instead of pouring a heavy stream. The flavor of citrus fruits has a new tang and intensity when honey-sweetened. It is particularly refreshing and appetizing, Grapefruit, prepared thus, starts your morning right.

GRAPEFRUIT

Halve the grapefruit; remove core and divide sections, as usually prepared. Pour over the fruit 2 or 3 tbsps. honey, let stand 15 to 30 minutes before serving.

In fruit salads honey is in its glory. Just drizzle honey on fruit slices arranged for serving and watch it thus honey-penetrate the fruit tissues—it's part of the whole in a minute. There's a reason for this! Honey has sugars in fruit and in honey are natural sugars so they blend perfectly. "Drizzled" honey is the simplest way to dress salads—to give them new, inviting flavor. Try this Barnard Favorite for cooling satisfaction on a hot summer day:

BARNARD FAVORITE

Peel and slice crosswise firm, medium-sized oranges, allowing 4 or 5 slices for each salad. Arrange crisp lettuce on individual dishes. Have slightly warmed honey in a saucer—shredded cocoanut in another. Dip orange slice in honey (both sides), then in cocoanut; arrange on salad plates. Heap halves of sweet red cherries or berries in center where orange slices meet. Drizzle a bit of honey on fruit in center; serve cold.

HONEY DATE BARS

Three eggs well beaten; mix with 1 cup honey. Add 1 tsp. baking powder sifted into 1 1-2 cups flour, then add pinch of salt, 1 lb. chopped dates, 1 cup chopped nuts. Bake in moderate oven about 40 minutes in long, flat tin (mixture spread to ½ inch thick). Cut in strips; roll in powdered sugar; pack in covered jar and keep at least a week before serving. (Excellent type for cookie jar.)

A TASTY DATE BAR SERVICE

Place 2 date strips on a plate; top with 2 tbsps. of ice cream and over this drizzle a little honey; dress top with spoon of honey, sweetened whipped cream and a cherry.

Honey in sandwich fillings brings extra goodness to the lunch. Blend with cream cheese, chopped nuts, raisins and celery, chopped carrots, peanut butter, dates chopped fine (or without nuts), or many other combinations. You'll find them all different and delicious; easy to make—most appetizing in sandwiches—plain, rolled, ribbon or tier—honey assures additional flavor. Keeps the sandwich moist, and holds crumbly bread together. A good combination in new form:

HONEY PECAN BREAD ROLL

Thoroughly blend 1 cup finely cut salted pecans with ¼ cup slightly warmed honey to form spreading paste. Cut bread in slices full length of loaf (ordinary loaf cuts in lengthwise slices). Spread with butter, then with honey pecan paste, and roll as for jelly roll. Wrap each in waxed paper and tie to keep intact. Let stand an hour or longer; remove paper and cut each roll in 3 slices—each loaf used makes 15.

Yours,
"HA LEE.

NEW YORK

COPIES EITHER MODE

The Paris couturiers have created this strikingly smart ensemble for the little miss of 8, 10, 12 and 14 years.

It is one of the most practical ideas, and one of the smartest ever.

It is especially suitable for classroom.

The jacket is sportive in tailored styling with rolled collar and revers. Sleeves have turn-back cuffs.

The dress has short kimono sleeves and Viennese neckline trimmed with applied bands of the tweed. The attached skirt has inverted plaits either side of front. The belt is removable and is made of the tweed.

Pattern price 15c stamps or coin (wrapped carefully). Enclose 10c additional if you wish a copy of our latest book of Fifth Avenue Fashions. All our styles are created in Paris or New York. Every pattern contains full directions. Very easy to use and guaranteed to fit perfectly.

WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By HELEN ROWLAND

COMPANIONATE marriage has proved to be just about as effective and practicable as the hip-length fur coats—only a foolish, little makeshift that covers nothing but your pride.

Women are like automobiles. The more useful they become in this world, the more beautiful they seem to become. The old idea that presence of mind denoted absence of beauty is now in the discard along with horse cars, wash-pitchers and embroidered "splashers."

Wail of An Omarette.

The health-fads, I have known to wax and wane
Have gripped the public fancy, for a while—
Then passed as lightly as a summer rain.

Of carrots, I've consumed a ton or two,
And learned all fattening dishes to eschew,
And yet, withal, I am no lovelier now,
Than if I'd dined, each day, on Irish stew!

I've counted every calory I ate,
And, shuddering, have swallowed things I hate,
All for the vitamines! But, in the end,

The beauty parlors I have fondly tried,
Have tempted me—but ah, how oft they lied!
For, this I found, —a "facial" lasts a day,
And dyed hair always LOOKS distinctly "dyed"!

Into each craze we rush, with bright hopes burning—
Then, out again, and on to another turning.
We see the "joker," mutter "Gypped, again"!
Still come no nearer to the lesson learning.

How oft, I've leapt from bed, my tryst to keep
With "Daily Dozen" stunts. But why the leap?
For, all it's ever done, I might as well
Have closed my eyes—and had my beauty sleep!

I've bared myself to sunrays bold and hot!
But, for all, alas, was all I ever got—
A blistered back, a peeling nose, a tan
That made me sister to the Hottentot!

And, now, with all this nonsense, I am through
I leave the quest of beauty, Love, to YOU
I'll try no more, I'll hope no more, unless—
Unless, perchance, you know of something NEW!

Advice to Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I love a fellow dearly. Our folks know each other and his sister and I are best friends. He is twenty-one and I am seventeen.

I go out with him at times—sometimes for a week a month—then all of a sudden, for no reason at all, he doesn't come over or ask me to go out any more.

His sister tells me he doesn't go out with any girls. The funny things he has taken up with me and seems to love me very much at times—mostly when there is some one else who pays some attention to me and whom I might seem attracted to. Can I find out in some way whether he loves me? I will look for your answer, which I will appreciate very much. PUZZLED.

THERE is only one way to find whether a man loves you, dear "Puzzled." That is to wait until he tells you so of his own accord. Even then the words, "I love you," may mean everything in the world or very little, indeed. But when a man seriously loves a girl, he proves his love by asking her to be his wife.

I can only suggest that you continue to regard your chum's brother as a good friend. Go about with other young men you like. If that spurs his interest in you, so much the better!

Fashion Fads

Giddy pieces of fluff, but nevertheless dear to the heart of miladi, are the cotton containers made of wisps of organdie and perhaps a petit flower or two. Made in large squares in all the boudoir shades, these bits of femininity would do honor to any dressing table.

The turban's the thing for miladi's formal tailleur as well as her chic afternoon frock. Quite entrancing is a simple little affair of black and satin ribbon which winds itself around the head in a most sophisticated fashion. Rust velvet and rust and beige velvet ribbon makes another charming model.

Yo, ho, ho, and a bottle of rum! We've pirate hats with us this season. One jaunty creation is of black felt with turned up front and draped low sides. Black grosgrain ribbon is the only trim.

People who live in glass houses shouldn't throw stones, but these wooden beads encased in glass wouldn't be apt to do such a thing. Some of the newest sports necklaces are made of these wooden beads entirely covered with colored glass. Rondels of contrasting color are inserted between.

HOW THE NERVES ACT

By LOUIS E. BISCH, M. D., Ph. D.

THE nervous system is an exceedingly complicated one. It is composed of millions of nerves which run here and there, to every organ, tissue and the tiniest part of the body.

The brain or cerebrum is, one might say, the chief part of this elaborate system. It is the part that lies within the skull and is where the faculties of hearing, sight, smell, taste, touch, movement, memory, reasoning, imagining, etc., etc., are situated.

Underneath the cerebrum is the cerebellum. It is sometimes referred to as the "little brain." It has largely to do with co-ordination of movement.

Still further underneath lies the medulla which contains highly important nerve centers. From the medulla runs the spinal cord, down and inside the spinal column. From the spinal cord streams of nerves pass to various parts of the body.

From the term neurones come the names neuritis, an inflammation of the neurones, and neurasthenia, a condition of exhaustion of the neurones.

Neurones are of various types, but all, in one way or another, have to do with the inception, transmission or reception of nerve impulses.

One may divide the numerous into two great classes. These are known as afferent or sensory neurones and the efferent or motor neurones. Afferent neurones carry impulses from the organ—muscle or otherwise—inwards toward the spinal cord and brain, one might say. Efferent ones carry impulses outwards.

For instance, should you carelessly place your hand on a hot stove the sensation of heat would be carried to the spinal cord by afferent nerves, while the impulse which would make your muscles move so as to remove your hand from the stove would be carried by efferent neurons.

Nerve energy travels very fast. It has been estimated that an afferent impulse speeds along at the rate of 140 feet a second. Efferent impulses are somewhat slower, moving at a rate of 110 feet per second.

"LITTLE CAESAR"

The Thrilling, Vivid STORY OF A RACKETEER

by W. R. BURNETT

WHAT HAS HAPPENED BEFORE

Sam Vettori, Chicago gang leader, outlines a hold-up of the Cass Alvarado night club. Joe Massara, Otero, Tony Passa, and Rico, Sam's lieutenant, carry it out. In spite of Sam's warning against gunplay, Rico shoots a man when he reaches for his gun. It is Courtney, a captain of detectives. Back at Sam's place, Rico is berated. He retorts by threatening Vettori's leadership, calling him a coward. The hold-up cash is split among them. They hide as three detectives appear. Sam is questioned. Rico leaves his "split" with Ma Magdalena, fruit store owner. He buys a paper and reads the murder headlines.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER 8

TONY hadn't slept all night. He lay in the cold dark room, sweating. The covers felt heavy as lead and from time to time he tossed them off, only to pull them over him again as the lake wind, streaming in the window, made him shiver. At intervals he would fall into a doze. Then he would see a windy street, feel a car skidding under him, feel a sickening jolt. He would wake with a start and sit up in bed.

"They'll get us for this," he kept repeating, "they'll get us sure."

Unable to control his imagination, he saw the high, forbidding walls of the State Prison, the tiny death cells with their heavily-grated windows; then in the prison yard, the gallows. He remembered what Rico had said about Red Gus, on the night of his execution: "Well, they're gonna put a necktie on Gus he won't take off!" Yeah, they sure put a necktie on Gus.

Tony lit a cigarette after cigarette. In his despair he cast about for someone to put the blame on. It was a good man, but weak. Remember this, Antonio, if you are ever in any trouble I am the one to come to. Midge's fault. Wasn't she always after him to make more jack so she could put on the dog? Hadn't he tried to go straight and drive a taxi and make an honest living? Yeah, and hadn't Sam Vettori and Rico offered him money to quit his job and give them a lift on their stick-up? Well, couldn't help it, he said; once you were in, you were in!

Tony sat up in bed and looked out another window, outside his window. The sun was coming up and a cold, windy winter morning was dawning. Of a sudden he began to feel sick at his stomach. He lay down, but that didn't help him, then he tossed from side to side. He heard his mother moving about in the next room. She was getting dressed to go to work. An alarm clock in a room across the court rang, then there was some loud swearing, and a window was slammed.

When he came out his mother was lighting the stove. She acted as if she didn't see him. He went back to his room but stopped in the doorway.

"Hello, mom," he said.

His mother paid no attention.

"Say," said Tony, "what's the matter?"

His mother turned and with her hands on her hips stared at him.

"Go back to bed, you loafer," she said, "I am sick of you. You are no good on earth. Just like your father."

"I mean," said Tony.

"Don't try to salve me," said Tony's mother. "You go back to bed and get sober. You think I don't know nothing, don't you? Just like your father."

"I'm not drunk," said Tony, "I'm sick."

But mother turned her back and went on with her cooking. Tony went into his room, slammed the door, and got back into bed. A deadly depression settled on him. The world looked black.

He heard his mother go out, then he got up, dressed and made himself some hot coffee. Anyway, he wanted his split.

On the way to Vettori's he met Father McConagha. The priest was a big man with a big, pale face. He walked with a rolling gait and there was something impressive about him. Tony took off his hat.

"Good morning, Father."

"Good morning, Antonio," said Father McConagha. "Where have you been, my boy? I haven't seen you for months."

"I been working," said Tony.

"What sort of work?" asked Father McConagha, putting his hand on Tony's shoulder.

"I been driving a taxi."

The priest nodded his head slowly.

"That is good work, Antonio."

Tony couldn't look at Father McConagha and kept twisting his hat in his hands and staring at it. Father McConagha talked to him for a minute or two about the rewards of honesty and the happiness to be derived from doing your work faithfully, then he said:

"Antonio, one day your father asked me to look out for you. Your father was a good man, but weak. Remember this, Antonio, if you are ever in any trouble I am the one to come to."

Tony flushed and said:

"Thank you, Father."

When Father McConagha had gone, Tony began to speculate. Did he know anything? Why, on that very morning, had he said something about being in trouble? Tony respected and admired Father McConagha. He felt that he could always turn to him.

Talking with the priest had made him feel stronger, now that the priest had gone all the hopelessness of the night before rushed back on him. He took out a cigarette and lit it with shaking hands.

"They'll get us sure for this," he said.

Then once more he began to think about Red Gus and what Rico had said about him.

Seal Skin couldn't get Otero sober. Nothing seemed to do him any good. He walked about the flat all night singing songs in Spanish dialect and bragging above what a great, brave man he was. Only one man in the world he feared—Rico.

Seal Skin was dead for sleep, but she didn't shut her eyes for fear Rico would do some dirt to her like shooting out the window at the street light (he had done this one night).

"Look," he cried, "I am Ramon Otero, a great, brave man, I ain't afraid of nobody or nothing. I can drink any man in the world under the table and I can outshoot any man that walks on two legs. Only Rico; he's my friend. He is a great man like Pancho Villa and I love him with a great love. I would not shoot Rico if he shot me first. Rico is my friend and I love him with a great love."

Then he got up and, snapping his fingers, began to dance, stamping with his heels, wiggling his hips, till Seal Skin nearly fell out of her chair laughing.

Toward morning he went to sleep with his head on the table. Seal Skin picked him up and carried him to his bed (he weighed about a hundred and fifteen pounds).

Rico bought all the papers he could find and went up to his room to read them. He sat at his table, his hat tilted over his eyes, with a pair of scissors in his hand, cutting from the papers all the articles dealing with the hold-up and the killing of Police Captain Courtney and he ranged the clippings in a neat pile, then read them over and over.

One said:

"The thug who shot Police Captain Courtney was a small, pale foreigner. He was dressed in a natty overcoat and a light felt hat.

Another:

Rico tore up the clippings.

"Where do they get that unhealthy stuff?" he said. "I never been sick a day in my life."

CHAPTER 9

Sam Vettori's heavy, dark face looked puffy and his eyes were swollen. He hadn't been sleeping well lately and he had been drinking whiskey. As wine was his usual drink, the whiskey indicated a state of mind the reverse of calm. He sat chewing a cold togie, and from time to time murmuring himself a short from the bottle at his elbow. Rico was playing solitaire, hit hat tilted over his eyes.

The Big Boy sat opposite Vettori, his derby on the side of his head, and his high shoes, which at one time had swung a pick in a section gang, lying before him on the table.

"Got a chance, Sam," he said, "I can't do nothing for you. Why, you must be out of your mind. Listen, they're after me hot and heavy. I got all I can do to take care of number one, see? Things was running too good for you, Sam. That's your trouble. I ain't no mind-reader. A stick-up more or less, what's that? But when it comes to plugging a bull like Courtney, that's out! No, Sam. You're on your own now. It ain't gonna be none too healthy for none of us for a while. Just don't lose your nerve, that's the main thing. Just hang on and watch the guys that get in the know."

"You leave that to me," said Rico without looking up.

"O, that's all right, Big Boy, "I think you're the goods, Rico. But don't get nervous with that gat of yours, or they'll put a necktie on you. Get this. No more stick-ups. No more jobs. Just lay low, all of you. If you can cut of Jack, I'll stake you. Now I got to beat it. Don't call me up no more, Sam. Because I can't do nothing for you and it might give the bulls an idea."

The Big Boy got to his feet and stood leaning his huge hairy paws on the table.

"Why, you guys are lucky and don't know it. Wood's manager got so damn rattled he identified one of the detectives men as the guy that did the inside stand. That sure was a pitch. Spike Dieger bolting. Pretty soon he pinned the manager down and the damn dummy said it was Spike that did it. Now the Police. So they went out and grabbed Steve Gollanco. Steve had an alibi that didn't stand a chance and Steve thought they had the goods on him. It was funny as hell!"

"All right, laugh," said Sam.

"Sure, I'll laugh," said the Big Boy; "if you'd seen Steve's face when he found out what it was all about you'd split your pants laughing."

"Steve's the goods," said Rico.

"You said a mothful," said the Big Boy, "he's got them eating out of his hand. Well, I'm gonna beat it. You guys lay low and it may blow over. If things get hot, I'll tip off Scabby and then you all better hit the rods. So long."

The Big Boy went out, slamming the door. They heard him go down stairs; he walked as heavily as a squad of police and banged each step with his heels.

Vettori swore softly to himself at Rico's indifference, then, pouring himself another drink, he said:

"You think Joe's safe, Rico."

"Yeah," said Rico, "as long as they don't nab him and put it to him. He can't stand the gaff."

"How about The Greek?"

Rico laughed.

"Safe as hell. Only thing with Otero, he gets in and wants to raise hell. I had to knock him down a couple of times last night. He gets a little money and he goes nuts. That damn greaser never saw $5 all at once till I picked him up in Toledo. But he's safe."

"How about Tony?"

"I don't know about Tony."

"You leave that to me, Sam," he said.

* * *

About 9 o'clock Carl put his head in the door. Downstairs the jazzband had just started to play.

"Well?" commanded Vettori, getting to his feet.

"Blackie wants to see you," said Carillo.

"All right."

"What you suppose he wants?" said Vettori.

Rico, who was sitting with his chair tipped back against the wall reading a magazine, shook his head without looking up or answering. He was deep in the reading of a story about a rich society girl who fell in love with a bootlegger. Rico read everything he could find that had anything to do with society. He was fascinated by a stratum of existence which seemed so remote and unreal to him.

The men of this level were "saps" and "softies" to him, but he envied them their women. He had seen them getting out of limousines at the doors of Gold Coast hotels. He had seen them magnificently dressed, insolent, inaccessible, walking up the carpets under the canvas marquees. The doormen would bow. The women would disappear. Rico hated them. They were so arrogant and self-confident, and they did not know that there was such a person in the world as Rico.

Blackie Avezzano, who managed Sam's garage, came in and shut the door behind him. He was small and bowlegged, and he was so dark that he had been taken for a mulatto many times.

"Well, what's on your mind, Blackie?"

Rico went on reading his magazine. Blackie sat down at the table and seemed to be making an effort to collect his thoughts.

Tony he took sick. Listen, I tell you, Tony he no know what. He took sick. I see him, listen. I tell you, what-Jesu-say, he no got the nerve. The Madre she send me call the doctore. Listen, he say, Tony, what-you say, you want a drink. Now listen, you cut out a drink. That's all. Tony he no drink. What a hell! One bottle of beer he can no drink. He no got his nerve, that's all.

"Rico," he said.

"I heard him," said Rico, "I ain't deaf."

Blackie got up and stood twisting his cap in his hand. Vettori took out his billfold and handed Blackie a fiver.

"Blackie," he said, "keep your eyes open, understand?"

When he had gone Rico said:

"I'll give him until tomorrow," said Rico, "he can't go far wrong with Blackie watching him. And if he don't settle down, there won't be no more Tony."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Ann Marie Macy, young and pretty, is the easy mark of her motherless family. She is forever waiting on her more modern, flapperish sisters, Alice and Jeanne, and lending them her clothes and trinkets. Neal Forsythe arrives to visit the wealthy Lawlers. Ann Marie quickly loses her heart to him in spite of her disillusionment when she finds him embracing Loota Ingram, the town's bad girl. Howard, her brother, is in trouble with Lootie. Ann Marie pays out her last money to Lootie to leave for New York. It is money saved for an art course. Loota writes a letter to Florence Lawler that brings Howard's discharge from her father's bank. Howard leaves for the West and Ann Marie raises the money for his expenses. At the station Ann Marie meets Neal Forsythe. That night, with John Lawler, he comes to take out Ann Marie and Alice. Ann Marie, for the first time, is jealous of Alice's desire to win Neal Forsythe.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER 17

ANN MARIE stood at the top of the stairs while Mrs. Leezy opened the front door to Johnny Lawler and Neal.

Then she turned to Alice.

"Aren't you going down?" she asked in a whisper.

Alice shook her head. She had come to a dead stop in the middle of the upper hall and there she stood, gazing at her sister with bright unfriendly eyes.

"Not with you," she whispered back. "You go down first—and I'll follow later. Or else I'll go first."

Ann Marie understood her perfectly . . . Alice was always striking poses and trying to make impressions on people. And now she wanted to go downstairs alone so that she could make an impression on Neal Forsythe with her smartness and her beauty.

For when she was properly made up, Alice had a certain glittering artificial beauty.

She knew how to dress, too. And tonight she was dressed in a short pale-green tube of a sleeveless dress with dark-green oak leaves patterning it . . . They had been painted there by Ann Marie's clever, willing hand.

"And she looks slick in it," Ann Marie thought, and, envy was in her heart. "She looks like a wood nymph who's wandered into a dress-maker's shop."

She felt very shabby and second-rate, herself, as she came down the stairs and across the dimly-lighted hall to the parlor.

Howdy's box of cigarettes was gone. To Ann Marie it seemed as if his going had created a feeling of loss and sadness in the house.

It is always hard not to cry when you have been crying a good deal and there was a sparkle of tears in her wide eyes when she walked into the parlor and shook hands with the two young men.

"What's wrong, Ann Marie? Somebody been beating you up?" Johnny Lawler asked with his heavy humor.

"No." Ann Marie blinked very fast. "But—it gave me what Mrs. Leezy calls a 'turn' when I didn't see Howdy's brass box on that table. His box of cigarettes, you know. He took it with him."

Ann Marie nodded. Then she told him the news about Howdy.

She was still telling it to him when Alice came floating into the room. She had a pale-green gauze scarf around her shoulders, and she stood still just inside the door for a moment so that both the men could take a good look at her before she sat down.

"So nice to see you again!" she said to Neal in her soft company-voice. "It's perfect ages since you were here, isn't it?"

She shook both of his hands in both of hers, and Ann Marie could have slapped her for it.

Then she turned to Johnny and shook both of his.

"Let's not stay here," she said sweetly, looking from one to the other of them." This house is terribly gloomy tonight—We all miss Howdy so—"

Ann Marie stared at her in wide-eyed astonishment. For at supper, two hours ago, Alice had taken the news of Howdy's departure with a certain stony cheerfulness.

"We can use his old bedroom for an upstairs sitting room," she had said to Mrs. Leezy. "And then when we girls have company downstairs, we can sit up there . . . It always gives me the jumps to have him down there in the back parlor, listening in to everything that's said in the front room."

But now she looked almost broken-hearted!

"Where do you want to go, Alice?" Johnny Lawler was asking her. "Let's pick a gay place—one that will cheer you up."

Alice shrugged a bare shoulder. "There isn't any very gay place near this God-forsaken town," she complained. "You know there isn't, Johnnykins! But I always have a good time with you—so YOU pick the place!"

"All right, I'll pick the place!" he said. "But first we'll stop in at our house for a flask . . . The girls get your wraps."

"I'm pretty careful about what I drink," Ann Marie heard him saying to Neal when she came downstairs with her coat and her handbag. "I never touch the stuff they sell you in road-houses."

Alice had forgotten that she was supposed to be downcast about Howdy by the time she came downstairs once more.

She had put on an extra layer of lip-stick and she had on her best "Whoopee" expression. She was all smiles and sparkles.

"Come on, Sloppy Socks!" she said boisterously to Johnny, catching him by the arm and starting out of the front door with him. "Big night on the State Highway, eh what?—Lots of dances for Allie, hmm? Lots of music, hmm?—For Allie?"

Ann Marie knew that her slang and her baby-talk were silly . . . She knew that she was silly, herself, in a hard metallic sort of way.

And yet there were times when she longed to be like her. Longed to know how to flatter and "baby eye" the men, how to fascinate them and flirt with them and worry them.

For Alice did know those things in her more or less cheap trivial way.

"Your sister's a good little sport to pep up and try to forget about your brother," Neal said to Ann Marie when they were going down the front walk, arm in arm, in the darkness. "She's a mighty fine kid."

Ann Marie said that that was true.

But she said it without much feeling. It was hard for Ann Marie to say something that she did not think.

The four of them crowded into Johnny's roadster, and it was Alice who sat on Neal's knee because there wasn't room for all of them on the seat.

"Im not so heavy as Ann Marie," she told him. "So I'll sit on your lap."

She put her arms around his neck twice, too, when the car went over bumps.

"Come on in while I fill up the flask," Johnny said hospitably when they drove into the Lawler's side yard and stopped.

Ann Marie did not want to go into the house . . . She thought of the Lawlers' quarrel with Howdy that day, and she felt sure that they would not be exactly glad to see any of Howdy's family for a while.

"Alice and I will sit here in the car, Johnny," she said.

But Johnny objected to that. "No, come along in," he insisted.

And so she went.

Afterward she was sorry that she had not stayed out in the car that night.

They all went into the house through the side door. Through the window they saw Mrs. Lawler. Ann Marie could see Florence and her mother sitting beside the fire.

They came out, into the dining room," Johnny said in a half-whisper, "and we'll have a glass of wine all 'round before we start out. What say?"

Alice nodded brightly and Neal looked even more cheerful than he had been looking all evening.

"Suits me," he said, "down to the ground."

The three of them had had their wine, and Johnny was pouring a large flask with whiskey from the sideboard when Mrs. Lawler came in.

"How do you do, Mrs. Lawler?" asked Alice in her sweetest and most polite voice.

"How are you tonight, Mrs. Lawler?" asked Ann Marie.

But Mrs. Lawler had nothing to say to either of them. She had known them all their lives, and for years they had run in and out of her house in the friendliest way. But now she was like a stranger to them.

She did not even look at them again, after she had given them that first cold glance.

Johnny went on carefully filling his flask.

He laughed. "That's no lie, Mother," he said firmly. "It generally is Monday night."

"The very beginning of the week," she went on, and Ann Marie saw that she was very angry, "and here you are, planning to go out and stay out half the night—after all the things your father said to you today about attending to business! All the things he said to you about drinking and running around nights—"

"Yes, but he wasn't talking about me. He was talking about Macy—Johnny began, and then he stopped abruptly. He flushed and looked nervously from his mother to Howdy's sister.

"Let's talk all this over some other time, Mother," he said, plainly embarrassed. "This isn't the time and the place—"

This time and place suits me right down to the ground!" she interrupted him sharply. "I'm going to say what I have to say right now!—The best thing you can do, if you want to please your father and keep your position in the bank, is to give up these people that you and Florence have been running around with! And the sooner you do it, the better!"

"Oh, Mrs. Lawler—you can't mean me and Alice!" she cried, and she began to sob like a child. "You can't think such terrible things about us and Howdy! Howdy didn't do what was right—or what you thought was right—but I mean that we're just as bad right for Johnny! And for Florence!—You can't say that!"

She turned and looked at Alice. "Let's go home, Alice," she said. "Let's go home—not in Johnny's car. Just by ourselves, Alice."

Sylvia's Darkest Hour, by Jack Woodford

SYLVIA marched into the last office on her list. If she didn't get a job here she was through. Money all gone. Welcome stayed out at Cousin Hetty's. No job on this last chance and it was off to Beardstown, sure enough.

She had banked everything on her "front." Saved a month's down in Beardstown, to get it. After leaving high school, her father and mother had agreed that she might go to work if she didn't want to go to college at Urbana.

She had been given 30 days in which to make good or come home. It was all the family finances could stand—and all that Cousin Hetty would stand, of a visitor in her small, north side apartment.

Sylvia found herself looking into the romantic brown eyes of young Sanderson, vice-president of the firm. He was a millionaire, she knew. And the employment agency had told her that he would not hesitate to pay his private secretary $50 a week to start.

As she talked to the young man Sylvia was enchanted.

And Sanderson, he was visibly impressed. His eyes were very wide as he looked at peach bloom skin the like of which he had not seen for a long time. Puckered cherry lips, without too much makeup on them. Frank, large blue eyes. Lovely, corn-colored hair. A wisp of slim, girlish figure, more fairylike than human. Voice like a panpipe.

"I can't see you," he said emphatically.

Sylvia found herself in the corridors by the elevator shaft. As she went down in the elevator it seemed to her she was sinking both objectively and subjectively. It was the end of everything for her.

"The whole trouble with you," she began, "is that you're too frivolous. And you expect too much. You spend most of your money for a lot of swell clothes and you doll yourself up like a Follies beauty, and then go around with your head in the air as if you really were somebody. . . . Looking for a job at more salary to start than my husband makes."

Just then Hetty's husband came in to announce that Sylvia was wanted on the 'phone.

"I found your telephone number on that card from the employment agency that you left on my desk," Sanderson told her. "I've changed my mind about you. Come down, ready for work, in the morning."

It was while Sylvia and Sanderson were on their honeymoon that he confessed to her:

"I told you that I couldn't use you because you took my breath away. I was afraid that I couldn't do a lick of work with you in the office, you were so pretty. . . .

MASS OUTPUT OPENING NEW RETAIL FIELD

An era of mass production is the more leisure to American ...a, and with the aid of con... credit is opening up new fields for retail merchants, according to Edmund G. Simons, assistant vice-president, American Foreign Credit Corp., at the closing session of retail merchants and experts in the University Club.

"Mass production," said Simons, "has forced installment selling to the front, has increased the wealth and is decreasing the hours of labor. The tendency is toward shorter hours with approximately the same reward as before.

DEMAND FOR COMFORT

"Our rapidly increasing wealth," continued Simons, "has created an immense demand for articles of comfort and luxury, our production is geared up to supply this demand.

"After observing during the last ten years the immense increase in productive capacity which machinery affords, only a pessimist would believe that the world could not produce enough for people to live in comfort. It becomes a duty of every thoughtful person to try and accomplish that end. Two great essentials must be preserved—peace and confidence."

Discussing installment buying, Julian Goldman, head of Goldman Stores, Inc., said: "In 1920, at the start of the extraordinary development in installment buying, the total of savings bank deposits was 16 billion dollars and the savings bank depositors totalled 22,500,000. At the end of 1926 deposits reached 26 billion dollars, and the number of depositors increased to 47,000,000. Installment buying, adopted generally in the automobile trade after the depression of 1921, rescued the automobile industry, lowered the price of automobiles and placed 6,000,000 people at work in the industry against 1,500,000 employed in 1921.

"The credit back of consumer credit," said Goldman, "is the earning power of the working and consuming class of America. If a man earns $3000 a year, he is worth approximately $112,000 on assets consisting mainly of his ability to earn. The collateral back of installment buying is the desire of the workers for a better life and the willingness to work for it."

In a discussion of chain stores vs. independent stores, W. T. Grant, president of the W. T. Grant Company, expressed confidence in the future of chain stores. Grant started a small store in Lynn several years ago and is now at the head of a chain of more than 300 small department stores.

"I believe," he said "that standardization, mass production and mass selling are some of the most important factors in the general industrial and commercial success of this country. Hundreds of thousands of people are having things that otherwise they could not afford to purchase.

"It is true that the chain store has disturbed the jobber and some retailers, but where it has hurt one merchant it has helped a thousand consumers. I have yet to find a wide-awake, independent merchant who cannot hold his own against the chain system.

"The old idea that competition is the life of trade is fast being discarded and this new order of cooperation and co-ordination is taking its place. It will make us not only the richest but also the happiest nation on earth."

The position of independent store in the present era of chain stores and mergers was outlined by Philip LeBoutillier, president of Best & Co., New York city. LeBoutillier estimated there are about 3000 department stores in the United States, doing approximately 6,500,000,000 of the annual retail trade of $40,000,000,000 in the United States.

"The good sized independent store need not fear the chain system if efficiently managed," LeBoutillier said.

OUTLINES PROPOSED SCHOOL

The proposed establishment in New York city of a school in retail merchandising, for advancement of employes and officials in department and other retail stores to higher positions, was outlined by Thorndike Deland, specialist in placement of store executives.

He said: "The next era in American commerce will be the era of distribution—the age of retailing. Department stores and other large retail distributors should be able to develop their executives and other high-paid officials from the ranks in their own institution, instead of going outside. The proposed school is aimed to aid toward that end."

Other speakers were Ralph G. Wells, Boston University School of Business Administration; P. A. O'Connell, head of E. T. Slattery Co., Boston; Edward R. Mitton, Jordan Marsh Co; Frank A. Krim, Denholm-McKay Co., Worcester; F. Goldthwaite Sherrill, of Chandler & Co., and T. Grafton Abbott, of D. R. Emerson Co.

All Hands in Court to Straighten Out Love Tangle

"I found them together—I had to pop him," said Wheeler-Reid, Hollywood publisher, who had a lot more to say of Sponey in Chicago Morals Court. He said he found his wife, known in the movies as Lillian Coolidge, in a hotel with Sponey. (International Newsreel photo.)

DEATH CLAIMS 'SAMARITAN'

Ware, Sept. 6—Paul L. Dansereau, 25, of East Douglas, died at Mary Lane Hospital after the amputation of his left leg.

Dansereau died as the result of being injured while being a "Good Samaritan" to a motorist whose machine was disabled in West Brookfield Tuesday morning. Dansereau left the car in which he was riding to assist a stranded motorist, Henry Lippman of New York city.

While at work on the Lippman car a machine in which Carl Tornquist and Walter Crawford, both of Worcester, were traveling, crashed into the two parked cars and Dansereau was caught between them.

Wesleyan to Halt 'Frat' Misfits

Middletown, Conn., Sept. 6—Prof. J. W. Hewitt, dean of freshmen at Wesleyan, has evolved a plan for the "rushing" season which he hopes will do away with misfits in the fraternity memberships. Each freshman, on arrival, is to be handed a booklet giving individual information regarding the financial, scholastic and social standing of the various fraternities. The freshmen are to be permitted to designate which fraternities they desire to make dates with regarding entry.

C. H. Huston to Be Leader of the G. O. P.

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP)—Claudius H. Huston of Tennessee and New York, will be elected chairman of the Republican National Committee without opposition at its meeting Monday.

Huston is the first choice of national committeemen and women from 38 of the 48 states and no opposition to him has been voiced by the party representatives of the other ten states.

Boy Injured in Fall of 16 Feet

Brockton, Sept. 6—James R. Murley, 2½-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Murley of Denton st. was seriously injured when he fell about 16 feet from the second floor front piazza to a concrete pavement.

The little boy suffered a fractured skull and multiple injuries of the body. He is not expected to recover.

Engine Balks at Fire

Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., Sept. 6—A brand new fire engine purchased by the town a month ago refused to work when a $20,000 fire swept a barn.

Ancient Law Dooms Bootlegs to 'Ball and Chain' Gang

Elgin, Ill., Sept. 6 (AP)—A law half a century old has been dusted off by Circuit Judge Olney Allen to curb liquor law violations in Kane County.

The law provides that bootleggers and other illegal purveyors of intoxicants may be made to work out fines at the rate of $1.50 a day, and that jailers are privileged "to attach balls and chains to them" to prevent escape.

Judge Allen said the imposition of fines has had little effect in curtailing bootlegging, and he indicated the old law would be invoked in flagrant cases.

TWO KILLED IN PLANE CRASH

Pittsburgh, Sept. 6—Leo McKilgott, 27, a second lieutenant of the 324 Observation Squadron of the Army Reserve, and Charles S. Tyyard, 25, a flying instructor, were killed when their small cabin plane crashed at Rodgers Field.

Witnesses said the flyers made two unsuccessful attempts to get off the ground and then went into a spin at between 150 and 200 feet altitude when they finally got into the air.

Close Havana Dance Halls

Havana, Sept. 6 (AP)—All public dance halls, some 50 in number, have been closed by the authorities. Women's clubs complained of them as "dens of iniquity."

KAO DRUG TRIAL IN NANKING

Shanghai, Sept. 6 (AP)—Deported from the United States after the revelation of an opium plot of huge proportions, Ying Kao, former Chinese vice-consul at San Francisco, and his young wife were taken into custody by Chinese authorities today upon their arrival from San Francisco.

Instead of being jailed at Shanghai as was expected, they were taken to Nanking and booked for trial there.

Tachung semi-official new agency quoted officials of the government as having said that they were determined to make an example of Kao prior to all government workers who violated a public trust.

Girl Scouts' Medal for Mother of Three

Omaha, Neb., Sept. 6 (AP)—Mrs. Mita Hall of Sherman, Tex., mother of three sons, has been awarded the Grace Harriman Silver medal by the Camp Fire Girls National Council, in session here, as having accomplished more this year for the organization than any other camp fire girls group leader in the United States.

Bad Check Epidemic Halted in Brockton

Brockton, Sept. 6—The police believe they have checked an epidemic of bad check passing here the past few days in the arrest of Clifford Heffernan, 26, who later pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny of $10 from a storekeeper. His case was continued to tomorrow for disposition.

Flier Recovering After Plane Fall

Los Angeles, Sept. 6—Ward Miller, 25, airplane mechanic, is recovering from the shock suffered in a fall of a racing plane near Glendale, last Monday, in which Maj. John Wood was killed. Miller arrived here after helping to find the tangled wreckage of the plane in which Wood and he were competing in a non-stop race from Los Angeles to Cleveland.

Fall Ready for Trial, Says Wife

El Paso, Tex., Sept. 6 (AP)—Ready to face a jury despite precarious health, former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall remained in his home here from his Three Rivers ranch today to prepare for his trip to Washington.

"Mr. Fall is ready to go to Washington and is confident of the result," Mrs. Fall said in discussing his forthcoming trial on charges of corruption in the leasing of naval oil reserves during his term of office.

Wife Sues Son of 'Billy' Sunday

Los Angeles, Sept. 6—Billy Sunday, Jr., son of the evangelist, is defendant in a suit for separate maintenance brought by Julia Mae Sunday on grounds of extreme cruelty. The Sundays were married at Yuma, Ariz., April 3, 1928.

Mrs. Sunday charges that eight months after their marriage her

2 Boys' Bodies in Creek

Valley Stream, L. I., Sept. 6—The bodies of two boys, Vincent Herman, 5, and his brother Ferdinand, 8, were found by a posse in a narrow creek where they had gone to seek relief from the heat.

To Do a Single Shimmy

CALLS GAS MOST HUMANE WAR WEAPON

Washington, Sept. 6 (AP)—Although firm in the belief that chemical warfare is the most humane ever used on the battlefield, Maj. Gen. H. L. Gilchrist, new chief of the army chemical warfare service, opposes the belief that an aerial gas attack on a city can wipe out its entire population.

Gen. Gilchrist is working on the theory that the service should keep abreast of scientific developments in foreign countries in the use of gas for destructive purposes.

He is skeptical of theories advanced abroad that millions of persons may be killed by small quantities of toxic gases distributed in an airplane attack.

STUDIES WAR CASUALTIES.

Gen. Gilchrist is reticent about the probable uses of chemicals in future wars. However, official records show he foresees extensive use of gases in future conflicts, because of their economy and effect on military morale and the large number of casualties produced without killing or maiming.

In an official study of world war casualties, points out that, while gas is an effective casualty producer, it does not inflict permanent injuries such as steel throwing weapons.

"The use of chemicals in war," he said, "will be found somewhat inhumane. No one will presume to contest that fact, but it is to be considered with the fullest acknowledgement that all means of modern conflict fall in the same category."

HORRORS OF SHELLFIRE.

"To choke a man to death with an irrespirable gas, to injure his lung tissues and leave him, in the event of his recovery, an invalid for weeks or months is not humane, but the same objection may be made to the horrible injuries due to the rending power of any of the high explosives which drive jagged pieces of steel into human bodies and leave in place of the normal man a lopsided and deformed reminder, sometimes shorn of both arms and deprived of both eyes."

An analysis of the World War casualties, he said, showed the ratio of deaths and permanently disabling cases as a result of gas to total number produced by other weapons to be an "index to its humaneness."

"Both experience and statistics of the World War," he said, "indicate that it is not only one of the most efficient agencies for effecting casualties, but is the most humane method of warfare ever applied on the battlefield." He added that few causes less suffering than wounds."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Scores Dancing Wife Who Neglects Husband

Editor Boston American:

Is marriage a failure?

Some say it isn't, and some say it is. I know a young man who has coffee and doughnuts every morning in an arm chair lunch. In the evening, I see him opening the door of his home carrying food in two bags from the delicatessen store.

He married a girl who will not give up running around with girl friends and coming home late evenings.

She can't cook, but she can dance well. That is where her interests are. I never look at an armchair lunch but what I think of him. E. R. R.

Gardens in Jails Benefit Prisoners

Editor Boston American:

According to the English papers, there are 13 prisons in that country in which prisoners are provided with gardens to cultivate. Lectures and instructions are given by the National Gardens Guild, with the consent of the prison commissioners. The prisoners are growing potatoes, peas, beans, beets, tomatoes and other vegetables. These so employed enjoy this kind of work and it has a good influence upon them.

There are a few prisons in this country that started to do something along this line, but it was followed out. It might be used to advantage in the Norfolk, Concord or in this State. You will find few, if any, gardeners in prison. Somehow or other cultivating the soil has a good effect upon those so employed; a real moral effect upon many.

Mt. Vernon Pl. One of Hub's Shortest Streets

Editor Boston American:

Your correspondent in asking what street in the heart of Boston has only three houses on it, may be referring to Mt. Vernon pl., off Joy st. As far as this writer knows there is no other street in this section of Boston that can claim this distinction. Lagrange pl. had every trade and profession represented but it has changed in the last few years. It runs from Washington st. to Tremont st., back of the Hotel Touraine, and is one of the shortest streets in Boston.

This Man Won $5 Bet on Billy Sunday

Editor Boston American:

Billy Sunday has drifted to offer of a million dollars to enter the fields. I knew he would do this. After seeing him at Winona Lake, Ind., some time ago, I felt sure he would turn down all kinds of money rather than leave his evangelistic work. He believes in it and enjoys it.

A friend of mine said: "I bet you $5 that Billy Sunday will not turn down that offer."

"All right," I replied, "I'll take you up." I'm five bucks ahead of the game and more than that, knowing your man when you bet on him.

Health Examinations for Women Lauded

Editor Boston American:

These health examinations which the Women's Catholic Order are promoting have justified themselves. Members will have an opportunity to avail themselves again of this privilege, when an entire floor at 7 Walnut st. will be reserved for this purpose November 6-8.

The health examination is a life saving measure and enables women to find out where they stand physically and what they must do to keep fit and well.

'She' Buys 'His' Neckties

No Joking!

President George Johnson, Manager Daniel Bloomfield and their fellows of the Retail Trade Board of the Chamber of Commerce are to be complimented upon the success of the FIRST Boston Conference on Retail Distribution.

In this happy undertaking the Retail Trade Board enjoyed the co-operation of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration and the College of Business Administration of B. U.

It adapted to merchandising the methods of discussion which had been applied to politics, religion and literature, and so the three-day meeting, brought to a close yesterday at the University Club, was called a "Williamstown" conference.

The speakers were "experts," of such rank and quality as Paul T. Cherrington, director of research of the J. Walter Thompson Company; E. M. West, marketing counselor; Emerson B. Knight, of Emerson B. Knight, Inc., Indianapolis; Julian Goldman, president Goldman Stores, New York; Joseph H. Appel, John Wannamaker, New York; Edward W. Mitton, Jordan Marsh Company; Thorndike Deland, New York, and Edmund G. Simons, American Foreign Credit Corporation, New York.

A natural result of the pace the retailer has been forced to meet—by (1) mass production, (2) group buying, (3) mergers, (4) chain store methods and (5) increasing instability of styles—the conference caught and held the attention of more than 300 executives. Foremost merchants heard the problems of modern merchandizing deliberated upon by masters and took part in the discussion which followed.

Mr. and Mrs. Customer, reading of these meetings, must have been impressed by some of the things that caught the fancy of reporters.

They learned, for one thing, that WOMEN buy 76 per cent of all the MEN'S hosiery and 72 per cent of all the MEN'S neckwear sold in the U. S. A. Which, somehow, knocks the props from under a hoary Christmas quip of the jokesmith.

They may not have grasped the meaning of the term "price lining," but all could understand when one expert raised a question of the value of such "mark down" prices as $1.98.

Here, it appeared, the problem was simply this: What price, or prices, will each CLASS in the community be interested in paying for its merchandise? "The FEWER these prices," we learned, "the better from the standpoint of the store."

Retail shops of Boston are among the best in the land. Within 15 miles of this trading district, as Mr. Emerson B. Knight revealed, dwell 425,495 families, 64 per cent of them representatives of that great middle class which is the pride of prosperous America and the mainstay of its commerce and industry.

An undertaking which has for one of its objects an improvement in the service which the retailer renders to the community is of interest to every member of that community. The inauguration of these conferences is encouraging. It shows that our Retail Trade Board is alive, vigilant and ready.

MORE than that, the capacity of the experts and the number and importance of the merchants who sat in, as session followed session, has given all New England to understand that Boston can be depended upon to hold its place as the shopping center of the Northeast.

Ours MAY be an old town but there is nothing caducous about its marts and markets.

Could Learn From Mexico

A Real Temperance Effort There

(Copyright, 1929)

Portes Gil, President of Mexico, interested in temperance, goes about it intelligently. Alcoholic strength of beer will be reduced drastically in Mexico, from the present maximum of 8 per cent.

Taxes on alcoholic spirits will be increased as much as may be necessary to discourage consumption.

This will PROMOTE TEMPERANCE, and will NOT finance such a bootlegging, hijacking, bribe-giving crime wave as WE are now "enjoying" in the United States under what is humorously called "absolute prohibition."

Men and governments should use their brains even in the war hysteria that forced prohibition on us. Canada tried prohibition, DROPPED it. We tied ourselves up with a Constitution amendment that may last for generations.

Wise Britain

Business Is Business

(Copyright, 1929)

Great Britain under a labor government decides to resume full relations with Russia. The British are to resume work in Russian oil fields, where Standard Oil got ahead of them.

Business is business, as Lord Beaverbrook pointed out long ago when he said "Britain does business with cannibals if they can buy, or have anything for sale that we want."

Bolshevism surely cannot be worse than cannibalism, and Russia CAN buy, and has many things that we want.

ONCE-OVERS

PERHAPS the reason why you have not reached a higher plane of success is that you have never had any great troubles or serious reverses.

Doesn't sound like good logic to you, does it?

Undeniably you have met with minor defeats the nature of which does not cause you much concern. Not severe enough to call out all your resources to overcome them. You accept rather than try to surmount them—less trouble.

But if you had had some hard jolts you would have had to put forth energy to recover from their effects. Having accomplished such a task you would have been stronger for it.

Those who make the greatest eventual success very frequently are those who have had the hardest time to get along.

You may think you have had your share of trouble, but in comparison to what others have experienced, haven't your difficulties been rather insignificant?

This is what will bring out the best there is in you.

Humpty-Dumpty

By Nelson Harding

G. O. P. Dumpty built up a high wall,
Protests and warnings he heard not at all.
Now he is finding that jobs of this sort
Break down his scaffold of Public Support.

In this predicament well may he frown,
Wondering how he can build the wall down.
And it's small comfort these words to recall
"The higher the climb, why, the harder the fall."—N. H.

The BAER Facts

By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER

AN opera singer in Paris has just got a Mexican divorce by mail.

We have often read those correspondence proposals:

Two years later she drops a souvenir postcard in the chute:

Now we will have a reason for shooting those two letter carriers.

You study at home.

Like a lot of American tourists he thought to himself, "Why do I need a wife in Paris!"

So he wrote to the current Mexican government and said:

"I want a divorce."

The answer was, "Why?"

"Because I'm married."

"That's no reason—even in Mexico."

But he got it in the next mail.

All you need is a two-cent stamp, pasted upside down.

Collections at ten, two, six, twelve and four. Except Sundays and holidays.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

IT was a sizzling day. The air stung skin and eyes like hot gravel—the glare bit the baked earth with a clang—the sky was a fiery lid, riveted to the molten ring of the horizon. A stark day—seared of color, merciless as steel.

We had ridden for miles over unspeakable mountain roads. With each jolting, choking mile our peevishness had increased. We had become snarling animals, cooped in a small, perambulating furnace.

Presently we rolled into a little town and made for a service station. As though they walked on air, two young men flew to greet us. Their clothes were pleasantly white and cool, their eyes were friendly, their hands were marvels of quiet efficiency.

We were not profitable customers. We needed little—a couple of gallons of gas, a look at the oil—but they attended that small need as though kings commanded. Unconsciously our spirits rose. We found ourselves laughing at the heat of the day, at each others' grimy faces, then turning to admire the town and compliment the boys on their spotless station. The heat beat down on that station as it had beaten on every yard of our road, but we were actually cooler. We were joking as we left—

The topic changed but I went on thinking. Thinking how were all really service stations dependent on each other—giving to and taking from each other—

Giving SOMETHING to each spirit that comes our way—some mysterious part of ourselves—something that stimulates other life, or depresses it.

Service stations—that's what we all are, inevitably.

And I thought of some of the "stations" I've met—

There was an elevator boy once in the Call Building in San Francisco. He had asthma and I doubt if there's a worse agony in life than asthma. Yet he always smiled. He would cling to his lever, his eyes suffused, his skin the clammy green of partial suffocation, but his smile was unfaltering. I never once heard him complain or give an angry answer to an irritable passenger. He wasn't trying to be a hero—he was a matter of fact fellow who scorned heroics. He was simply made that way. He was THAT kind of a service station.

I know a woman who runs a small restaurant on the Mother Lode. They call her Ma Eagen. She's a grandmother and she has worked mighty hard all her life. She should rest now but she still must stand over a raging stove, serving short orders, on days so hot that even the flagstones crack. Sweat streams down her handsome face. Her gingham dress clings, drenched, to her weary body. But she always has time to pat a kitten or laugh with a baby or call out to a passing friend

There's a girl with a withered arm who waits in that same restaurant. She's a dashing, vivid young thing, named Marjory. You'd think that, being young, she'd resent that arm. Make you, too, feel it's affliction. Not Marjory! She grins and winks as she points to her "bum wing," and all the world grins with her.

Service stations—

When I think of them, and then of the watered gas and gritty oil I've dispensed, I could go out and eat worms!

WORDS OF WISE MEN

Where doubt there truth is—'tis her shadow. —Bailey.

Time, to the nation as to the individual, is nothing absolute; its duration depends on the rate of thought and feeling. —Draper.

And short retirement urges sweet return. —Milton.

The thief doth fear each bush an officer. —Shakespeare.

To achieve what the [illegible]

In all pointed sentences some degree of accuracy must be sacrificed to conciseness.—Johnson.

Dost thou love life? Then do not squander time, for that is the stuff life is made of. —Franklin.

Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS.

THIS pitcher stands a bit awry,
Its colors over-bold,
Its sky more blue than heaven's sky!
Its flowers too red, too gold.
The platter has uncertain lines
That mar its symmetry;
Too bright the outline which defines
Mountain and lake and tree.

Who shaped this stubborn clay
Into the pattern of their thought
In that long-vanished day?
In spite of all that might evade
Art's dreams in Earth's far youth,
Each faulty hue and line betrayed

Have Women Real Courage?

THIS Answers THAT

(Copyright, 1929)

FIRST FLIGHT AND FIRST JUMP

It was said by men who objected to "votes for women" that women should not vote because they did not go to war, not having courage to fight, etc.

That could easily be answered by every man who has seen a child brought into the world. Mothers at childbirth have suffered more than all the men on all the battlefields have ever suffered in all the wars.

Miss Klinger had never FLOWN in her life, had never been in an airplane, and, of course, she never tried a parachute jump.

She remarked casually that TWO "first sensations" would be more interesting than one, and she thought she would go up in an airplane, and when she got high enough jump out and try the parachute.

She did what she said she would do.

She took her first flight, and at 3000 feet up she jumped. Her parachute opened according to schedule and the young girl made an excellent landing.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. M'INTYRE

NEW YORK, Sept. 6—Thoughts while strolling: A shop dealing in imported cheese. But nothing beats the old red rat trap variety. A fellow pushing a baby buggy has no trouble crossing the streets. He receives as much consideration from crossing cops as a timid old lady.

They never seem to name a girl Opal any more. Cornell Woolrich, the young novelist. Why do white gloves appear so utterly supercilious? Tag on a dog's collar: "Try to steal me!" That grinning darkey doorman at Reuben's. Short nose veils again. Another tipsy policeman.

Frank Sullivan, a Saratoga Springs, N. Y., boy, who made good in the city. Whatever became of Hal Chase? Young bucks who sit in the windows of Papa's Club trying to look worldly. Gob pajamas for ladies—made like sailor suits. Japanese girls always look as though they just woke up.

A "Tot's Tog Shop." Al Bedell and his famous high collar. Those crisp chauffeurs in dove gray whipcord uniforms and deep purple caps—very Mayfairish. All the blue-blooded ballroom dancers from society families seem to have disappeared. Margaret Illington Bowes.

The old Scotland Yard man who used to be chief house detective at the Waldorf. Dan Healey, the actor, who resembles Meyer Walker. Nothing so irritating as pests standing at your table while you try to eat. F. P. Dunne, Jr., son of the old master. And a new dramatic reviewer.

You see the prettiest girls in those home cooking places featuring watery soup and leathery pie. And the hardest faced women frequent the expensive cafes. Will Hays window shopping. A woman in a limousine takes a long swig from a silver flask. Maybe it's milk.

Book shops featuring afternoon teas. Most every other girl seems to be letting her hair grow. Hair parlor uppitiness is largely to blame. A new hotel with free garage service. Don't hear so much about calories and vitamines. Have they gone out, too? King Lardner's No. 11's.

It is whispered a practitioner of peeping journalism was unable to attend a costume ball the other night because he caught his head in a transom.

The costume ball, by the way, is another hallowed New York institution that has lost its popular wallop. Only a few years ago the annual masquerades of the Society of Illustrators' and the Kit Kat Ball frothed up almost the same interest as the Four Arts affair in Paris.

There were a half-dozen other similar balls that annually drew the celebrities and camp followers. But since prohibition, enthusiasm has been dwindling from year to year. Even the huge society balls for charity etc., little more than a yawn.

In other days, masqueraders moved en masse at sun-up from the ball to the popular Childs restaurant of the moment, and after slipping each other with flapjacks, hoosky fried eggs and such, paraded through town, prison fashion, with a cock-eyed hilarity.

At the biggest costume ball of the season it was noted the guests had thinned down to a handful by midnight, and at 2 a. m. when they used to be snapping into first speed, the janitors were sweeping out the confetti and few empty bottles and calling it a night.

In the morning mail comes a mimeographed letter from a pouting bootlegger, ha, ha, that a certain levin featured in many drug stors windows around town is dangerously doped. The concoction is said to contain 20 per cents alcohol, which is causing the rum sellers many anxious nights. It cuts into sales. But imagine a bootlegger warning you of poisoned liquor!

Telegram from Hollywood: "You can have that comb you stuck in your pocket—Nick, the Wash Room Boy."
